Indictment filed, April, 1888.

Tried, April 12th., 1888.

APPEARANCES:

Assistant District Attorney Davis, for the People;

Messrs. House & Friend, for the Defence.

ANNIE SOLOMON, the complainant, testified that she lived at 266 Division Street, and that she was a married woman. She saw the defendant on the 2nd. day of April in Division Street, at the corner of Ridge Street. There was another young man with him. The defendant held her, and Murphy, who was jointly indicted with the defendant, pulled her down. The defendant would not let go of her; and then Murphy ran away. She missed her watch and chain. She had the watch in the breast of her dress. It was fastened with a pin. There was a chain attached to the watch. The chain was fastened in a button hole in her jacket. While Murphy was running away, the defendant held her by the hand, and then he ran away, too. The watch and chain were gold and cost $65. She, the complainant, ran after the defendant and Murphy. A police officer caught both Murphy and the defendant. She went to the Essex Market Court and identified the prisoners. She didn't see her watch or chain again. She ran fully three blocks after the defendant and Murphy calling out police. It was about two o'clock in the afternoon.

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION. She testified that it was at the Passover Session, and the streets were crowded with Hebrews in that neighbourhood.

SIMON FINKLESTEIN testified that he lived at 109 Broome Street, and that he was a slipper maker by trade. He first saw the complainant on the 2nd. of April in Division Street, near Ridge. The complainant was then halloaing, "police, watch." He saw a man running away. The man was William Murphy, who was jointly indicted with the defendant. He, witness, had a box with shoes, and he put the box on the sidewalk and ran after the man Murphy, until he saw the officer arrest him.

OFFICER THOMAS P. Mc CORMICK testified that he belonged to the 12th. Precinct. He arrested the defendant Mc Carthy in the Essex Market Police Court. He arrested Murphy in the street. He chased him four squares to the corner of Attorney and Broome Streets, on the 2nd. of April, at about 25 minutes to 3 o'clock in the afternoon. His attention was attracted by hearing the complainant's outcry, and seeing Murphy run. Murphy's real name was John D. O'Brien. Murphy was just turning Ridge Street, when the last witness, Finklestein came after him. He caught Murphy at the corner of Attorney and Broome Streets, and the complainant accused him of stealing her watch. In the station house, she said that there was another tall man with Murphy and in the police court Mc Carthy came in, and he, witness, as the result of a conversation with Murphy, arrested him. Then the complainant identified Mc Carthy as the man who had held her by the right arm while Murphy stole her watch and chain; then the complainant made a complaint both against Murphy and Mc Carthy.

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION. He testified that as he brought Mc Carthy inside of the railing, the complainant said, "that's the man that held my arm." In the station house, the complainant gave him a description of the man that she said was with Murphy.

FOR THE DEFENCE. WILLIAM MURPHY testified that he had pleaded guilty to the indictment in which he was jointly indicted with the defendant Mc Carthy. He didn't know the defendant Mc Carthy. He never saw him until he arrested him. Mc Carthy had nothing whatever to do with the stealing of the watch. He committed the theft alone.

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION. Murphy testified that he had gone under the name of John O'Brien about 7 months before. He took this name, because he didn't want to disgrace his people when he was arrested for a felonious assault. He was sentenced to the penitentiary for 6 months. Previous to that he was in prison for 10 days; that was two years before; he was then sentenced for being drunk and disorderly. He threw away the watch while he was running; he threw it into the street. He threw away the chain also. He could not tell in what street he threw it away. He lived at 239 Munroe Street and his business was that of a printer. He didn't know where Mc Carthy lived. He had met Mc. Carthy in the Tombs when he was committed to the Tombs. They had been taken to the Court in the same van and were in the prison box together, but they didn't have any particular talk. He stood on the corner and snatched the watch and chain from the complainant and no one assisted him in any way. He didn't have any conversation with the officer on the way to the station house or in the Court or at any time. If he said that the officer told him that someone else was concerned in the larceny, it was untrue.

JOHN Mc CARTHY, the defendant, testified that he was arrested in Essex Market Court on the second day of April. He was at that time working in 6th. Street in a mahogany yard, and there was no work going on and he went into the Court room to look on; and he had been sitting in the court-room for about half an hour when the officer came and arrested him. He knew nothing about the larceny in question; he never had seen Murphy before his arrest.

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION He testified that he had never gone by any other name than Mc Carthy. His picture had been taken by the police, but it was when he was picked up in the Bowery, where he was standing, doing nothing, one day. He was also put on exhibition before the detective; his picture was still at police head quarters. He was convicted about 7 years before of stealing clothes, and was sent to the State Prison for two years and 6 months, by Judge Gildersleeve. He was sent up to State Prison under his own name. He usually worked along the docks as a longshoreman and truck driver. He had been in the State only about two months, having come from Pittsburg. He had worked in the City for Constantine & Co. in 6th. Street and Lewis & Tetford. He had worked for the last firm for several weeks but had not had steady work because vessels didn't come in every day. He hadn't spoken to Murphy since their arrest, though they had exercised in the Tombs together and had come down to Court in the same van, and had been locked up in the same box.

UNDER RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION. The defendant testified that since he had been out of State Prison he had endeavored to earn an honest living.
