

March 12, 1965 12 noon - Friday

I arrived at the Audubon ballroom on February 21, 1965 at about 3 PM. I was with my sister, but she left me to sit with another sister. I seated myself in booth #1. Malcolm X was introduced and I saw 2 men jump up, one saying "Get your hands out of my pockets." They had been sitting in the left row of seats about 10 to 15 rows back from the front, which would be the section of seats directly to my left in front of me. When they jumped up I started toward them up the aisle and got to about booth #9 when I heard shots coming from the left and pile of me nearer the stage. As soon as I heard these shots, I fell on the floor, face down and remained there until other people started to get up. I did not see who the people shooting were, and I cannot recognize the men who jumped up. I have been shown photos by Detective Confrey and from these photos I cannot say these people were, or were not at the Audubon ballroom that day, as I don't recall seeing any of the people in the photos. I don't know whether the men who jumped up are or are not the men shown me in the photos.
