The People vs John Gordon Indictment for petty larceny from the person.
 Court of General Sessions. Before Judge Cowing. March 25. 1880.
 Mary Ann O'Brien sworn and examined. I am the complainant and am a servant at Mr.
 Parmore's corner of Fifth Ave. and 36th Street.
 On the 17th of March I was in the street and on that day I saw the prisoner between six and seven o'clock in the evening; it was getting towards dark. I saw him in 32nd St. I was going along the street, going home, from the Elevated Railroad station. I got on the train at the corner of South Fifth Avenue and Grand St and got off the train at the Thirty Third St. Station. I was going along the street and I met this young man in the middle of the flock; he said, "Please give me five cents." I says, "Well, I will see if I have it, although I need it myself as bad as you, for I have to work pretty hard." I opened the pocketbook and took out a two dollar bill out of the pocketbook and put it back again. I handed him five cents; he said, "Thank you." I thought he walked off about his business. I walked for a few yards, as I turned around I caught his hand in my pocket; he told me he would break my face if I did not let go of him.
 My handkerchief and a pair of gloves were gone. I took the pocket book out and put it into the other pocket. I held him. I said, "you have my pocket book." I have not, he says; you have, says I; I held him by the skirt of his coat and when he saw I would not let go of him he tore off the skirt of his coat and left the skirt of the coat with me. I caught hold of him by the vest until the officer came. There were some young fellows tripped me and knocked me down on the sidewalk and scratched my nose which came against the curbstone. I held him until the officer came. There was a gentleman stood by who said, "If you strike her, I will make you suffer." I did not get my pocket book back; he took it out of my pocket, but it was not found on him. There was nobody else put his hand in my pocket but him; there was a crowd of men and boys around, but there was only him and me alone when I first got hold of him; he was the only one that was on the sidewalk. There was in the pocket book a two dollar bill, three single dollar bills and some small change. Cross Examined. It was getting on to dark when my pocket book was taken; there was a lamp post near me. I said to him, if you give me the pocket book I do not want to hold you. My home was on the corner of 5th Avenue and 36th St. Mr. Barman's. I found his hand in my pocket, I am sure of it. I held him until the officer came. Joseph Meacle, sworn and examined, I arrested the prisoner on the southeast corner of Broadway and 32nd St. My attention was attracted to the place by a crowd running up and I ran too. When I got there I saw this woman, the complainant, have hold of the prisoner; she was hallooing that he had her pocket book. I arrested him and fetched him to the station house. He said he did not have the pocket book. There was some other boys around something like himself. They said she was drunk and for me to arrest her. I seen that she was not drunk and I arrested him on her statement. There was nothing said by the other boys about her assaulting him; his clothes were considerably torn when I came up there; he was searched I did not find the pocket book or anything that she claimed was his. I found on him some pieces of paper, a tooth brush; this was between 8 and 9 in the evening; it was 1/4 to 9 when I got to the station house. Cross Examined. There was a very large crowd gathered when I got to where the complainant and the prisoner were I did not smell the breath of the complainant but she did not appear to have been drinking. John Gordon, sworn and examined in his own behalf testified. I recollect the 17th of March. I did not ask the complainant for five cents. I was on thirty second St. ^{between} Broadway and Fifth Avenue. I did not put my hand in her pocket and did not take out her pocket book. On the night of the 17th of March I was at the corner of Seventh Avenue and 31st St. getting a cigar. I came out and met two women, the complainant and another. She says, "I am a bar tender in there; she says, "you are in my eye"; will you have a drink? "Have you money to spare? She gave me 25 cents silver piece and I went into the cigar store and asked for three ales of the barkeeper; the two women were out in the area; the barkeeper came out and looked at them and said, "They are too drunk, I will not give them anything; we went into another place and had three glasses of ale; she accused the woman who was with her of taking a silk umbrella going through 31st St. she told me her husband was dead and she was a widow this last three years; she then accused me of taking her pocket book and tore my coat tail; she screamed, a crowd came, and she told the officer I took her pocket book. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty.

0265

0266

0267
