The People vs. James O'Neill
Indictment for grand larceny in the second degree Martin Walton sworn. The last place I worked was in Pennsylvania. I am in the house of detention now. On the 23rd of June I was in some street in this city and saw the prisoner. I came over from Jersey city in the morning, I met him in the afternoon. I cannot tell what saloon it was I met him in. I treated him a few times and when I went out on the street O'Neill snatched my pocket book, he did not seem to run, I got hold of him I had fifteen dollars in my pocket book and some change besides. I was about to put the pocket book in my pocket and he snatched it from my hand. I held him until the officer came. Officer Day took him in charge. I do not remember seeing the defendant searched at the station house. I was not very sober at the time. I have not seen my pocket book since. Cross Examined: I worked 28 miles from Philadelphia. I left there Monday night and crossed the ferry from Jersey city about five o'clock in the morning. When I arrived in New York I walked up and down and had some drink. I met the defendant and took several drinks with him. I could not swear how many saloons I went into with him before he snatched the pocket book from me. I remember leaving him to buy some clothes and coming back to a saloon; he did not treat any, I did all the treating. I do not recollect that when Officer Day came up that a bystander handed me the pocket book he having picked it off the street; the officer did not show me the pocket book in the station house. I earned the money I had working on a railroad.

Dennis Day sworn. I am a police officer and on the day in question arrested the prisoner on the corner of North St. and Park Row on the 21st of June at half past three in the afternoon; the complainant had hold of the defendant by the arm. I asked the complainant what was the matter? He said the man stole his pocket book, that he was in a saloon and saw him steal it. I asked him how much was in the pocket book? He told me a ten dollar bill, a two dollar bill and two silver dollars. The prisoner had two silver dollars in his hand, and on the way up to the station house I saw part of a bill sticking out of his pocket, I pulled it out; it was a ten dollar bill and a two dollar bill together. The pocket book was handed to me by a man of the name of McKernan; he is not here. The prisoner said he had only a ten dollar bill and that it was his. The complainant was under the influence of liquor; he said that the prisoner and himself were in a saloon and he was in the act of putting the pocketbook in his pocket when the prisoner grabbed him and ran.

James O'Neill, sworn and examined in his own behalf testified. I live in 102 Mott St. I am a fireman and work along shore now. I was sent to Blackwells Island for a month for being drunk. I worked down on the Hartford dock. On the morning of the 22nd of June I met the complainant about 8 o'clock; he was in ^{front of} one of those fancy houses. I said, "What are you doing there?" They are not open yet." He said, "Where can we go for a drink? I am a stranger in the city." We went down into a place corner of Roosevelt and Chatham St. and we had a few more drinks. He left me there and might be away two or three hours. I went into another saloon and he returned and we had more drinks. He went out and met with a man and shook hands with him; he said, "This is an acquaintance of mine, I must part with you." I said, "all right." I stayed there for a few minutes, and on my way going out I picked up this pocket book; he followed me and grabbed me and said, "It is mine," I said, "it is not," he held me and took the pocket book off me. The officer arrested me and I was taken to the Tombs, and he made a charge against me of taking twelve dollars as far as I could understand. When I woke up in the morning in the Tombs I had five cents in my pocket. Cross Examined. I did not know whose pocket book it was when I saw it on the floor. I did not throw it away I could not tell you what kind of a looking pocket book it was. I had been off the Island twelve days and had been working along the docks loading vapors. I worked for Mr. Smith in Oak St two days, he paid me 25 cents an hour. I could not tell you the names of all the men I worked for. I slept in lodging houses. It is not true what the officer said that he found a ten dollar bill sticking out of my pocket and that I had two silver dollars in my hand. I was charged once with stealing a watch from a man but I was acquitted.

The jury rendered a verdict of guilty.
