Police Court— District.

City and County } ss.:
of New York,

of No.

530 W. 126th

Street, aged 28 years,

occupation

Cashier & Bookkeeper

being duly sworn

deposes and says, that ~~the premises~~ ^{a yacht} which was lying in the ~~South River~~ ^{East River} between127th & 128th Streets in the City and County aforesaid ~~the said being a~~ ^{the said being a}~~and which was occupied by deponent as a~~~~and in which there was at the time a human being, by name~~

~~was~~ ^{was} BURGLARIOUSLY entered by means of forcibly drawing the staple which held the hasp on the door of the cabin of said yacht, and entering said cabin with the intent to commit a crime or about 8th day of June 1883 in the nighttime, and the following property feloniously taken, stolen, and carried away, viz:

One telescope, one club signal, one vice Commodore signal, one pair of tinners, one coat, one flannel cap, one box of cartridges all of the value of ten dollars.

the property of Hepburn and deponent further says, that he has great cause to believe, and does believe, that the aforesaid BURGLARY was committed and the aforesaid property taken, stolen and carried away by

Hugh Goodwin and John Mulligan
(both run here)

for the reasons following, to wit:

That at about the hour of 6 o'clock P.M. on or about said date deponent locked the cabin door of said yacht, leaving said property therein and at about the hour of 10 o'clock A.M. the following morning deponent discovered that said cabin had been entered as aforesaid and said property taken therefrom. And at the hour of 3 o'clock P.M.

June 20th. Depnmt saw these defendants together and in company with each other on 12th Avenue between 190 and 131st Street. and at that time the defendant ~~Marceline~~ Goodwin had the tinner and the coat mentioned in this affidavit in his possession. Wherefore depnmt charges these defendants with being together and acting in concert with each other and burglariously entering the cabin of said yacht and stealing said property therefrom.

Tried JUNE 27TH, 1893.

indicted for ASSAULT, in the THIRD DEGREE.

Indictment filed JUNE 21ST, 1893.

APPEARANCES:

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY THOMAS J. BRADLEY,

For THE PEOPLE.

MR. WILLIAM F. BROWN,

For THE DEFENCE.

HERMAN SCHELLING, THE COMPLAINANT, being duly sworn, testified that he was a manufacturer lace curtains and silk embroideries, at East 149th street. He lived at 548, East 148th street. On the 10th of June, 1893, he saw the defendants, on Elton avenue, between 154th and 155th streets, in the neighborhood of 12 o'clock at night. . He, the complainant, Mr. Rohner, Mr. Stutz, Mr. Hermann, and Mr. Granwehr left Stein's place, on Elton avenue, where they had been bowling, to go home. Mr. Hermann and Mr. Rohner were walking with him, the complainant, and Mr. Granwehr and Mr. Stutz were walking together. When they arrived in front of a blacksmith shop, on Elton avenue, between 154th and 155th streets, the three defendants stood before them? He did not see where the defendants came from. The defendant Seibel struck at Rohner and knocked his hat off, and the hat fell down on the side-walk. Siebel gave Rohner a terrible blow on the back of his head, and, before he, the complainant, could understand the situation, he got

"a terrific blow in the face," from the defendant Siebel, which nearly knocked him senseless. The blood ran down his face and over his neck-tie, shirt and coat, and he "stood there, nearly the same as lame." The other two defendants, Gorges and Krost, jumped on Mr. Rohner and knocked him out in the gutter, and then the defendant Siebel punched Rohner on the back of his head, with his fist. He, the complainant, could not do anything, he was bleeding so terribly. He shouted for help, as hard as he could. Stutz and Granwehr went back to their assistants, and as Stutz reached them, the defendant Gorges took up a stone and fired it at Stutz, with his full strength, and Stutz dodged his head, and the stone did not hit him. Some men from Stein's place then came along, and the defendants ran away. He, the complainant, Stutz, Hermann, and Rohner followed the defendants to Third avenue. As he, the complainant, reached Third avenue, he was grabbed by the defendant Gorges. Gorges put his finger in his, the complainant's, mouth, and attempted to tear his, the complainant's, mouth open. Gorges took a strip of his, the complainant's, flesh off with his finger nail, and he, the complainant, bit Gorges's finger as hard as he could. He, the complainant, did not know whether he got a blow from anybody else or not, but Gorges got away. He, the complainant, saw a policeman and explained the case to him. He did not see any of the defendants after he bit Gorges's finger. Rohner went back to the place where he, the complainant, had lost his hat, and found the hat, and gave it to him, the complainant. They had done nothing whatever to the defendants before the defendants knocked off his hat.

