THE PEOPLE

vs.

EDWARD GREEN.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS, PART I.

BEFORE JUDGE FITZGERALD.

Thursday, November 20, 1890.

Indictment for grand larceny in the second degree.

THOMAS PERRY sworn and examined.

I am a sailor and have been three years in the service, I am at present on the receiving ship Vermont; on the 2nd of Novmeber I was in a saloon on the Bowery between eight and nine o'clock in the morning, I saw the Defendant there, I do not know the name of the saloon nor the name of the street but it was a corner saloon. I was going down and met a ship-mate of mine and he asked me to stand drink, I said certainly and we went into this saloon; this prisoner and a lady talked about this other sailor and we went into a back room, the prisoner, the female, me and the other sailor, we sat down at the table; there were five or six persons in the room altogehter, I paid for the drinks, I took silver out to pay for the first round, I think it was from fifty-five to seventy cents. My ship-mate called for the next round and he was a quarter short, and I pulled the bills out of my pocket; I had eleven dollars, a five dollar bill and six single dollar bills and a twenty-five cent piece. I took the quarter out and rolled up the bill and put the roll down in my pocket again. In a few minutes after we drank this drink, the prisoner came around and put his hand on my shoulder; he says, "excuse me for a minute" and dove his hand down quick, he caught me by the hand like that (illustrating) . My ship- ate said, "what did he get, how much did he take?" I did not say anything until I went outside, I met an officer and told him and he directed me up to the police station, I went and made a complaint to the police; I felt his hand in my pocket when he dove it down and I made a grab; I am sure it was the hand of the prisoner that I felt, I can swear to the man; I made no mistake, I gave him in charge to the officer, the officer did not go with me to the liquor store, I went in and called the prisoner out and told the officer that he was the man. Shortly after I went to the police station I went back to the saloon but the prisoner was not there; then I went the second time and the prisoner came in after a while. I did not speak to him when he came in but went out for the officer and he took him in charge; I told him he took eleven dollars off me and the prisoner said, "tut man, you must be mistaken." When I gave him in charge of the officer he denied ever seeing me before but up in the other Court he acknowledged sitting at the table with me. I did not get any portion of the money back.

CROSS EXAMINED.

I am positive that I counted my money before I went into the saloon and that was all the money I had when I left the Vermont. I was off on leave of absence from Saturday night to Monday; this happened on Sunday, I guess I left the Vermont on Saturday about five o'clock; I don't know what time on Saturday night I arrived in New York; I stopped at a hotel in the Bowery, I got there about ten or eleven o'clock; I was not in two saloons on the Bowery that night, I got up in the morning about a quarter to eight; I met Blue-jacket, my ship-mate between eight and nine on Saturday night; I was not under the influence of liquor when I complained to the policeman. The women who were sitting at the table were strangers to me, the Defendant sat next to me; I am positive that I was not under the influence of liquor when I was in this saloon, I cannot be mistaken when I say that the Defendant was in there. I did not see a police officer when I went outside first, I waited on the corner until he came up, I would not recollect the number of the place on the Bowery or the name of the house if I heard it. I am sure when I went back to the saloon again that I did not see the defendant there; he might have been in another room, I only went in one room; I was there twice that day. The prisoner came out of the saloon with me when I saw him, I told him to come on outside and he followed me out, I did not tell him what I wanted him for, I brought him to the corner where the policeman was and I stated the case to the policeman and the defendant denied being in there or seeing me; we all went together to the station house and when we got in front of the Judge the Defendant acknowledged that he was sitting at the table with me.

JAMES E. DOWNING sworn and examined.

