Tried Sep. 23, 1889, before

Hon. Rufus B. Cowing and a Jury.

Assistant District Attorney Macdona for the People.

Mr. Sullivan for the Defense.

T H O M A S M c D O N A L D, the complainant, testified that he was a contractor and lived at 1495 Bergen Street, Brooklyn. He saw the defendant on the night of April 20th, 1889. He was coming from Guttен-berg at about half past seven o'clock in the evening.
He went into a liquor store in West Street. He forgot the name of the other street upon which the saloon was situated. It was on the corner. He had dropped into that saloon quite frequently going and coming from Guttenberg, where he had a horse stable. He entered the saloon about a quarter to eight. He had a drink with the man at the bar. They had some talk about the races, and then had a couple of more drinks. He, the complainant, treated everybody. The defendant was in the saloon. About half past nine he, the complainant, said it was about time for him to go home, as he had to pay his men. He went out of the door on the street leading to the Bridge. That is the only way he could describe the street. This street led straight across the park to the Bridge. As he, the complainant, went out of one door Vincent and a short man went out of the West Street door. Then he saw the defendant and his companion cross the street. He, the complainant, walked about two blocks, and the defendant and his companion were meanwhile on the other side of the street, somewhat ahead of him. They crossed over the street, and as soon as he, the complainant, got up to them, he received a blow over the eye from Vincent knocking him into the gutter. Then Vincent and the other man picked him up and carried him over to a wall, and Vincent said "Stand up, there," and then the two men took his watch and chain and all other portable property that he had. They also took his pocketbook and two badges. The watch and chain were worth thirty-five dollars. The badges were badges for the races at Guttenberg. The defendant and his companion, in addition to the watch, stole about three dollars from him. The defendant handed the plunder to his companion. When they were nearly through robbing him Vincent said, "I think we have got all he has now." He, the complainant, was afraid to open his mouth because he was afraid of getting killed. He did not make any outcry, because he was afraid of the defendant and his companion.

Under Cross Examination, he testified that the defendant's companion, Keenan, had been tried and acquitted in the Court of General Sessions. He, the complainant, had been in business about eighteen years and employed from ten to fifty men. He had lived in New York and Brooklyn about twenty-two years. On the day in question he went to the race-course at Guttenberg. He took the Weehawken ferry at about eleven or twelve o'clock. Mr. Keyes, of the Ninth Ward, accompanied him. Mr. Keyes was perfectly sober. He, the complainant, was also sober when they started for the races. He had a drink in Brooklyn before he started for the races at about eleven o'clock. He did not stop in any other saloon in Brooklyn before he came to New York. They had a drink in Guttenberg, but not in New York. In Guttenberg he took a small glass of lager. The races commenced at two o'clock. He, the defendant, reached Guttenberg about half past twelve, and spent the time in looking at his horse. He did not go into any other saloon before the races commenced. He could not remember whether he had bet on the races or not. He did not remember testifying at the previous trial that he had lost a good deal of money at the races. He did say that he had thirty dollars when he started, and that he had five dollars when he left Guttenberg. He paid for his horse's feed there, and other little bills. Five races were run that day. He did not have any drink between the races except during the last two races when he had a small glass of sherry. After the races he went to the Weehawken ferry. Nobody was with him. He lost his friend Keyes on the race-track. He paid fifty cents to ride from the park to the ferry-boat in a hack. He came over to New York by the ferry and had several drinks in the saloon. Then the complainant repeated the story of the robbery that he had previously told. In the Police Court he was so much injured that the Police Justice remarked, "They left you one eye to see." He had five dollars in his pocket when he went into the saloon after paying his bills and giving a few dollars to his trainer and paying his bills at the track. He probably spent two dollars in the saloon for drinks. To the best of his opinion he had three dollars left in his pocket. He last looked at his watch when he was crossing the ferry at about half past seven.

O F F I C E R P A T R I C K O ' B R I E N testified that he belonged to the Fifth Precinct and he arrested the defendant Vincent on the 22d of April last from a description furnished to him by the complainant. He arrested the man Keenan on the 20th of April, and Keenan was subsequently tried and acquitted. At about 9:15 o'clock on the night of the robbery he was on post in Vestry Street at the northeast corner of Vestry and Greenwich Streets. He saw two men on the northwest corner. One of the men had a very heavy gold watch chain. He afterwards recognized this man as the complainant. The other man was Vincent. Vincent had repeated the story of the robbery that he had previously told. In the Police Court he was so much injured that the Police Justice remarked, "They left you one eye to see." He had five dollars in his pocket when he went into the saloon after paying his bills and giving a few dollars to his trainer and paying his bills at the track. He probably spent two dollars in the saloon for drinks. To the best of his opinion he had three dollars left in his pocket. He last looked at his watch when he was crossing the ferry at about half past seven.