In cross-examination the complainant testified that the side-walk on Elton avenue was about seven feet wide. Four men would walk in a line on that side-walk. The defendants were not going in a northerly direction; they were not moving. The defendants did not try to pass them, and they did not prevent the defendants from passing. He, the complainant, did not knock Gorges down. It was not while Gorges was on the ground that he put his finger in his mouth. He, the complainant, and his friends did not overtake Gorges in the hallway. He, the complainant, belonged to Mr. Stein's bowling club and he had been bowling on the night in question. He did not drink more than four glasses of beer on the night in question. Mr. Rohner was his partner.

TITUS ROHNER, being duly sworn, testified that he was a manufacturer of embroideries. The complainant was his partner. He saw the defendants on the night in question, on Elton avenue, between 154th and 155th streets. He, the witness, was going south at the time. He was accompanied by the complainant and Mr. Hermann. He, the witness, was walking on the inside of the side-walk. When they reached the middle of the block, between 154th and 155th streets, his hat was knocked off, and he saw three men standing in a line. He, the witness, bent down to pick up his hat, and he received a blow in the back. He was not positive as to which one of the defendant hit him, but he thought it was Siebel. He tried to get up and the other two defendants went at him and threw him into the middle of the street. While he was lying in the street one of the defendants (he did not know which one) hammered constantly on his neck and back, until he became quite stiff. He then heard somebody cry for help, and he got up. He saw the defendants run away. He then saw the defendant Gorges take up a paving stone and throw it at Mr. Stutz. He, the witness, then took up his hat and went down to Third avenue, and he saw the complainant talking to the policeman.

In cross-examination the witness testified that he had never seen the defendants before the night in question. He, the witness, did not do anything to the defendants to cause them to use him in the way they did, nor did he see the complainant or Herman do anything to the defendants. The defendants were standing still when he saw them. The defendants were not directly opposite his, the witness's, party; the defendants were standing in the angle of a building. He did not see the complainant strike the defendant Siebel. The defendant assaulted them without any provocation whatever. He, the witness, only drank about three glasses of beer on that night. He was perfectly sober when he met the defendants. He did not see the complainant and Gorges together in Third avenue; he came down after that. When he saw the complainant, on Third avenue, the complainant was all full of blood.

ALBERT STUTZ, being duly sworn, testified that he lived at 560 East 143rd street. He was a tin-smith. He saw the defendant Gorges on Elton avenue on the night of the 10th of June. He had been at the bowling club that night, and left it, about 12 o'clock, in the company of Mr. Hermann, Mr. Rohner, and the complainant. He, the witness, was walking about two blocks ahead of the complainant, in company with Mr. Granwehr, and he heard the complainant shout for help. He ran back as quickly as he could to where the complainant was. He saw the defendant Gorges there. Gorges fired a big stone at his, the witness's, head. He had not done anything to Gorges, and had never seen him before that time. Gorges then ran away, and he, the witness, followed Gorges down to Third avenue. He did not see either of the other defendants.

In cross-examination the witness testified that he did not see Gorges on Third avenue. When he saw the complainant on Third avenue he was covered with blood.

JACOB HERMANN, being duly sworn, testified that he lived at 675 154th street. On the night in question he was bowling in Stein's place. They left Stein's at 12 o'clock, and went down Elton avenue. He saw the three defendants in Elton avenue, between 154th and 155th streets. One of the defendants knocked Mr. Rohner's hat off, and as Rohner stooped to pick up his hat one of the defendants hit him. He, the witness, was struck by one of the defendants. He thought it was Gorges who struck him. As he was about to get up the man attempted to strike him again, and he struck the man. He saw one of the de-defendants on Third avenue, later, that evening, but he did not know which one it was.

JOHN W. FALK, being duly sworn, testified that he was an officer of the Municipal police, connected with the court squad of the Sixth District Police Court. He made the arrests in the case. The arrests were made on warrants.

In cross-examination the witness testified that one of the defendants was taken to court by his father, one was surrendered by counsel, and one, he, the witness, arrested.