I am an officer of police and I first saw the complainant on Sunday morning when I came back from breakfast at twenty minutes after nine o'clock, he was sitting in the back room of the station house. I spoke to him and said, "Jack, what is the matter?" He says, "I have been robbed" and he told me how he was robbed. He sat there and about half an hour afterwards an officer in citizen's clothes with some fellow he picked up and he brought him in the back room and the sailor said, "that is not the man", the detective went out and brought in another man and presented him to the sailor and he declined to identify him; the Sergeant then told the sailor to go out and wherever he saw that man to point him out to the first policeman. I was on post on the Bowery that day and the sailor came up to me and says, "I have got my man located." That was about two or three o'clock in the afternoon. I went up and he says, "he is in this liquor store"; I went to the door and the door was locked and they would not let me in, it was on the corner of Pell Street and Bowery. I said to him, "you go in and get him out and I will watch until he comes out and I will grab him, you point him out to me when you see him." The sailor came out and this man, the defendant, with him; I stood over on the other corner and walked over to them. He said, "Officer, this is the man." We took him into the station house and the sailor accused him of taking his money. He said, "Officer, I was not there I was not in the place at all, he is mistaken, it is not me, it is a man with a scar on his cheek"; he said before the desk he was not there at all but when I got down to the Tombs he admitted sitting with the complainant at the table. That is all I know of the case.

CROSS EXAMINED.

He denied being in there at the time the sailor accused him of taking the money. The defendant said, "Officer, I was not in that place at all that morning. I said, "you have to come to the station house. I heard the sailor tell the Sergeant in the morning how much money he lost.

THE CASE FOR THE DEFENCE.

EDWARD FLYNN sworn and examined.

I keep a lodging house and remember seeing the complainant Thomas Perry on Sunday morning, the 2nd of November, I saw him on the corner of Pell Street and the Bowery about eleven o'clock, I noticed that he was drunk, I saw him talking to two or three people, I was standing at the corner myself and I heard him talking about losing some money, I do not know what he lost. I know the Defendant about nine years and know plenty of other people who know him; he has always been good and honest as far as I know, he was a book-keeper of mine at one time.

CROSS EXAMINED.

He was book-keeper for me about eight or nine years ago for three or four months.

At that time my lodging house was in Hester Street and I have now five lodging houses on the Bowery, I have seen the Defendant off and on for the last eight or nine years, I might see him every day and then I might not see him for a month. Was there not one period for at least two years that you had not seen him? I have not seen him for two years, I do not know what he was doing those two years whether he was working or not, I did not hear anything at all about him during that time and do not know where he was.

I guess I saw him every day for over a year about the time the robbery took place, I think he was working, he was on a dog catcher's wagon for a time, I believe that was last summer, I saw him almost every day then; that was the only occupation, dog catcher's helper, that I saw him in.

I have seen a good many sailors on the Bowery under the influence of liquor, it is quite a place for them to frequent when they come ashore. There was nothing particular about this sailor on that Sunday morning to call my attention to him; I noticed that he was quite drunk. I would not recognize all the sailors whom I saw drunk in the Bowery if they were brought into Court. I heard in the morning of officers being out in citizen's clothes looking for a man that robbed the sailor and I had seen him; I first heard about a man being robbed but I had not seen the sailor at the time I heard of the man being robbed, he was pointed out to me but I do not know by whom; I heard the officer was after him, I heard that the Officer was after the Defendant about ten o'clock, I had not seen the complainant at that time, I was a block and a half away from the place when I heard the officer was after the Defendant, I cannot remember the names of the people who told me, I saw the Defendant when I came down to the corner, I did not see the Defendant at all that morning until about two or three o'clock in the afternoon; I think it was some of the men around the lodging house who told me that the officer was after the Defendant; the people who told me about it did not mention Green's name, I walked alone from my lodging house down to the corner and saw the sailor there, he talked to me on the corner of Pell and Bowery; I saw him again about half past two in the store, he was talking to two or three people; I asked him did he know the man who robbed him and he said yes, he is in here, Green was in the store at the time. The sailor was kind of drunk, he could talk of course and he seemed to answer the question I put to him intelligently.

GEORGE GALLAGHER sworn and examined.

