The People v. Court of General Sessions. Part I.
Joseph Tichel v. Before Recorder Smythe. Sept. 8-1882

Indictment for grand larceny.

Christina Pfaffle, sworn and examined, testified. On the 15th of August I lived at 1321 Second Avenue, on that day I had property which I afterwards missed: my husband's watch and chain, twelve silver forks, four knives, but the watch and chain and the silver knives were found back in the cellar afterwards; also a long gold chain of mine, five gold rings, three earrings, a breast pin, and a very big cameo pin. The gold watch and chain were worth a hundred dollars. There were eight boxes of cigars opened and destroyed, worth about thirty dollars, all ten and fifteen cent cigars; the dozen of silver forks were worth about ten dollars; the four plated knives were worth about three or four dollars; the cameo pin was worth over fifty dollars, and the five gold rings were worth from fifteen to twenty dollars a piece. I could not tell how much the gold chain was worth, it was worth a great deal of money; the property belonged to me; on the 15th of August the property was in my bureau. I locked it up that morning when the white washer came in. The bureau drawer was in the bedroom where he painted - Sickels the prisoner; he came there that morning about 8 o'clock or half past seven. I locked the bureau drawer in his presence; he saw me put the money in it. I laid the Keys on the mantel piece and went to change my dress. This was about nine or half past nine. I went to the Kitchen to put on an old dress. I came back about five minutes afterwards to the room and the defendant was there. I asked the girl where the Keys were; the prisoner said "I saw them lying on the mantel piece;" we searched for the Keys and could not find them; we did not get the Keys until the defendant's boss came, which was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon; we sent for him. From the time when you locked that bureau from 8 to 9 1/2 o'clock up to the time when his boss came at 3 o'clock you could not find the Keys. No sir, they was not found in the whole house. Mr. Raith, the boss, went to empty one pail of calomine into another and then he found the Keys. I said, "O my, that is the Keys I missed off the mantel piece. I bet ~~now~~ I am robbed. I told the boss to come right in with me, and everything was gone. The pail in which the Keys were found was in the hall next to the room; the prisoner had got over the roof; he had got away before I went into the room and opened the bureau drawer; he went away about half an hour before I missed my cigars. before he left. I said to him, "Where are those cigars?" He said, he did not know; he had an empty box in his hand; he said he found the empty box; the box only holds 25; there are 30 cents a piece; they are imported Havana cigars. I found cigars in his pocket just about a couple of minutes before he left. He said he found the empty box on the shelf, but I know it was full. I left him standing there in my room and I ran up stairs in the housekeeper's room and I said to her, "I want to see where his coat is." I found his coat hanging up on the wall of the room of the housekeeper; the prisoner at this time was down in my room, but he came right in and grabbed the coat from me. I put my hand on his side pocket and found a whole lot of cigars. He said, "Give me my coat." "No, you want. I said, "Here is my property, the cigars belong to me. He said, "Give me the coat, I have twenty dollars coming from my boss and I will give you that if you will give me my coat." He put his two hands to my neck and choked me; in one moment more he would have killed me because the blood came out of my nose afterwards. He grabbed his coat away from me and I know my property was there. He escaped over the roof; he ran away; he got out on the corner; he ran up four flights and got out over the roof. Cross Examined. I keep a lager beer ^{saloon} oyster house and restaurant; this property was mine; the defendant came to my place about 8 o'clock in the morning. The furniture was not moved out of the room when he came there; when he came he was not helped by the housekeeper to take the "stuff" out of the room; he carried the stuff out and nobody asked him to do it. My servant and the housekeeper helped him. The bureau was taken from the room into the yard; the defendant and my bar tender moved the bureau out. I locked the bureau first before it was taken out and I ~~locked~~ the keys on the mantel piece. I locked the bureau and laid the key on the mantel piece as soon as the ~~Kalsominer~~ came in. It would be an hour or half an hour after that it was removed to the yard. I am not sure because I was not in the room when it was moved. I missed the keys while the bureau was in the room. Did you when you missed the keys go and see the condition of the drawers? Yes sir, they were all locked the same as I left them. Then I went to the bureau and discovered my loss I found the drawers were locked. The first time I opened the drawers was after the boss found the keys in the plaster of Paris. I opened it right away in the presence of the boss. I found some cigars in the possession of the prisoner. I kept them in the room where he was Kalsominer. There was only two small rooms. My husband's watch-chain was found in the cellar in a tin box; the tin box was found by a neighbor of mine and my bar tender and a whole lot of cigars alongside of it. I recovered a dozen silver forks with a whole lot of cigars in an old oyster barrel down in the cellar; the rings are gone as well as my long chain and the great big cameo, ear ring and breast pin. There was $45 in money in a bag; the bag was found in the cellar, but only ten cents was found. I went down to Sickles' house that evening. I saw his father. I was not down the next day, I was only there once. I found no other property on the person of the defendant but the cigars. He did not let me search his coat. My bar tender, girl and myself live on one floor, and the housekeeper is living one flight up. It is a four story tenement house. Before the coat was taken from the defendant I felt the cigars. I took a handful out and laid them on the ladies bureau; he would not give me a chance to examine the coat; he took me by the throat and put me on the ladies bed. Jacob Raith, sworn and examined. My business is painting and Kalsomining; I had a job at the house 1325 Second Ave; we had to paint and Kalsomine the house and the defendant was sent to attend to that job about seven o'clock in the morning; the lady afterwards sent down for me and I got there after four o'clock. I did not see the defendant there then. I looked into the pails of Kalsomine which he had. I found the bureau keys, about six or seven in a bunch; they were identified by the lady as hers. I was not in the room when she opened the bureau, but I went in afterwards; she told me about all the things that were gone. I found the keys as I was emptying the plaster of Paris from one pail to another. Cross Examined. I have known the prisoner for the last seventeen years and know other people who know him. I could not say anything against his general character for honesty before this. I never heard anything in his favor. You never heard a word against him up to the time of his arrest? Never. Caroline Scheir sworn. I am housekeeper of the house where the complainant lives, 1321 Second Avenue. She asked me where the prisoner kept his coat. I showed her where the coat was, it was on the second floor; she took the coat and said, "It is in the coat;" I did not know what he came up after us in the front room; she says she took the cigars out, and he ran for us and wanted his coat very bad. He says, "I will pay for the cigars if you give me the coat;" she examined the pockets and took some of the cigars out. He caught hold of her, I turned around and told him, "you don't beat that lady in my room. He had his hand around her neck and I took him away. He went into my kitchen and got away. Henry J. Cornish, an officer, testified that he arrested the prisoner in 45th St. in his own house and took him to the 59th St. precinct station house on the morning of the 26th. He asked me what the trouble was? I says, "Some difficulty you had while you were working yesterday." He said he supposed it was about some cigars he took; he says, "I only took 25 cigars;" he did not say any thing else. In the defence Jacob King, Rufus S. Bergen, Henry Horner, Charles Lights, Robert B. Livingston and Matthias Sickle were examined and all of these witnesses testified to his previous good character, some of them knowing him over fifteen years. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of petty larceny, the defendant was remanded for sentence.

0202

0203

0204

0207