FOR THE DEFENCE, HENRY SIEBEL, ONE OF THE DEFENDANTS, being duly sworn, testified, in his own behalf, that he lived in 124th street, with his mother and father. He was twenty-two years of age, and a carpenter. He worked for a man of the name of Briner, his brother-in-law. He had never been arrested before. He had never seen the complainant before the night in question. He, the defendant, was at the Columbus

Theatre. He returned at half past 11, and met the defendants Gorges and Krost on the corner of 154th street and Third Avenue. He asked Gorges and Krost where they were going, and they said they were going home. They went to Miller's saloon, but it was closed, and they started to go up to Stein's. They met the complainant and two other men. The complainant and his party wouldn't get off the sidewalk for them, and they wouldn't get off the sidewalk for the complainant. He, the defendant, "just fairly pushed one of the complainant's party, and his hat fell off." A general row then took place, they all fell down. They all got up, and Krost's hat was knocked off. Krost picked up his hat and ran away, and he, the defendant, seeing that there were too many for him, picked up his hat and ran, too. They ran down towards Third Avenue. He ran into 156th street, and through Elton Avenue, and went home. He, the defendant, did not hit any of the complainant's party; he only pushed them aside, so that he could get out of the mess. He did not punch the complainant in the face. He, the defendant, surrendered himself at the Police Court. On the Tuesday following the night in question he went to work at Unionport, and then he heard that a warrant was out for his arrest, and he surrendered himself. Krost lived in 155th street, between Melrose and Cortlandt avenues. Gorges lived at 155th street and Third avenue.

In cross-examination the defendant testified that he did not see the complainant all covered with blood. He was not sure that he had not struck the complainant and Rohner. He was so excited that he did not know who he struck. He had not drank anything on that night. He, the defendant, was kicked in the side. He didn't go to the police and make any complaint; he went home. He heard on Wednesday that there was a warrant out for his arrest, but he did not surrender himself until Friday night. He did not know any of the complainants, and he didn't know of any reason why they should desire to see him punished unjustly.

He, the defendant, did not see where Gorges went. He and Krost got down to Third Avenue before Gorges.

LOUIS GORGES, ONE OF THE DEFENDANTS, being duly sworn, testified that he lived at 3,022 Third Avenue, with his wife. He was twenty-five years old. He was a piano maker. He remembered the night in question. He first saw the defendant Siebel on that evening at the corner of 154th street and Third Avenue. Siebel was at that time in the company of Krost. They started to go up to Miller's, in Elton Avenue, but Miller's was closed. Stein's was on the same side of the Avenue, above Miller's. Finding Miller's closed they started to go to Stein's, and on the way up met the complainants. The complainants pushed against them, and they pushed against the complainants. The complainants wouldn't allow them to pass. He did not know how the hitting commenced, but all of a sudden they fell down. He, the defendant, lost his hat. He saw some more men coming down the avenue, and he ran down to Third avenue. He was chased by one of the complainants, and he ran down to his mother's door, at 155th street and Third avenue. The complainant, Schelling, caught him, and got him down and commenced to pound him. He, the defendant, called for help. He, the defendant, got four cuts on his head. Rihner and another man then commenced to kick him. Some how or other, he didn't know how it happened, the complainant got his, the defendant's, finger in his mouth. He, the defendant, shouted to the complainant to let go of his finger. He saw a man up in the window, whose name was Weiss, and he called to Weiss to come down and let him in. The blood was pouring down his neck, and his collar and everything was covered with blood. He did not notice any blood on the complainant, but he had not much opportunity for seeing, as the complainant was kicking and pounding him. Mr. Weiss didn't open the door, and he, the defendant, ran across the street to his own home, and went right up stairs. He, the defendant, was injured to such an extent that he was unable to go to work the next day. He had never been arrested before.

In cross-examination the defendant testified that on the night in question he had taken a walk down to the Harlem Bridge, with Krost. He, the defendant, had three drinks on the night in question, and Krost had three. They did not drink anything but beer. They got back to 154th street and third avenue about half past 11. He did not see any blows struck at all. He did not report the matter to the police at any time, because he didn't think it was necessary. He did not throw a paving stone at Stutz.

In re-direct examination the defendant testified that none of his friends were with him when the complainant was pounding him. On that evening he was perfectly sober.