I am a lodging house clerk at 20 Bowery and remember Sunday, the 2nd of November last; I remember seeing the complainant Mr. Perry that morning on the corner of Pell Street and Bowery, he had his hand on a man's coat and he was accusing him of robbing him; he says, "you stole my money"; so they gathered a crowd there and the policeman came over; it was not this policeman in Court but another one; this was about nine o'clock in the morning; he told the policeman that the man robbed him and he asked him if he would arrest him. He said, no, that he could not swear to the man whether it was him robbed him or not. So after that the sailor went upstairs and I followed him up in the lodging house No. 20 Bowery, where I am employed. He wanted to get a room up there off the man that works in the daytime and I told the man not to give him a room for he was drunk, that he was just after accusing a man of robbing him and I was afraid he would accuse us and not to give him a room; the sailor was pretty full.

CROSS EXAMINED.

I am a clerk for Mr. Finn and am on duty at night from six o'clock at night until seven o'clock in the morning; I sleep in the house all day and take my meals at a restaurant No. 42 Bowery, I had my breakfast there that morning about half past seven o'clock, I walked back again down to the corner and went up in the house a couple of times and came back and stood at the corner. I had no particular object in doing so, I do it almost every morning, I should judge it was about nine o'clock when I first saw the sailor. I cannot tell the name of the policeman that he called over to arrest the man.

I was employed at that house for eight months, I was away from there for a while, I have been back two or three months again. I saw the patrolman before that has been on the witness stand here, I don't know whether I would be able to identify the officer who was on duty that morning whom I do not know by name; I do not know as I have seen that police officer since; I did not take particular notice, he might have been on Bell Street or the Bowery; I saw him at that time when he came over and talked with this sailor, there was a crowd gathered and I did not pay any more attention to it. I saw the man that the sailor had hold of and have seen him since but do not know his name.

I went over to see what the matter was, the man was talking to the policeman about being robbed; the policeman says, "did this man rob you", and then he was not sure whether he did or not. The policeman that I saw there was rather a stout man, it was not any officer that was on the beat regularly, I think he had a moustache, I think he was a strange policeman, I have not seen him since to my knowledge. I know the Defendant I guess about a year; he has not been at my lodging house, I made his acquaintance in a corner saloon and saw him in different places in the Bowery. I saw him down at South Beach, Staten Island, I believe he was working down there last summer. I do not know the man's name whom the sailor had his hand on but I know him by sight, I saw him on the Bowery different times; that is the first I heard of the sailor being robbed in the saloon, I did not hear him tell the policeman where he had been robbed, I heard him say that he had eleven dollars taken from him, I do not think the policeman asked him where he had been robbed; the sailor kind of hesitated about it and then said he was not sure and the man went away. That is all I know about it.

JACOB GREEN sworn and examined.

I live 330 Houston Street and am a brother of this defendant, he has never been arrested before to my knowledge.

EDWARD GREEN sworn and examined.

I have never been arrested before charged with any crime, I remember the morning of the 2nd of November last, and remember seeing the complainant Mr. Perry in the saloon No. 20 Bowery, it must have been around nine o'clock. I was in there when he came in with another sailor and a man in citizen's dress; I did not speak to him at that time nor he or any of his friends to me; they drank there and they got acquainted with two women and they all were singing at the table; he was staggering a little but not much intoxicated, I heard him make an outcry as to his losing money after his friends left; his two friends left him alone and went out and he sat with the two women and he said he lost eleven dollars, I was in there at the time but he did not accuse anybody in the place, he went out and came in with an officer in citizen's dress and the officer says to the sailor, "look all around." He must have seen me for I was right there very close to him, he went out and came back again, I was there at the time and was in conversation with a man; he says when they were talking about losing money, "I would not care if the man that took it left me enough to get some drinks with." Finally he sat down and he fell asleep on the chair, he must have slept three hours and when he woke up he was accusing me and the boss, the man that owns the house of having taken the money. I was sitting on a chair and I saw him pointing at me and I looked at him; he said he thought I was the man that robbed him, that took his eleven dollars. I said, "do you accuse me of taking your money?" He said, yes. I said, "you must be mistaken", and I walked outside on the corner. I did in the station house deny that I had been in there in the morning but on the next morning I did not deny it in Court, I told the justice just the same as I told here, I denied it the day before because I thought I could get out of it and did not want to go down to the cell. I do not know how many drinks the man took while he was in there with his friends and the women. I do not know who took his money from him and do not know that he lost any further than what he said.