O F F I C E R P A T R I C K O ' B R I E N testified that he belonged to the Fifth Precinct and he arrested the defendant Vincent on the 22d of April last from a description furnished to him by the complainant. He arrested the man Keenan on the 20th of April, and Keenan was subsequently tried and acquitted. At about 9:15 o'clock on the night of the robbery he was on post in Vestry Street at the northeast corner of Vestry and Greenwich Streets. He saw two men on the northwest corner. One of the men had a very heavy gold watch chain. He afterwards recognized this man as the complainant. The other man was Vincent. Vincent had hold of the complainant's right arm, and the complainant appeared to want to cross the street in the direction where he, the witness, was standing, and Vincent appeared not to want to let him. He, the officer, walked over to see what the trouble was and the two men walked away. He, the officer, walked down to West Street and came back and stood on the corner of Canal and Vestry Streets for about five or ten minutes. Then he saw a man running up on the south side of the street at a very rapid pace. The man ran across Canal Street. He, the officer, followed, and arrested him. It was the man Keenan. He took Keenan back down Vestry Street and met McDonald. McDonald had lost his hat and one of his eyes was closed up and discolored. Upon the complainant's complaint he locked Keenan up. From information received from the complainant he looked for Vincent. He saw, on the 22d, Vincent crossing Canal Street. Vincent was with two other men. As soon as they saw him they began to run away, and after a chase he and another officer caught Vincent. Officer Scanlon and he caught Vincent. At the station house the defendant Vincent was identified by Keenan's wife and by McDonald. Keenan's wife identified Vincent as the man who came after her husband and took him out of the house on the night of the robbery. In his opinion the complainant had been drinking on the night of the robbery, but was not drunk. He walked straight and talked coherently, and appeared to be able to take care of himself if he were let alone.

Under Cross Examination, the witness testified that the defendant was detained in the station house on the night of the robbery. He had no hat, and his eye was discolored and he was somewhat intoxicated, and so he detained him in the station house. He made a complaint of intoxication against the complainant. In his opinion however, the complainant was not actually intoxicated, though he had been drinking. One of his objects was to detain him as a witness, but he really detained him because he had no hat and his eye was black and he would attract attention in the street.

J E R E M I A H K E E N A N testified that he knew the defendant Vincent. He saw him on the night of April 20th. Vincent came up to his, the witness's, house while he was at supper. He, the witness, intended to buy a pair of trousers in the Bowery after supper and Vincent said he would take a walk with him. At the corner they met a few friends of Vincent's. They went through Vestry Street, and there was a young man coming down the street with a man, and four or five of the young men crossed over, and the man that was being led by the young man hollered out, and he, the witness, went away. He did not remember swearing on his own trial that he saw Vincent take a watch and chain out of the pocket of the complainant when he had him up against the wall. Vincent was among the men that crossed over to where the complainant was with the other young men. He, the witness, ran because he didn't want to get arrested with the other young men.

Under Cross Examination, the witness testified that it was a pretty dark night. He could not tell who the man was that hollered. He did not know whether the young men crossed over to McDonald or some other man. He did not know anything about McDonald until he was arrested. On his, the witness's, trial McDonald charged him with participation in the robbery. McDonald charged that he held him up and robbed him. The trial took two days and the jury acquitted him. He believed that the complainant said on his trial that he had some liquor in him. He, the witness, worked for John Early & Co. He heard the man who was attacked holler, "Oh." There were four in the party that ran over, among whom was Vincent. He, the witness, was not drinking in a saloon with the complainant from twenty minutes to eight to half past nine o'clock that evening. To his knowledge Vincent was not in a saloon drinking with the defendant. Vincent came to his, the witness's, house about nine o'clock that evening. He, the witness, had never drank in his life with the complainant before his arrest. He had drank with the complainant since his acquittal. They had a drink and a cigar together. He had never seen Vincent drink with the complainant at any time.

