ISIDORE W. LUKACH, THE COMPLAINANT, being duly sworn, testified that he was an agent representing the David Meyer Brewing Company. The David Meyer Brewing Company was the owner, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, of the property in the store at 193 Oliver street on the 13th of November, 1893. The saloon was not open on that day. The property in the store consisted of saloon fixtures, and was worth about $500. Two or three days before the day in question he had locked all the doors of the place securely. There was one door leading into the hall, and two doors leading into the street. On the morning of the 14th of November, 1893, Police Captain Slevin telephoned to the brewery that the store had been broken into, and he, the witness, was sent down to look into it. He went to the station house, and there he saw a clock, a model of a ship, and a picture, which he identified as having been in the store and the property of the Brewing Company. He then went down to the store and saw that the front windows had been broken. He subsequently went to the store, and found that the things which he had identified in the police station were missing from the place.

CHARLES A. FLAY, being duly sworn, testified that he was an officer of the Municipal Police, attached to the Fourth precinct. Between the hours of 6 and 12, on the evening of the 13th of November, 1893, his post was Oliver street, from Chatham Square to water street. On that night he saw the defendant. He, the witness, was standing on the corner where the premises in question were located, and the defendant and two other men passed him. The defendant did not have anything with him at that time. The defendant was going towards the river then. About half an hour later, the defendant passed him again. The defendant was then in company with another man, and was going towards Chatham Square. The man who was with the defendant was John Keegan, the co-defendant. The defendant was carrying two pictures, and the co-defendant was carrying a clock. He, the witness, subsequently noticed that the windows in the saloon at 93 Oliver street had been broken. He made certain inquiries from persons in the neighborhood, and then secured the place and reported the matter at the station house. He also reported that he had seen the defendant and the co-defendant carrying the clock and the pictures. He then returned to his post and made a search for the defendant and co-defendant. He found the co-defendant in Cherry street, and arrested him. He took the co-defendant to the station house, and charged him with committing the burglary. The defendant entered the station house, and wanted to know what the co-defendant had been arrested for. He, the witness, said to the Sergeant, "This is the other man I want." The defendant said, "What for? I just got out of bed." This was about a quarter after 9 o'clock at night. He, the witness, said, "You got to bed very quickly, after I last saw you." The defendant said, "I didn't do anything." The co-defendant was known as "Dick, The Tinker." He told the defendant that the co-defendant and he were arrested for committing a burglary in Oliver street, and that he, the witness, had seen them with the property. The defendant said that he had been to a prize fight the night before, and was very tired; and that was the reason he retired early. The defendant said he lived at 51 Oak street. About fifteen minutes later, he, the witness, went to the defendant's residence. He found two pictures and a clock there, which he took to the station house. The property was afterwards identified by Mr. Lukach. On the way to court the next morning, he said to the defendant that he had found the property in his house. The defendant said, "Well, I will plead guilty. I suppose I will get a couple of years."

In cross-examination the witness testified that he had never said to the defendant that he did not believe him guilty. From what he had heard of the defendant, he considered the defendant a "pretty tough character." The premises in question were in the Fourth ward of the City of New York.

MR. LUKACH, being recalled, testified that the property which was taken from the premises in question was worth $5. or $10.

FOR THE DEFENCE, JOHN KEEGAN, THE CO-DEFENDANT, being duly sworn, testified that he had plead guilty to the charge of burglary in the third degree. On the night that he committed the burglary, he was accompanied by one John Smith. The defendant was not with him on that night. He did not know where Smith was at the time of the trial. The defendant was his cousin. He took the things which he had stolen to 51 Oak street, where the defendant lived. The defendant was not at home when he took the things there. The defendant's wife was not home at the time. The only persons he met at the defendant's house were three little girls. One of the girls asked him where he got the things, and he told her that he had bought them, and that he was going to leave them there for a little while.

In cross-examination the witness testified that he had served a term in the State Prison, for grand larceny, and had served a term in the Penitentiary for petty larceny. He lived at 45 James street. He was in the habit of visiting the defendant's house about two or three times a week. He was not in the habit of taking property which he had stolen to his bousin's house. His bousin had never been implicated in any crime with him. He did not pass the corner of Oliver and Cherry streets on the night in question with two men. He did not recollect the officer saying, in the station house, "Sergeant, this is the other man," meaning the defendant. He knew that the defendant had been in Elmira Reformatory, and that he remained there for five years.

ELLA KEEGAN, called by the defense, testified that the defendant was her father. She was ten years of age. Sje remembered the night that the co-defendant took the things to her father's house. It was Monday night. Her father and mother were out at the time. The co-defendant was with another man at the time. She put the things in the bed-room. She told her mother that the co-defendant had left the things in the house, but she did not tell her father. The defendant's sister went into the house and said that the co-defendant had been arrested. Her father then left the house.