HERMAN KROST, ONE OF THE DEFENDANTS, being duly sworn, testified that he lived at 631 East 155th street, with his father and mother. He was twenty-two years of age, and was a house-smith. He worked for S. B. Fedum, for whom he had been working over two years. He, the defendant, and Gorges were walking up Third avenue, and they met the defendant Seibel at 154th street and Third avenue. Then they started up to get a drink. They went up to Miller's saloon, but it was closed. All of a sudden they pretty nearly walked into the three complainants. He saw some one strike a blow, but he didn't know who it was. "Before he knew anything" two of the complainants were at him, and knocked him down and kicked him in the back of the head. He, the defendant, jumped up and ran down Third avenue and up 156th street to his home. He did not assault anybody, and he did not know who assaulted him. He had never been arrested before. He was perfectly sober on the evening in question.

In cross-examination the defendant testified that he did not jump on any one. He didn't say a word to the complainants. He did not hear any of the defendants exchange any words with the complainants. He didn't see Seibel strike Rohner. He did not see Rohner's hat knocked off. Although he, the defendant, had been knocked down, and his head had been cut, he did not report the matter to the police, because he didn't think much of it. A policeman left a notice at his house that he was wanted at court, and he went up to the court.

GEORGE F. WEISS, being duly sworn, testified that he lived at 3,023 third avenue. He was a barber, and had a place of business there. He knew all the defendants. On the night of the 10th of June, 1893, he saw the defendant Gorges. He was in bed, and he heard a noise, and he opened the window and looked out. He saw four or five men at one man, but he did not know who the man was who was down. He found out afterwards that it was Gorges who was down. One man was lying on top of Gorges, and the other men were kicking him. He, the witness, called out, "You fellows ought to be ashamed of yourselves. Why don't you let that man up?" They didn't let the man up, and he, the witness, called, "Police!". The men then ran towards 155th street, and Gorges ran across the street to his own house. . He knew the defendants to be decent, hard-working people. They all lived in that neighborhood, and he had never known them to be in any trouble before.

In cross-examination the witness testified that Gorges was a customer of his. He saw the complainant wiping blood from his hands, under the electric light.

FRANK BRINER, being duly sworn, testified as follows: He was a boss carpenter, and employed men to work for him. The defendant Siebel had been in his employ for two years and a half. His shop was at 687 East 153rd street. He knew Siebel's character for peace and quietness. Siebel was a peaceable man, as far as he knew. He had known Siebel about ten years. Siebel was his brother-in-law. He had never known him to be in trouble before. .

CAROLINE RAU, being duly sworn, testified that she lived at 676

East 154th street. She had known the defendant Siebel for three years. The defendant Siebel was a quiet, nice, working boy; she had never seen anything wrong in him. She had never known him to be arrested before.

HUGH MARTIN, being duly sworn, testified that he was a police officer. He lived at 644 East 146th street. He had known of the defendant Krost for several years. Krost was a peaceable, quiet boy. He had never known of Krost being in trouble before.

Indictment filed June 2, 1893.

Indicted for grand larceny in the first degree.

New York, June 19, 1893.

A P P E A R A N C E S:

For the People, Asst. Dist. Atty. Robert Townsend;

For the Defendant, J. W. McLoughlin, Esq.

SAMUEL PRICE, a witness for the People, sworn, testified:

I live at 173d. Street and Brook Avenue. I am a carpenter by occupation. At my home I also keep a liquor saloon. On the night of the 3d. of May I was on Rail Road Avenue and 177th. Street on my way home. I had between $155 and $160 in my vest. The pocketbook was in my hip pocket. I went into a saloon kept by a man named John Murphy. I saw the defendant there standing at a bar. I asked him if he would have something to drink with me and he did. We had two or three drinks together. After remaining there for about half an hour we went out. During the time I was in that saloon I had occasion to take my pocketbook out containing the large roll of bills. I could not say positively whether the defendant saw the roll of bills or not. He was standing by me at the time within a couple of feet of me. The defendant and I walked down Railroad Avenue talking about different things. We finally went into my own saloon and I asked my wife, who was behind the bar, to give us a drink. She did so. The defendant left. Shortly after he left I missed my pocketbook and I reported that to an officer, who went out in search of this defendant and finally arrested him. When he was arrested I told him he had the money in his pocket. The officer found the money on him. I could not tell positively just where the money was taken from me, but I did not miss it until after the defendant left my saloon.

Cross-examination:

While we were crossing a bridge at Railroad Avenue I felt the hand of the defendant in my pocket, but did not speak about it at that time. The officer told me in the defendant's presence that he arrested him in a lot and found my pocketbook on his person. When the pocketbook was shown to me part of the money that was in it when I last saw it was missing. Nobody else was near enough to me during the time I was in the company of this defendant to have taken my pocketbook except the defendant. I was frequently with the defendant during all the time he was with me that afternoon and treated him to drinks on several occasions.

