of No. 244 Thompson Street, being duly sworn, deposes and says, that on the 28th day of April 1889 at the City of New York, in the County of New York, Thomas Dalton

(now he) did, ^{carnally} know a male person to wit: John Ryker, age five years in a manner contrary to nature in violation of section 303 of the Penal Code. Deponent further alleges that on said day at about the hour of four o'clock P.M. deponent was searching for her son, the said John Ryker and went to the water-closet on the first floor of said premises and found it locked and enquired who was in it and a voice answered which deponent recognized as that of the defendant.
Deponent shortly afterward saw her son leaving the closet and his pantaloons were hanging down and deponent inspected the body of the child and found the anus cut and lacerated. The defendant left the closet at the same time deponent's son came from the closet, and the defendant was buttoning the flap or fly of his pantaloons.

Wherefore deponent charges the defendant with committing or attempting to commit the detestable and abominable crime against nature.

The People
v. David Deutch

Court of General Session Part I
Before Recorder Smyth May 22. 1891.

Indictment for grand larceny in the second degree

David Rothstein, sworn and examined, testified. I have my place of business at No. 1235 Lexington Avenue and I am a tailor and have been for the last forty years. I am well acquainted with the value of cloth and woollens. On the 24th of April I made a complaint against the defendant. I recognize him and I first saw him today four weeks between ten and eleven o'clock in the morning. He came in and asked if I needed a tailor. My back was to the door. I was standing pressing out sleeves by the bench. I have got a bell on the door. I turned round as quick as I heard the door. The defendant said, "Do you need a tailor?" I said, "yes." He came in. I had a conversation as to what he could do. He told me where he worked, but I forgot where he told me. I asked him what he could do? He said, "everything." He asked me if I would give him the privilege to look around at my work to see what kind of work. I said, "Certainly as long as you are a tailor, you can have the privilege." I was by myself. After that he took his overcoat and placed it on the table.

where the goods were lying. I had no suspicion that he will do wrong because he said he was very glad I will give him a job. I went on and pressed my sack and sleeve and turned my back towards him. He took a chair and sat down near the door right where the table was and where the goods were. The overcoat was placed over the goods. All at once I heard the bell and the door open, and I seen him run out. I had no suspicion at all that he was doing anything wrong. I turned back to my goods, and there was a piece of light goods gone. As quick as Mr. Bentish ran out from the store I had no suspicion, but only a second afterwards I thought to myself it is very wrong - What did you do, did you look around? I looked down to the table and I seen that a light piece of goods $3\frac{1}{4}$ yards long ready cut for a customer was missing. I looked a little more and I seen some other goods was gone. I think there was a small check wasted piece, $3\frac{1}{4}$ yards, missing, and there was a black and blue piece missing, three pieces in all were gone, and the value of the three pieces was about thirty two or thirty three dollars. Where did you see this defendant afterwards? At the 125th street Court. I seen him a week after he stole the goods. Did you have any talk with him then? He talked to me, he called me; there was two men where he sold the goods, he called me up to the two men and he said to the two men, before we went to the Judge. "You had better take fifty dollars each and settle ~~it~~ with them tailors that took the goods from me and then there would be no trouble."

By the Court. You got to the Court, didn't you? Yes sir. You saw this defendant there? Yes sir. Did you see anybody else with the defendant? Another young boy: You said something about his speaking to some men? He did. Do you know who those men were? I seen them. What did he say? He called me, that young man (the defendant) called me to them two men that were sitting on the bench, and he said to the two young men, "You had better take fifty dollars each and settle with them tailors that took the goods from me and then there would be no trouble." He said to those men, you had better take fifty dollars and settle with these men? With these tailors what he took the goods from.

Is that right? Yes sir, and then them two men said, "we don't know you." What else was said? He said, "It is not so that I shall deny it, because I stated everything; you shall not deny it either.
That is what Dutch said to the two men: don't you deny it; I stated everything myself, that I took the goods and sold it to you. Did you have any more talk with him? Not particularly. You are satisfied this is the same boy? Yes sir.
Cross Examined When did you buy that piece of cloth that little piece and where did you buy that? This Spring at Goldsmiths.
Who is Goldsmith? In Grand street. What did you pay for that? I do not recollect now till I see the bill. That light piece of goods is worth about ten to eleven dollars.
That was the cheapest of the three. Do you remember what you paid a yard for it? No, not exactly. Is it not a fact that the regular market rate of the three yards and a half the material, the same as that sample that you now have in your pocket is about two dollars per yard? I could not buy it for two dollars.
There is first, second and third quality in goods. Is that the first? That is the first.

