City and County of New-York, S.S.:

ALEXANDER B. BARNARD, of No. 114 Fourth Avenue, in the City of New-York, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That the house No. 116 Fourth Avenue, in said City, is a house of prostitution occupied by one Mrs. Teller; that men accompanied by loose women are continually going in and out of said house at all hours of the day and night; that men accompanied by women and young girls often come and ring deponent's door bell and ask for rooms, mistaking his house for the one next door, to the great annoyance of deponent and his family; that about two weeks ago said house was pulled by the police, and Mrs. Teller was taken before Justice Smith at Jefferson Market Police Court, when the hearing was adjourned until May 26th, 1884, at Essex Market Police Court; that on the last mentioned date the hearing of said case was adjourned indefinitely by the said Justice; that ever since she was arrested things have been going on in the same way as before. And deponent further says, on information and belief, that the said Mrs. Teller was arrested about a year and a half ago for keeping this same house as a house of prostitution, and was tried at the Court of Special Sessions, where she was convicted, but sentence was suspended on her promising to vacate said premises, which she has failed to do.