C H A R L E S F . V I N C E N T , the defendant, testified that he was twenty-three years of age. He lived at 37 Clinton Street, Hoboken. He had been living there about nine months. He was not married. On the evening of the 20th of April he visited Mrs. Lundy's house, at the corner of Spring and Washington Streets, and stayed there until half past eight, and he met three young men there, and he went to Keenan's house and was there about twenty or twenty-five minutes, and he came down and waited for Keenan for a moment or two. Then one of these young men asked him for a cigar. He told him to wait until Keenan came down and he would get some. Keenan came down about five minutes afterward, ~~and~~ and they went into the liquor store at Desbrosses and Washington Streets and had a drink. Then they went up to Canal Street. They parted with the three men there and went up through Canal Street. A man stood on the corner and said that he had been robbed. There was a man by the name of Reed with him and he asked Reed to put him on the car, and Reed took him to Vestry Street to put him on a car. He, the defendant, and Keenan were together. Then they left him there. He, the defendant, and Keenan walked up through Vestry Street to Canal Street, and then the man who said he had been robbed began to holler. He, the defendant, walked into a cigar store, and Keenan went across Canal Street and was arrested, and he, the defendant, did not know that he was arrested until the next morning when Reed told him, the defendant, that there had been a robbery in Greenwich

Street, and that an officer by the name of Lyons had run after the man who committed the robbery. Besides Reed there was also a man named Louis on the corner when the man said that he was robbed. There were also two or three other young men that he only knew by sight. He, the defendant, crossed the street, but not where the man that hollered was. He went across to a cigar store and Keenan crossed the other way and was arrested. The man who claimed that he was robbed was holding onto an elevated railroad post in Greenwich Street with his two arms around it. He was drunk. He claimed at that time that he had been robbed in Greenwich Street. He was then in Vestry Street. He, the defendant, had nothing to do with robbing the complainant. He did not knock him down or touch him. He, the defendant, was not in a liquor store drinking with the complainant. Under Cross Examination, the defendant testified that he was perfectly sober on the night of the robbery, and so was Keenan. Keenan was mistaken about saying ~~xxx~~ that he, the defendant, crossed over to where the complainant was, and that immediately afterward the complainant cried out "Oh, Oh." In 1886 he pleaded guilty

OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,

against

Patrick Keenan

The Grand Jury of the City and County of New York, by this indictment, accuse

Patrick Keenan
of the CRIME OF SELLING INTOXICATING LIQUORS AND WINES AS A BEVERAGE ON SUNDAY, committed as follows:

The said

Patrick Keenan

late of the City of New York, in the County of New York aforesaid, on the tenth day of February in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, at the City and County aforesaid, the same being the first day of the week, commonly called and known as Sunday, with force and arms, certain intoxicating liquors and certain wines, to wit: One gill of wine, one gill of brandy, one gill of rum, one gill of gin, one gill of whiskey, one gill of cordial, one gill of bitters, one gill of ale, one gill of porter, one gill of beer, one gill of lager beer, and one gill of a certain intoxicating liquor to the Grand Jury aforesaid unknown, unlawfully did sell as a beverage to one

Thomas L. Conklin

and to certain other persons whose names are to the Grand Jury aforesaid unknown, against the form of the Statute in such case made and provided, and against the peace of the People of the State of New York and their dignity.

SECOND COUNT—

And the Grand Jury aforesaid by this indictment further accuse the said

Patrick Keenan

of the CRIME OF KEEPING OPEN ON SUNDAY a place licensed for the SALE OF STRONG AND SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS, WINES, ALE AND BEER, committed as follows:

The said

Patrick Keenan

late of the City and County aforesaid, afterwards, to wit: on the day and in the year aforesaid, the same being the first day of the week, commonly called and known as Sunday, being then and there in charge of and having the control of a certain place there situate, which was then duly licensed as a place for the sale of strong and spirituous liquors, wines, ale and beer, with force and arms, at the City and County aforesaid, the said place so licensed as aforesaid unlawfully did not close and keep closed, and on the said day the said place so licensed as aforesaid unlawfully did then and there open, and cause and procure, and suffer and permit, to be open, and to remain open, against the form of the Statute in such case made and provided, and against the peace of the People of the State of New York and their dignity.

Dear Recorder

You assigned me to defend W^m on Tuesday of this week, and I asked you to discharge him, but you desired further information about him. I call upon Mr. Underhill of the Union Line - (agent there). He made some inquiry about the man, but was unable to ascertain anything very definite about, except that he was a sailor aboard the Thymining, who turned up missing. He said, if you honor discharged him, he said to-morrow back to England on one of their boats. one sails to-morrow