JAMES J. KEEGAN, THE DEFENDANT, being duly sworn, testified, in his own behalf, that he lived at 51 Oak street. The preceding witness was his daughter. He was a laborer and worked alongshore. He belonged to the Non-pareil Association, and was somewhat of a professional prize fighter. On the night before his arrest he had been to a fight in Mace's hall, in Pearl street, and did not get home until about 2 o'clock. He heard of his cousin's arrest through his sister, and he went to the station house to see what he was arrested for. At that time he did not know anything about the burglary. He did not commit the burglary in question, nor did he assist the co-de-

In cross-examination the defendant testified that he had been convicted once before, and had been sent to the Elmira Reformatory. He was sentenced on the 9th of July, 1889, by Judge Gildersleeve, for stealing a pocket-book. He remained in the Reformatory five years. He was about sixteen years of age when he went to the reformatory. He was a married man before his conviction. He had pleaded not guilty, and had been convicted. He was a witness for himself on the former trial. He did not tell the officer, in the station house, that he had been asleep, and that he had just gotten up. The officer's testimony about seeing him walking through Oliver street with the co-defendant was not true. He did not tell the officer that he would plead guilty.

{ Court of General Sessions Part I.
Before Judge Cowing.

January 10, 1887.

Indictment for grand larceny in the first degree.

Tilly C. Turner sworn and examined. I live No. 9 Elm Street, Newark, I was in the city of New York on Christmas evening and I had about eight dollars in money in my left hand pants pocket which belonged to me, I was standing on a corner watching two young fellows in a masquerade suit, the prisoner was dressed in girls' clothing, the other young fellow appeared to be taller, he was dressed in a Mexican suit, broad brimmed hat and little bells all around it, the prisoner made a rush over toward the sidewalk just as I was going to move on, I thought he was going to run in a saloon and the first thing I knew he had his hand in my pocket, I grabbed his hand and kept hold of it but he snatched it out of my hand and went to run up Cherry Street, I gave chase after him and he wheeled around and I almost caught him but this other person, the Mexican, prevented me, I could not catch the woman but afterwards I identified him. I am sure that this is the boy who stole the eight dollars from my left pants pocket.

Cross Examined. The prisoner had a woman's suit on and a sort of fancy hat, I couldn't describe it exactly, it seemed to be made of fancy material, the dress was of dark color. Had he a false face on? His face was painted red. Can you identify this boy? Yes. Is it not a fact that you were thrown out of a saloon drunk? No sir, I made the complaint right off, I thought he run to a saloon, I went in, I was excited and asked if any young fellow dressed in girl's clothes was in tere and the saloon keeper said no. How long after that was it you saw the prisoner, when was he arrested, how long after he took your money? About eleven o'clock. Where did you see him? In the masquerade Hall where the masquerade was going on. What was he doing there, dancing? No sir, he was standing at the ante-room, there appeared to be a bar there, he was talking to this other young fellow, the Mexican, I ought to have had him arrested too. On Christmas day I was near the corner of James's Slip and Cherry Street, I meant to take the afternoon boat to Hartford, Conn., I understood there was a boat left at eleven o'clock at night, I did not know that all traffic was suspended a couple of months ago. The prisoner acknowledged afterwards that he was with the Mexican. I soent Christmas night in the Station House; during the day I was walking around the city, I might have had a couple of beers but I was not drunk.

Edward F. Brett sworn. I belong to the 4th precinct. Did you arrest the defendant at the bar on the night in question? Yes sir. At what time? Just about ten o'clock in the evening. How long after this alleged larceny was committed before you arrested him? I guess about an hour or so after. How was he dressed? He was dressed in a masquerade suit taken for a girl. Was the complainant there at that time? Yes sir. What did the complainant say in the presence and hearing of this defendant at the time you arrested him? I fetched him up to the ball room and I stood right along side the prisoner the complainant did not say anything, he went around and looked and came around and said, there is the man that took my pocket-book with the eight dollars and the ticket for Newark, N. J. in it. Did he pick out any other persons before? No sir. He looked around the room and pointed the prisoner out. I searched the prisoner and found nothing on him. I was present when the defendant admitted before Judge Duffy that he was with the boy who took the pocket-book.

Cross Examined. I did not find even a penny on the prisoner at the ball, it was the very night that this complainant alleges the money was stolen from him. I know the defendant and his people, I do not know that the boy works, he is the making of a pretty hard boy, he has got a respectable father and mother, I never knew of him being convicted of any offence but I know he travels with the hardest crowd of young boys that go around the 4th ward.

James Keegan sworn and examined in his own behalf. I am seventeen years old and am in the coal business; my father wanted me to go to work at Coney Island at race horses but my mother did not want me to. I said at the Station House when I had the masquerade suit on there was a lot of young fellows playing, some had Mexican and some had Indian and other characters, I did not say to the officer that I was with the boy who took the money; the complainant was pushed out of a liquor store and he staggered up against a man who was playing an acordion and he pushed him p~~pp~~the complainant caught me by the arm and a young fellow said, let go of that boy; he said, I want my pocket-book; we marched up to Pythagoras Hall, I did not run away when he grabbed me. I am positive I did not take the pocket-book.
