New York, Sept 23rd, 1889.

Hon. John R. Fellows,
District Attorney,
New York City.

Dear Sir:-

There is confined in the Tombs a client of mine by the name of Euphrosine Pflader, upon the charge of bigamy. She has a few hundred dollars in the Bowery Savings Bank and the parties claiming to be her husbands are making every effort in their power, with the aid of some outsiders, to get possession of her money and they promise her that if she will give it up they will not appear against her before the Grand Jury. They further say "that she would have been indicted before this but that they have made excuse for not appearing in order to give her a chance to settle with them". I have investigated the case with considerable care and extortion seems to be the prime motive influencing the complainant. I call your attention to the above in order that no unnecessary delay may occur in finding the indictment. She is anxious for a trial or her discharge if no bill is found.

Very Respectfully,

Yours, &c.,

R. J. Haire.

Assistant District Attorney Macdona for the People.

Messrs. ~~W. B.~~ Solomon and Benjamin Oppenheimer, for the Defense.

R I C H A R D B E H R E N S, the complainant, testified that he lived at 71 Vandam Street, and was a truck driver. On the 5th of October, 1889, he was up at 59th Street and Third Avenue, and had a load for Bloomingdale Brothers. As he turned his truck, the wheel of his truck collided with a grocer's wagon in 59th Street. He, the complainant, had very little room to turn, because workmen were digging the subway on the opposite side of the street. The grocer's wagon was standing there without any horse harnessed to it. The defendant ran out of the grocer's store, and caught hold of the complainant's horse and called him, the complainant, down off his seat. He, the complainant, got down with the intention of shoving the wagon back, and the defendant struck at him and he dodged the blow and struck the defendant, and the defendant kicked him and he kicked the defendant. Then he, the complainant, ~~started~~ started to get back upon his truck, and was half way up on the wheel when some one halloed out, "Look out." He, the complainant, turned and saw the defendant throw a stone. He, the complainant, tried to dodge the stone, but could not. He, the complainant, at that time had disentangled the wheel of his truck from the wheel of the grocer's wagon, and was about to go upon his way. The stone struck him upon the left temple. He, the complainant, was taken to the hospital, but he left the hospital after the wound was dressed. The stone knocked him, the complainant, senseless, and he was taken to the hospital in an ambulance. When he came to there was an officer standing near him. The officer had arrested Frese, and asked him whether Frese was the man that had struck him with the stone.

Under Cross Examination, he testified that he never before had any trouble with the defendant, and had no feeling whatever towards him. He, the complainant, had not been drinking that day, because he did not drink intoxicating drinks. He had been a driver for eleven years--since his fourteenth year--and he was turning from Third Avenue into 59th Street when the collision occurred. He, the complainant, did not drive into the defendant's wagon intentionally. The defendant, after he had seized his, the complainant's, horse by the head, called out to him, the complainant, "Come down off that seat." He, the complainant, got down, with the intention of helping to clear the two wagons. His, the complainant's back was turned to the defendant, and he was climbing up on his truck, when he heard the warning cry.

T O N Y K E N D A L L testified that he was a truck-driver, and that he lived at 408 West 50th Street. He was in East 59th Street near Third Avenue on October 6th, at the time of the difficulty between the complainant and the defendant. He was standing near a pedlar's wagon near Bloomingdale's store--in front of the store adjoining Bloomingdale's. He saw the complainant get down off his truck and look at the wheel that was caught in the grocer's wagon. Frese thereupon struck at the complainant with his fist, and the complainant dodged the blow and struck the defendant. Then the defendant kicked at the complainant, and the complainant kicked back. Then just as the complainant was getting back on his truck, the defendant threw a stone, and it struck the complainant upon the head. The stone was part of a paving stone; it was quite large. After the complainant fell upon the sidewalk unconscious, the defendant walked into the grocery, and an officer came and arrested him. He, the witness, had never met the complainant before the difficulty, nor the defendant either. There were a good many stones lying in the street near where the difficulty occurred, and the defendant stooped down and picked up a stone.

L O U I S T R O S T testified that he lived at 518 East 16th Street, and was employed at 236 East 59th Street driving a newspaper wagon. He saw the fight between the complainant and the defendant. He corroborated the complainant's account of the fight.

P H I L I P J. M c M A N U S, an inspector of the Stock Quotation Telegraph Company, of 49 Cedar Street, testified that he was in 59th Street near Third Avenue at the time of the difficulty. He corroborated the complainant's account of the difficulty.