CHARLES G. SMIDT, a witness for the People, sworn, testified:

I am a police officer connected with the 34th.

Precinct. I recollect seeing Samuel Price t about 9 o'clock on the 3d. of May. I saw him in Murphy's saloon at 177th. Street and Railroad Avenue. He made a complaint to me that his pocketbook had been stolen. I went over my post endeavoring to find some clue as to the whereabouts of his pocketbook. He told me of his suspicion of the defendant. I arrested the defendant sitting in a lot. When I took him to the Station House I searched him. I could find nothing until I got down to the leg of his pants and I then discovered the complainant's pocketbook inside his stocking. Before I found the complainant's pocketbook he told me that his right leg was hurt and that he had a bandage on it. I thought that was kind of queer and that led me to search more closely with the result that I found the pocketbook. The defendant said he knew nothing of how the pocketbook got into his stocking.

DEFENSE.

MARCUS H. GROLL, the defendant, sworn, testified:

I did not take the pocketbook of the defendant from his person. I have been working for several large grocery houses in this city and have always borne a good character. I do not know how the stolen property got into my stocking. I met this man in Murphy's saloon at half past four in the afternoon. I sat there with them awhile and went from there to his own saloon where we had another drink. I had been drinking considerable during that day and after leaving him I went and sat down in the lot and fell asleep. It may have been that somebody who stole this pocketbook put it into my stocking while I was asleep. I did not look at it and did not know it was there until the officer searched me and found it. When he asked me about it I told him I did not know how it got there. I am a married man and have two children. I have never before been arrested for any crime. I recollect everything that occurred that afternoon before I fell asleep. There was some boys playing in the same lot where I fell asleep and it may have been one of them put the pocketbook in my stocking..

The jury returned a verdict of guilty of grand larceny in the second degree.

 Adolph Gutlohn
 Court of General Sessions. Part I
 Before Judge Cowing. June 14th, 1893
 Indictment for grand larceny in second degree.
 I am an officer connected with the Central Park police force of this city and have been going on six years. I am always on duty there in citizens clothes. I was there on the 28th of May. I saw the defendant there on that day around the animal house. I saw him go round several women's pockets and feel their dresses. I saw him put his hand in two different women's pockets, but he abstracted nothing from them. I was waiting to get a better case on him. I followed him and watched. He was about to leave the Park. I guess I followed him for about half an hour. He was about to leave the 64th street entrance where I put him under arrest. When I got hold of him he claimed he had done nothing.
 I said, "I am an officer and you are under arrest." I brought him in the station house; he denied what I accused him of putting his hand in these different pockets. We searched him in the station house and found three pocket books on him, and he had the money all loose in his pocket. I guess eighty odd cents - the money was all scattered. and the pocket books found in different pockets. ~~He~~ He admitted taking the small pocket book, he first denied it. Going down the steps from the Arsenal on the way over to ~~the~~ Eighty Seventh street the 25th precinct he admitted taking it; he said that he took one of the pocket books from a lady's pocket in the elephant house. I brought him back to the Sergeant and he wrote the confession down. He told him he need not make a confession if he didn't wish to. He said he would tell the truth. He said there was about 40 or 50 cents in it when he took it. I took him to the Police Court afterwards. I heard the answers which he gave to the questions of the Judge. I heard the Judge advise him as to his rights. Cross Examined.

When I first saw the defendant that day about 5 minutes to seven o'clock in the evening round the Menagerie in Central Park. There were a number of ladies there at the time. I first noticed him go up where there was a lady and gentleman. I saw him put his hand in a ladies pocket. There was plenty of other people there, but those two appeared to be together as they walked away together. I could not tell exactly on which side the lady and gentleman was; there was such a crowd there. Do you know how that lady was dressed? Yes, she had a very remarkable dress on - it was a blue dress; she had no sash on her; the defendant came up on the right hand side of the lady behind her and the gentleman was on the left hand side of her. They stood looking at the animals; the prisoner was right at her side. I was standing a short distance away. I saw him put his hand in the woman's pocket and take it out. I am sure there was a pocket. I saw the lining of the pocket. I saw that he did not take any property out. I was about three feet from him and I let him go. He felt on the outside of the pockets of a dozen of women, I guess. I saw him put his hand into the pocket of another woman. I could not tell you what kind of a dress she had on, but I know it was not blue; there was a young lady with her. About 25 minutes after six o'clock he was about to leave the Park; he walked out of the 64th street entrance to Fifth Avenue where I put him under arrest. When I got to the station house I told the Sergeant that I arrested him on suspicion and stated what I saw him do. I knew that he had his hand in a pocket, but I did not know that he had any property on his person. I am sure the ladies had pockets in their dresses. I should judge it did not take him more than half a minute to put his hand in the pocket. I did not arrest him. I was waiting to get a better case on him.

