Indictment filed February 20th, 1890: Hon. Frederick Smyth Indicted for burglary in the third : and a Jury.
degree. :

Tried April 14th, 1890.

APPEARANCES:

Assistant District Attorney Davis for the People:
John G. Heinzelman, Esq., for the defense:

Louis Delmar, the complainant, testified, through the Official Interpreter, that he lived at 137 West 27th Street. On February 19th, 1890, he owned a horse, which was stabled at 418 West 13th Street. The horse was put in to the stable about half past seven o'clock on the evening of February 19th, 1890, and the stable door was fastened with a padlock and chain. The horse was valued at $75. He missed the horse on the following morning at 4 o'clock, when he was informed by his driver that the horse was gone. The door had been forced open, and the padlock had been taken off. He made a complaint at the Charles Street Police Station. Then he and an officer and Henry Mc Nally who had also lost a horse and wagon went to the horse market in 74th Street and the East River. He found his, the complainant's horse, in the possession of the defendant, in 68th Street near the market.

Henry Mc Nally of 414 West 13th Street, testified that he was a peddler. On February 19th, 1890, he accompanied the complainant to the horse market, in 74th Street, and they stood around, looking for the complainant's missing horse. He, the witness, had lost a set of harness. They saw the defendant pass through the market, and the complainant followed the defendant. A few minutes afterwards he saw the complainant standing near a wagon, at the corner of the Boulevard and 68th Street. There was a horse attached to the wagon. There was a police officer there at the time. He, the witness, recognized the harness on the horse as his own. The wagon belonged to a Mr. Flaherty, and the horse belonged to the complainant, Delmar. In the station house, he heard the defendant say to the Sergeant that he worked on the subway. When he was charged with stealing the horse, harness and wagon, he made no reply. U

Under cross examination, the witness testified that he had not asked the defendant's mother for money. But the defendant's mother had called upon him, and had offered to pay him for any loss that he had sustained. He, the witness, had lost his harness from the same stable that Mr. Delmar had lost his horse from. He, the witness, did not know the defendant's mother's business, but he had heard that she was a professional nurse.

John Flaherty testified that he lived at 405 East 28th Street. On February 19th, 1890, he was the owner of a wagon, which he kept in a stable on the corner of 10th Avenue and 15th Street. He missed the wagon at about four o'clock on the following morning, and about three o'clock in the afternoon he was informed that it was at the door of the police station. He found it there, and Mr. Delmar's horse was attached to the wagon by means of Mc Nally's harness.

Officer Thomas Coleman testified that he was attached to the 16th Precinct. He went on duty at midnight on February 19th, 1890. His post included West 15th Street from a point west of 10th Avenue to the North River. He knew where John Flaherty kept his wagon -- a light wagon. Mr. Flaherty usually kept it on the south west corner of 10th

Avenue and 15th Street. At about 2 o'clock on that morning he saw the defendant ride up on horse back to Mr. Flaherty's wagon, and hitch the horse to the wagon. He, the witness, asked the defendant where he was going with the wagon, and he said that he was going to the market. The defendant also said that the wagon belonged to his father, and that his father was not feeling well that morning, and that he was going to drive down to the fish market for his father. He saw the defendant hitch the horse to the wagon and drive down 10th Avenue.

Officer William H. Byrne, testified that he was attached to the 19th Precinct, and his post included the horse market. , On February 19th, 1890, he arrested the defendant in 68th Street, between 1st Avenue and the Boulevard, upon the complaint of Mr. Delmar. The defendant then had in his possession the stolen horse, wagon and harness. He, the witness, asked the defendant what he was doing there, and the defendant said that he had come over to see the horses at the horse market. The defendant also said that he lived up in 143rd Street. He, the witness, took the defendant to the police station and a complaint was made by Mr. Delmar. The complainant denied all knowledge of the stealing of the horse, wagon or harness, and said that he knew nothing at all about them. On the way to the police court the defendant said to him, the witness, that he, the witness, could fix the matter for him. The defendant said, "If you can square this thing for me, I will put a feather in your cap. I know a man over my way that laid out a police man, and I'll put you in the way of getting him." He, the witness, told the defendant that he could not have anything to do with a settlement.

For the defense, Julia Carson testified that she lived at 290 West 143 Street. The defendant was her brother. Their mother was a nurse. The defendant was at home all of the night of the 19th of February, 1890. She let him into the house at about fifteen minutes before 12 o'clock. The witness's husband and children were in bed, and her mother was out, nursing a patient. She let her brother in and saw him go to his bedroom. She saw him in the morning coming out of his bedroom, at about half past seven. He did not leave the house until about eight o'clock that morning