O F F I C E R W I L L I A M G. N E E L Y testified that he was attached to the Twenty-third Precinct. On the 5th of October he arrested the defendant about eleven o'clock in the morning, and he confronted him with the complainant, and the complainant identified him. The complainant was insensible when the witness first saw him. There was blood upon his head. He, the witness, left the complainant, who was unconscious, in charge of Roundsman Sullivan, and he, the witness, went to call an ambulance. The stone was handed to him, the witness, by a bystander. Three men identified it as the stone that had been thrown at the complainant.

For the Defense, J O H N B O D E N S T E D T testified that he lived at 155 East 59th Street. The defendant worked next door in a grocery. He, the witness, was sitting at his window on the first floor of his house. The complainant drove his wagon from Third Avenue and hit the grocer's wagon, which was standing at the curbstone. Then the defendant came out from the grocery and spoke to the complainant. He, the witness, could not hear what he said. Then the complainant got down off his wagon, and struck the defendant in the face. The defendant stumbled forward, and caught his hat, which had fallen from his head, and also caught ^{up} the stone. He held it in his hand for a moment or two. Then he saw the defendant throw the stone toward the complainant's truck. He, the witness, saw no more. At the time the stone was thrown the witness could not see the complainant, who was behind his wagon.

J O H N F R E S E, the defendant, testified that he was seventeen years of age, and was born in Bremen, Germany. He came to the United States in 1886. His father and mother still lived in Germany. He worked for Henry Michael, grocer, at 155 East 59th Street at the time of his arrest. He had been working for Mr. Michael about two years. He, the defendant, had never been arrested before. The ~~def~~ complainant drove purposely, apparently, into Mr. Michael's wagon, and he, the defendant, told him to keep away from the wagon-- that he had plenty of room in the middle of the street and not to touch the wagon. The two wagons were disent tangled, and then the complainant got down off his truck, and, just as he, the defendant, was about to hitch the horse between the shafts, the complainant struck him in the neck. He, the defendant, did not see the complainant at the time he struck him. The complainant struck him several times in the face when he turned and faced him, and he, the defendant, fell upon his side, and while he was down he caught up the stone. He got up on his feet and held the stone up in his hand, and the complainant rushed at him again, and he threw the stone. He did not wish to hurt the complainant--he only wished to keep him from striking him again. There was a man on the truck with the complainant, and he got off the truck at the time that the complainant did. He did not throw the stone when the complainant was climbing up on his truck.

Under Cross Examination, he testified that he was arrested right in front of the store, and he did not attempt to run into the store or to avoid arrest.

H E N R Y M I C H A E L testified that he was a grocer at 155 East 59th Street. The difficulty between the complainant and the defendant occurred in front of the grocery. He, the witness, had been in business for twenty-five years. The defendant was in his, the witness's, employ. The defendant had always been a very quiet, honest, peaceable boy. He had never had any trouble with any one before, and had never been arrested. He, the witness, saw the complainant drive into his, the witness's, wagon, and the complainant then got down off of his wagon and commenced to quarrel with the defendant, and struck the defendant in the face. That was all that he, the witness, saw. He was then called to attend to a customer.

Under Cross Examination, the witness testified that he could not say whether the defendant fell when the complainant struck him. He did not see the defendant knocked down. He, the witness, did not go to the assistance of his employe.

LENA ARFMANN testified that she was acquainted with the parents of the defendant, who lived in Germany. She was the defendant's aunt. The defendant was a boy of good character, and had never been in any trouble before.

your deponent was forced to pawn even her underclothing that they might buy, with the few cents thus obtained, the barest necessities of life; and that finally when they had literally nothing — reduced to absolute want and the deepest distress, and with a babe about to be born to them, crazed with want and despair, deponent did take the articles mentioned in the indictment herein, and pawned them for a few dollars — about ten. Deponent further says that her said husband knew nothing of the taking, nor did he do, or assist, or have knowledge at the time of the pawning, but some time thereafter he discovered the pawn tickets in her possession, and deponent then confessed the facts to him. He informed her it was his purpose to redeem and return the articles as soon as he could, and as a precaution fearing the tickets might become mislaid he made a memorandum of the numbers on them, in a memorandum book. Deponent further says she never has been arrested nor at any times before accused of any infraction of the law, whatever.
