Joseph Ravello, being sworn says -

I am the complainant in the above-entitled action. I cannot speak English. The defendant above-named is my brother and had been in this country three years. On December 25th, 1888, I had a talk with my brother in a saloon in Sullivan Street in this city. I was demonstrating with him for not being steady and attending to his work. Also I had told him about a letter ~~we~~ I had received from our parents in Italy asking me to try and keep him, my brother, straight and at work. While we were talking my brother took a knife from his pocket and put it up his sleeve. After I had left the saloon I was standing on the corner of Watt and Sullivan streets talking with Vincenzo Varella when my brother unobserved by me approached and stabbed me three times. I was in the doctor's charge as a result of the wounds I then received for ten days. I was confined to bed for eight days. I did not at any time lay my hand upon my brother. The attack was so sudden and unexpected that I had no opportunity to defend myself and did not even know at the time that my assailant was my brother. I have heard stated to me the contents of the affidavit of Nicola Lavarino verified the 18th day of April, 1889, made herein. This statement was made to me by Michael Mulieri. Said affidavit is absolutely false so far as it relates to my attacking or quarrelling with my brother in a saloon on December 25th, 1888. I did not threatened to kill any body on that day or at any other time and had no quarrel or trouble with any one in any saloon on December 25th, 1888. I have been informed that this affidavit is to be used upon a motion in the above-entitled action.

0282

I am the one of the official interpreters and was such in January, 1889. I was in attendance upon the Court of General Sessions of the Peace of the City and County of New York every day during January, 1889, when the said Court was in session. In January 1889 I was the only official interpreter attached to said Court who spoke the Italian language. I cannot now recall the above-named defendant, Pasquale Ravelli, but I am very particular in all cases in which I am called upon to interpret in said Court to translate clearly and intelligibly to defendants what may be said to them. At the time defendants are called upon to plead I am particularly careful that they understand the nature of the questions put to them and know what they are doing when entering a plea of guilty. While I cannot remember the case of the defendant above named, yet I swear that in no case where I have interpreted for an Italian who has pleaded guilty have I allowed such defendant to do until I have fully explained to him the nature of his act.

I am an officer of the Municipal Police of the City of New York and was such in December, 1888. I arrested the above named defendant upon the 25th day of December, 1888, upon the charge of stabbing Joseph Ravelli, his brother. The said defendant was arrested by me about ten minutes after the stabbing which occurred about 20 minutes after eight o'clock in the evening of December 25th, 1888. The said defendant was not then under the influence of liquor, nor was his brother Joseph Ravelli. I found the knife with which the stabbing was done in the defendant's pocket. It was a clasp knife with a blade about three inches in length. It was covered with blood. In my opinion the defendant is a more powerful man than his brother whom he stabbed. I know nothing of the occurrence of my own knowledge except as to making the arrest. There was no evidence of violence whatever upon the defendant when I arrested him. J O S E P H R A V E L L I , being sworn says:

I am the complainant in the above entitled action. I cannot speak English. The defendant above-named is my brother and had been in this country three years. On December 25th, 1888, I had a talk with my brother, in a saloon in Sullivan Street in this city. I was remonstrating with him for not being steady and attending to his work. Also I had told him about a letter I had received from our parents in Italy asking me to try and keep him, my brother, straight and at work. While we were talking my brother took a knife from his pocket and put it up his sleeve. After I had left the saloon I was standing on the corner of Wall and Sullivan Streets tsalking with Vincenzo Varella when my brother unobserved by me approached and stabbed me three times. I was in the doctor's charge as a result of the wounds I then received for ten days. I was confined to bed for eight days. I did not at any time lay my hand upon my brother. The attack was so sudden and unexpected that I had no opportunity to defend myself and I did not even know at the time that my assailant was my brother. I have heard stated to me the contents of the affidavit of Nicola Lavoimo verified the 18th day of April, 1889, made herein. This statement was made to me by Michael Mulieri. Said affidavit is absolutely false so far as it relates to my attacking or quarrelling with my brother in a saloon on December 25th, 1888. I did not threaten to kill anybody on that day or at any other time and had no quarrel or trouble with anyone in any saloon on December 25th, 1888. I have been informed that this affidavit is to be used upon a motion in the above entitled action.

I am one of the official interpreters of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace of the City and County of New York and was such in January, 1889. I was in attendance upon the court of General Sessions of the Peace of the City and County of New York every day during January, 1889, when the said court was in session. In January 1889, I was the only official interpreter attached to said court who spoke the Italian language. I cannot now recall the above named defendant, Pasquale Ravelli, but I am very particular in all cases in which I am called upon to interpret in said court to translate clearly and intelligibly to defendants what may be said to them. At the time defendants are called upon to plead I am particularly careful that they understand the nature of the questions put to them and know what they are doing when entering a plea of guilty. While I cannot remember the case of the defendant above named, yet I swear that in no case where I have interpreted for an Italian who has pleaded guilty have I allowed such defendant so to do until I have fully explained to him the nature of his act.

One leather pocket book containing good and lawful money of the the property of Deponent and that this deponent from the fact that at about the hour corner of 11th St & 6th Avenue and telling Clements then pushed her away and came out of the saloon with her hand bid her

And after walking a few yards Clements discovered that his pocket book was missing.
Clements then walked over to 5th Avenue and found the defendant standing on the corner caught hold of the defendant and accused her of taking his pocket book and while Clements had hold of her Clements saw his pocket book in her muff. Clements then looked in his pocket book and discovered that the twenty one dollars had been taken there from.

Clements then held the defendant until he
