-----X

Before

vs.

: Hon. Frederick Smyth

John Delaney.

: and a Jury.
-----X

Tried October 27th, 1890.

Indictment filed October 23rd, 1890.

Indicted for grand larceny in the second degree.

APPEARANCES.

Assistant District Attorney Jerome, for the People.

R. J. Haire, Esq., for the Defense.

W I L L I A M   A R N I T, the complainant, testified that he was employed as a cook aboard of steam-ships. He left the steamship upon which he was employed on October 16th, 1890, at about noon. It was the steamship City of Washington. He had $20.00 in his possession when he left the ship. He visited several saloons in Fulton Street, and drank six or seven glasses of beer. He was somewhat under the influence of liquor, but knew what he was doing. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon, he had about $17.60 in his possession. He was then in West Street. He went into a saloon, near No. 18 West Street, and had a drink. Just after he came out of that saloon, and when he was opposite 18 West Street, the defendant came up behind him and kicked him up on the ankle and tripped him. Then the defendant put his hand into his, the complainant's, trousers pocket and took out his money and ran around a lot of trucks, and he, the complainant, lost sight of him. Next day, he, the complainant, saw the defendant sitting on a stoop, in Coenties Slip, reading a newspaper. He recognized the defendant, because he had seen him hanging around that neighborhood for about a year. He, the complainant, went to the First Precinct Station House and told the Sergeant at the desk where the defendant was, and the Sergeant sent an officer to arrest the defendant. After the defendant was arrested, he said to him, the complainant, "If you lost anything, I will pay it before I get into trouble." He, the complainant, said, "You are a fool. If you are innocent, you should not give me any money." In the Tombs Police Court, the defendant said to the Clerk, when the Clerk asked him what made him take his, the complainant's, money, that there were two others in it, and he whacked up the money. He, the complainant, at the time that his money was stolen, saw no other men than the defendant near him. In the Police Station, when the defendant was searched, $34. and odd cents were found in his possession.

D Under cross-examination the complainant testified that he got the money from the purser of the steamship City of Washington. He had just made a trip to Vera Cruz, and reached the dock the day before the larceny was committed. He received altogether $23.50. He left an order for a pair of trousers in Fulton Street, paid $2.00 on account, and he spent the difference, with the exception of 30 cents, which he found in one of his pockets, after the larceny, in different saloons. He, the complainant, had been convicted in the Court of Special Sessions of stealing pig iron, and had been sentenced to the Penitentiary for three months. When he was a boy, he was in a good many scrapes, but for ten years he had worked steadily and had kept honest. When he was a boy he was sent to Randall's Island and the Protectory.

OFFICER PATRICK COURTNEY testified that he arrested the defendant on the complaint of the complainant. The complainant came to the station house, on the day after the larceny, and reported to the sergeant that he had seen the man who had stolen his money in South Street the day before. He, the witness, was sent by the sergeant with the complainant to arrest the defendant. He found him sitting on a stoop in front of 23 South Street, reading a newspaper. He, the witness, asked the defendant if he knew the complainant, and the defendant said that he did not. He, the witness, arrested the defendant. When they had gone a short distance towards the station house, the defendant said that he wanted to make good the money. He said that he didn't want to get into any trouble, that he was there before and he wanted to make the money good, and give the defendant back his $17.00. The complainant had previously made his charge to him, the witness, in the defendant's presence. When the defendant was searched in the station house, $34.41 was found upon him. The defendant wanted at that time to give the complainant his $17.00, because he didn't want to get into any other trouble, because he had done time before in the Penitentiary and would like to get out of it. In the Police Court, when the Clerk asked him why he had taken the complainant's money, the defendant said that he did not get it all -- that he gave some of it to another party, by the name of Scott.