James E. Gillen, sworn and examined, testified. I am connected with the Park Police of this city. I have been a Sergeant for one year. This prisoner was brought to me and given in my custody by the witness who last testified at 6:30 on the evening of the 28th of May. He was charged with being a suspicious person, and upon examination of his person property was found upon him. These three pocket books were found. I had a conversation with him. I asked him where he got those pocket books. He first told me they were all his property. In one of the pocket books I found a small photograph. I looked at it. I said, "Which is this, your mother or your sister?" He said that is my brother's little girl." I believe the photograph happened to be of a boy." It was a small miniature photograph. My recollection is that it was a boy by the clothing, but I am not positive. After he had left the station house he returned in a short space of time, and he said, "I want to tell the truth in this case." I brought him into the private office of the Captain and spoke to him in the presence of Officer Sarag. I questioned him as to his occupation, his character and habits &c. I asked him what he was going to the Park for on Sunday. He answered the questions which I put to him and I wrote it down in narrative form. I read it to him before he signed it. District Attorney read it as follows:

New York, May 24th 1893.

I, Adolph Guthrie confess of my own free will that I am guilty of having picked a lady's pocket in the Central Park. I came to the Central Park today for the purpose of making some money by picking pockets. I am a tailor by trade, but am at present unemployed. I found the broad black pocket book on the Camden Railway. The small black pocket book I picked from the pocket of a lady in the elephant car.

in the Central Park today. I own the little red pocket book myself. I make this confession of my own free will, and neither force, nor any threat on the part of those in whose presence I make it compels me to say what is contained herein. It is the truth.

(Signed) Adolph Gutlohn
Witnesses: William Savage, James E. Dillon. Sergeant of Park Police."

Did he speak English to you? Yes sir.
You read it to him before he signed it? I did.
Which pocket book was it that he said he took from the lady's pocket? That is the book that he indicated; the small red, pocket book he claims was his own, and the large one he claimed that he found on the Camden Railroad from Camden to Philadelphia. I believe it was. I do not remember ^{that} anything else was said on that occasion.

Cross Examined I took down his confession in narrative form. I told him he was not compelled to make the statement. I thought it was fair to let him know of his constitutional rights. He was not only willing but anxious to make the confession. I believe he is a German.

Adolph Gutlohn, sworn and examined in his own behalf testified. I came here two weeks ago from Philadelphia. I remember the 29th of May the day I was arrested. I did not put my hand in any lady's pocket that day. I saw a lady and gentleman at the Menageri. I passed through a big crowd. I shoved against her and that is all I did and walked out of the place. You heard the officer's testimony that he subsequently saw you put your hand in another woman's pocket, is that true? No. He said to me when he arrested me, "Come along," and he grabbed me and locked me up. I asked him what was the matter? I signed this paper when I got to the station house. I did not know what it was at all. I did not understand what the officer said.
 Did you know when you signed that paper that it was an admission that you picked a pocket and came there for the purpose of picking pockets? No.
 I came from Philadelphia to New York to get a job, and on Sunday afternoon I went to the Park to look in and "pass the time"
 The pocket book now shown me I bought in Philadelphia, and the little black pocket book I found behind the lady's foot in the elephant house. I stooped down and picked it up and put it in my pocket and I went out of the place. I never knew what was in it till I was arrested. I told the officer the same story. I told him I found it and that was all.

Cross Examined. I did not ask the lady whether or not she lost a pocket book. I stooped down and put it in my pocket. I did not know who it belonged to. Did you tell the officer when you were arrested that there was a picture of your brother's child in the pocket book? No. I found the other pocket book on a ferry boat in Camden. I had three pocket books when I was arrested. I did not read the examination paper when I was in the Police Court. I did not say in answer to a question "I am guilty." I am a button hole maker. I stopped in the Mascott hotel when I came to New York. I said in the Police Court that I lived at 61 Bowery which is a hotel. My brother is in the fur business at 115 Mercer street. I have sent for him, but he did not come to see me. I have never been arrested before. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of an attempt at