By Counsel The second piece that you speak of you really do not know what that was do you? I do, if I saw it again, because that man took the ticket of everything along. Describe it. It was a little check, very fine, a check piece of goods, woollen goods. I do not use anything but fine goods. Did you not say you could not say whether it was check or not? The other piece I could not. Do you know what you paid for it? Not exactly, but I know that the three pieces cost me thirty two or thirty three dollars. I know that I paid that for it. Who did you buy the second piece from? I could not tell you exactly. Excuse me, that is the way you ask a thief, where you buy your goods. Where did you buy the second piece? I could not tell you exactly. If it is necessary I will bring down the bills. Can you not tell us where you bought it if you are not sure about it tell us your best recollection. Not exactly, I buy so many places. Sometimes I go round and buy for cash and sometimes I take time, therefore I do not know. You have not told us yet where you bought it? I bought the first of Goldsmith and the second of Hyde. Where did you get the third piece? I could not tell you exactly. That is your best recollection? May be Goldsmith. You do not know what you paid for it? Not exactly. You do not know what you paid for the second piece, is not that the fact? Not exactly. You cannot describe what the third piece was can you? A black or a blue chevrot. Is it not a fact that these three articles that you claim were taken from your place were what are known as remnants? No sir. Is it not true that you purchased these three pieces as remnants? No sir. Did you buy them by the whole piece? No. How did you purchase them? Three and a quarter yards each for a suit. Were they cut off the whole piece or were they that portion of a piece that was left? That is the way they come into my place. You buy $3\frac{1}{4}$ yards each? Yes sir for a suit and not remnants.

Thomas Keefe, sworn and examined, testified. Officer, you arrested this boy? Yes sir. I arrested him in the fourteenth precinct. Where is 1235 Lexington avenue? Between Sixty fourth and Sixty fifth streets. What Ward? The Seventy seventh precinct. Do you know what Ward it is? I think it is the Nineteenth. Where did you arrest him? He was arrested in the Bowery, near Westcote street and brought to the Fourteenth precinct. Did you arrest him or was he brought to you? He was brought by another policeman and I went after him to the Fourteenth precinct. You went for him? Yes sir. The complaint having been made in your precinct is not that about it? Yes sir. You had some conversation with him? Yes sir. What did he say about this charge? He admitted taking the pieces. What did he say? He said he took the piece of goods, that he sold it to a man named Furber in Clinton street near Broome street.

What else did he say? He also told me that he had sold four or five other pieces of goods to this man Furber and Kline in Clinton and Broome street. Did he tell you where he got those? From a man that boards with him. where he got the stuff from. Did he tell you where he got the stuff from? Yes sir. He told me one man in Forty Seventh street near Third avenue, another man over on Seventy Third street and another man on Third avenue near Eighty ninth street. How did he say he got the other? The same way he took the other piece with the coat, he laid the coat over it.

By the Court Tell the jury, they are not familiar with this business, you say "with the coat," the jury would infer that he took the coat and the piece of cloth, you meant to convey to the jury that he covered over the cloth with his coat? A Yes sir.

By Mr. Hellman He picked the coat and the cloth up together? Yes. the coat and the cloth up together and walked out. What else did you find on him? I found a number of pawn tickets. You found a number of pawn tickets? Yes sir. Did you lock the defendant up? Yes sir. What were those for? A pair of pants; one gentleman identified the cloth in the pants in a pawn shop over in the Bowery. What else? That is all the stuff I found on him. But the four tickets were for what? For pants.

By Counsel In other words, when you arrested him he immediately confessed is not that it? Yes sir. And told you who the receivers were? Yes sir. He tried to do all he could to aid you in returning this property is not that it? Yes Sir.

The Court The larceny is admitted; the only question is the grade of larceny?

Counsel Yes sir, that is all.

The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of petty larceny. The defendant was sentenced to the penitentiary for nine months.

APPEARANCES:

Assistant District Attorney Townsend,

For The People.

Hugh Coleman, Esq.,

For The Defense.