J O H N D E L A N E Y, the defendant, testified that he was 25 years of age, that he was born in Ireland and that he was a laboring man. He saw the complainant, on the day in question -- the day on which he claimed to have been robbed -- in front of 18 West Street, with a gang that the complainant hung around with there. They were drinking. They had just come out of a saloon. He, the defendant, recognized one man that was with the complainant. This man belonged around West Street and was known as "Scotty". Scotty said to him, the defendant, "Where are you going?" and he, the defendant, said that he was going to Brooklyn. Then Scotty asked him to have a drink and he, the defendant, said that he was not drinking. Then he saw, as he was walking away, two men run across the street towards the end of the pier opposite 18 West Street. Then he, the defendant, saw the complainant walk down to where Officer Scanlon was standing, and heard him say, "I have been robbed, sir." Officer Scanlon said, "Go on. You are crazy. You are drunk. You don't know what you are talking about," and he gave the complainant a kind of shove, and the complainant walked away. He, the defendant, did not trip up the complainant, or steal any money from him. After his arrest he did tell the officer who arrested him that he had been in prison and rather than go there again he would make the complainant's loss good, as he had $24.00 in his pocket, and he had just received a letter from his mother telling him to keep out of crime. He had been in the habit of sending his mother money, and had just sent her $15.00. He had been employed by a farmer named Rutherford, near Camden, New Jersey, and had about $50.00 saved, before he sent the $15. to his mother. He, the defendant, had been sent to the Elmira Reformatory about 10 years before his arrest, when he was between 16 and 17 years of age. He was committed to the Reformatory for larceny. He did not at any time say, after his arrest, that he had divided the complainant's money with Scotty.

Under cross-examination the defendant testified that he had worked along shore. He had just returned from Camden, New Jersey, and was trying to get a job when he was arrested. When he was sent to the Elmira Reformatory he was charged with stealing money. It was not stolen from a drunken man, but from a house in which he was stopping.

EDWARD MATHEWS testified that he kept an oyster stand at No. 1 West Street. He had known the complainant for about 15 years. On the day in question, he saw the defendant at the corner of West Street and Battery Place, walking around. He also saw Officer Scanlon there. He did not see the defendant at any time within hearing distance of the officer.

OFFICER EDWARD SCANLON testified that he had been connected with the police force for nearly 18 years. He knew the defendant by sight. He also knew the complainant by sight. On the 16th of October, 1890, the complainant did not come up to him, the officer, and say that he had been robbed, and he, the officer, did not say that the complainant was drunk or crazy, poke him in the back with his club and tell him to go away. What did occur was that the complainant said that he had been robbed, and that a man had taken money out of his pocket. He, the witness, did not know what man had robbed the complainant, but he saw the defendant, Delaney, running past. He, the witness, asked for a description of the defendant so that he could arrest him. The complainant described the defendant. He, the witness, knew the defendant by sight, from having seen him hanging round the corner.

she went on premises No 214

of seeing if her shoes were made that she had previously ordered

Before me she says that she asked John Diery the proprietor of said place if her shoes were ready. That said Diery requested her to await a minute and spoke of a man to George Koerig (now here) who went out and returned in about five minutes with something in a paper which appeared like a flask and gave the same to said Diery That said Lucy got a glass and poured something in it.

That said Koenig caught hold of defendant and said Lucy placed said glass to her mouth and forced her mouth open with the same and poured the contents of the same in her mouth and forced her to swallow the same and defendant became unconscious and did not awake from the stupor until 4. a. M. the following morning.

Defendant says that when she awoke said Sehl was on top of her and had his penis inserted in her private parts and was in the act of having sexual intercourse.

Defendant says that she saw said Koenig lying in the bed alongside of her at the time.

Defendant says that when she was aroused and found said

Deponent says that she screamed in a loud manner and said O'Leary threatened to tell her if she did not keep quiet ~~he would tell her~~ that said O'Leary attempted to assault her and was prevented by said Bray. Deponent says that when she was aroused from said stupor she discovered that said defendants had undressed her and the only thing she had on was her chemise

Deponent says that she ~~undressed~~ dressed herself and said defendants refused to permit her to leave until 7. a.m. Deponent says that she immediately discovered that $8<sup>40</sup> had been abstracted from her pocket book which was contained in her dress pocket. Deponent says that she went to the Station House and informed the Sergt. in command of the aforesaid fact and he sent officer Allan Day to No 214