KATE VAUGHAN testified that she was an umbrella maker, and lived on the 8th day of May at 221 Sullivan Street. She was single. She knew the defendant and had known him for about nine months. She had seen him almost every morning during that period. He came almost every morning to her home. At about 8 o'clock on Friday morning, the 8th day of May she was in her own room at 221 Sullivan Street. She occupied the room with the defendant, living with him as his wife. The defendant came in about 8 o'clock in the morning and asked her to go out and pawn his overcoat. She told him that she would not do it, and then he told her to get out of the house. She stood at the door with a shawl over her head, and the defendant cried out of the window, "Don't you come up here, or I'll kill you." She walked to Sullivan and Third Streets, and the defendant followed her to 114 Macdougall Street, broke in the door and hit her upon the forehead with a stove lifter. She went into a woman friend's house there to escape from the defendant. After he had broke n into the room he gave her several blows. She had not been in the room more than five minutes when the defendant broke in. The woman friend was a colored woman. When he entered the room he had an open knife in his hand, but he picked up the stove lifter and hit her upon the forehead with it. He picked up the stove lifter from the stove in the room. He also black oned her eye, and struck her in the face with his fist, and also struck her in the rightside knocking her down. She tried to run out of the room and he struck her in the back of the head with the knife. Then the defendant ran out of the room into the street and she followed him. She saw him a few moments afterwards under arrest in Sullivan Street. She, the complainant, then went to the police station and made a complaint.

85 Christopher Street, and her mother was dead. Her father was keeping house, and she had been away from him for about a year. She did not think that her father knew that she was living with a colored man. She had lived with the defendant for about nine months. She was 19 years of age. She was not a prostitute when she went to live with the defendant, but she went around the streets. She had done this for about two months before she left her home. She had been away from home about four or five months when she went to live with the defendant. She began to live with the defendant at Downing Street---13 1/2. The defendant was about 45 years old. The defendant didn't have to go out and bring her in from different places. He did find her at No. 9 Pell Street, but he did not find her naked in bed with a colored woman. She went to this house to escape from him after he had blacked her eyes. She went back to live with him again after this. It was not an opium joint. She went to the rooms of Miss Maggie Howard and had been there two days when the defendant came after her. There was an opium joint in the building, but she had never been in it. She was not subject to epileptic or falling fits. She might have fallen when she was tight, but never when she was sober. She did not fall against the stove in her friend's room, in Macdougall Street on the day in question and so receive her injuries. She was not drunk on that day. She had been arrested but it was upon the complaint of the defendant who had beaten her in the street. She also made a complaint against him at the same time, and he was arrested. When the defendant came into her room on the morning in question, he had been drinking and was crankly. She had not drank anything for two months. The defendant said, "I ain't got no money." He wanted money to play policy, and she had 15 cents and asked him if he wanted that, and he said, "No." Then he asked her to pawn his overcoat and she refused to do so, and then she walked out of the room, and stood at the front door of the house downstairs.

the witnesses room and she the witness followed the complainant. The complainant had asked her to lend her the complainant her keys because she was afraid and she loaned the complainant her keys, and the complainant ran into her room. Just after they had got into the room and the door had been locked, the defendant rushed past the outside window and entered the vestibule of the house. He kicked in the door of her room, and it flew open. He kicked the lock off first. He said to the complainant, "You God damn bitch, I'm going to kill you." She the witness ran out into the yard, thinking that the defendant was going to hit her. Just before she ran out she saw the defendant strike the complainant over the right eye, and she saw blood flow. He struck her with something, but she could not tell what it was. He also struck her again, and knocked her down on the floor. When he entered the room he had a knife in his right hand. While the complainant was on the floor the defendant beat her. She saw so much blood that she thought the complainant was killed. She ran out into the street to get an officer, and screamed and ran around the corner to Minetta Street, and saw an officer, and just then the complainant came up covered with blood. She had never been on the town. When the defendant broke into her room she picked up her husband's revolver from the bureau. Her husband had bought the revolver since he was married because he had worked until 2 o'clock at

She lived in her mother's house at 152 East 96th Street before she was married. Her mother's name was Harris. Before her marriage she had lived out. It was then in the neighborhood of about 4 o'clock. He saw the defendant passing the stoop. He saw the complainant pass just before the defendant passed. He also saw Mrs Mousseronne pass before the defendant did. The complainant was running very fast. The defendant was also walking very fast. He saw no blood upon the complainant then, but he did see blood upon her about half an hour later, when the officer took her past his house.

THOMAS VAN KUYCK testified that he lived at 368 11th Street and worked for Jeremiah Pangborn who kept a coal yard. On the afternoon of May 5th he was at the corner of Minetta Lane and Macdougall Street about half-past 4 o'clock. He looked up Third Street and heard a cry of "Police!" and he looked down Minetta Lane and saw the defendant walking through Minetta Lane and a colored woman after him. The colored woman was MrsMousseronne As soon as Mrs. Mousseronne reached the corner of Minetta Lane and Macdougall street she said to the defendant that she was going to have him arrested for breaking open her door, and the defendant drew back his arm and hit her, and then Mrs. Mousserone fired a shot from a revolver into the air, and called out, "Police!" She did not fire at the defendant. Then the defendant started to run through Minotta Lane, and a policeman ran after him.

OFFICER GEORGE MURDOCH testified that he was on Macdougall Street on post on the afternoon of May 5th, when he heard a cry of "Police!" It was then about half-past 4. He next heard a pistol shot, and ran up to where it was fired, and asked Mrs. Mousserone who had fired it and she said that she had, and handed the pistol to him. She said that the defendant had beaten a woman in her house and she did not know whether she was dead or not. Then the defendant started to run and the officer ran after him. one said she fired the pistol to attract the attention of a policeman. The defendant ran into No. 15 Minetta Street, and he the witness ran after him and got him in the hallway. He was taking the defendant back to Macdougall Street when the complainant came up covered with blood. She was bleeding from a cut in the back of her head.. The blood was streaming down the back of her head. He the witness asked her who had assaulted her and she said it was the defendant. She said, "I want you to look Mr. Dunkin up. I will not let him go this time, because eight weeks ago he assaulted me, and this time I wont let him go." Then he the witness took him to the station house and found a knife in his trousers pocket. The defendant said to him the witness referring to the complainant, " Don't let her make a complaint against me, for I am locked up all the while." He the witness said, "I can't stop her. You will have to settle that in the station house."

FOR THE DEFENSE.

EDWARD DUNKIN, the DEFENDANT, testified that he was 41 years of age. He was about 15 years of age in 1862 when he was at Fort Republic, and had met his counsel. With his memory thus refreshed he believed he was about 44. He was a native of Virginia. In the month of April, 1862, he was body servant to General Stonewall Jackson. He had been then in Gen. Jackson's employ for about a year. He remained in General Jackson's employ until after the last battle of Fredericksburg or Chancellorsville. Then Gen. Jackson was killed. He the defendant then came to Baltimore. He did not strike the defendant with a knife, or with his fist, or with a stove lifter, or with anything else. When he entered the room of Mrs. Mousserone in Macdougall Street the complainant was lying on the floor near the chimney. He the defendant spoke to her, but the complainant made no reply, and he stood her on her feet and took her to the door, and she fell down in the middle of the floor. She always had fits when she was drunk. She had gone earlier in the day to her sister's house in 17th Street, and brought her sister down to her own room. She got her sister drunk and he the defendant was sitting on the opposite side of the street from his own room, at about half-past 2 o'clock in the afternoon when the complainant's sister came staggering to him, and he said, "What are you doing down here?" And the complainant's sister said, "Katie brought me down." He had to take the complainant who was living with him as his wife out of an opium den in Poll Street, at No. 10, and he took her home. He had also to take her out of the side box of Tom Horner's liquor store in Thompson Street, where she was going with colored men. He only went after her because he knew when she had a fit she would drop down anywhere and hurt herself. He had never struck her in his life. He had lived once before with a woman, and had buried her decently in Calvary Cemetery when she died.

14

In

Cross - Examination,

he testified that the complainant was not his wife. He had known her about ten months altogether. He the defendant did the cooking and bought the food to cook. The complainant did no work whatever. Sometimes she would do a little mending for him. On the night of the 7th of May he was working at the Norfolk Line dock, loading trucks. He went to work about half-past 10 o'clock at night and left there the next morning at about half-past 7 o'clock. He went to his home and found the complainant making up the bed. He the defendant laid down on the bed, having first told the complainant that she had better go up to her sister's house and get her hat. He went to sleep and did not wake until about noon. When he woke up the landlady told him that his wife had gone up to her sister's house, and then he the defendant went around to the Club House in Minetta Street. He had nothing to drink there. kept the club and no liquor was sold there. They sat around and played cards for fun. About half-past 2 he returned to his home and his wife was still out. He then went across the street, and sat upon a stoop and talked with a colored woman. Then the complainant's sister came to him drunk and he took her back to the room and put her to bed, and sat there by her until 5 o'clock. When the sister woke up about five o'clock she asked for her hat, saying that the complainant had taken it, and he went out to look for the complainant to get the hat back. Then he went around to Mrs. Mousserone's house, as he could not see her in the street. He knocked at the door and it was not open and he turned the knob and entered. On September 10th, 1887, he was sentenced by Judge Gorman to Blackwell's Island for Assaulting Lavinda Hassett with whom he was living as his wife. He was on the Island for three months. He was sentenced for six months, but only remained three. He also was sent to the Island a second time for an assault upon his lawful wife in January, 1888, by Just-