CROSS EXAMINED.

I live at 304 East Houston Street and my trade is feeder of a printing press; it is nearly two years since I worked at my trade, I have been driving a delivery wagon at 76 Vesey Street for Charles Edwin & CO. Last summer I worked down at South Beach for Wagner & Morris and I have been peddling a wagon in Munroe Street; I acted as dog catcher for five weeks last summer. I live with my father and mother in Houston Street, the second house from Avenue B. On the Saturday night previous to this I did not sleep at home, I spent my night around the Bowery, I am not in the habit of spending my nights around the Bowery later than half past ten or eleven o'clock; I spent the biggest part of the night in saloons.

I did not get into the saloon where I saw the complainant until seven o'clock that morning, I had been drinking during the night but not to get drunk; I probably had about eight or nine drinks but in the morning I was not under the influence of liquor, I was in the pool room watching the pools and was there when the sailor came in with another sailor. The females were in there already, I did not talk to them, they were in company with these men drinking, they were in there before the sailors came, they were sitting down at the table; I was speaking to one of the females.

It must have been between the hours of eight and ten that the sailor was in there; the female whom I had been speaking to went out and I was sitting at the same table the sailors came to; there must have been five or six females in the room when the sailors came in, they were scattered around. I did not say anything to the sailors nor they to me; they had something to drink but I did not go near them at that time; the complainant's friend and the other man got up and left and he joined the two females and they had some drinks; I could not say how many men were in the room beside those who took drinks; there were more men at another table. I saw the sailor fall asleep afterwards, after the female left him, probably four hours afterwards.

I had gone out and came back again and when I came in that time he spoke to me, that was the time he fell asleep.

When he was sitting with the female he got up from the table and said he had lost eleven dollars, he said that to everybody around; he went out and came back with the officer in citizen's dress; there might have been ten or twelve persons in the room at that time, I am not certain as to the number, I was there, I had not gone to the water-closet. I can't give you any reason that caused me to move from one table to another. No one in the room said anything when the sailor came in with the officer. The officer said, "is the man here?" And he says, no; and the officer went out again. I know the officer by sight but do not know his name. I do not know what brought me back to that saloon but I was in the habit of going in there every night.

OFFICER DOWNING recalled by Mr. Goff.

The name of the patrolman on duty that Sunday morning was Micheal Moran, I relieved him; the complainant was perfectly sober.

THOMAS PERRY recalled by Mr. Goff.

I heard the book-keeper of the lodging house testify that I went to the corner and pointed out a man to a policeman as the man who robbed me and I refused to identify him but that is not true.. I accused the Defendant of knowing the man who took my money. I arrived in New York this night a little after eight o'clock.

The Jury rendered a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment and the prisoner was remanded for sentence.

PEOPLE ON MY COMPLAINT,

James Greer

As complainant in the above case, I beg to recommend the defendant to such leniency and clemency as the Court and District Attorney may see fit to show; but I expressly assert that my reasons for so doing are not controlled by any advantage to myself and are as follows.

That on the first day of September 1890 ~~Monday~~ ~~being the day of the~~ ~~agreement~~ ~~my~~ self were skylarking and fooling with each other in the best of good humor and friendly feeling. that in the excitement of the moment a number of severe blows were struck and in wrestling & scuffling defendant's face was scratched with some sharp instrument which defendant then thought was a knife, but which defendant is now convinced was not, defendant and defendant have always been and still are the best of friends and for ^{these} reasons defendant desires to withdraw the bail charge subscribed & sworn to before me this 16 day of November 1890 James Phelon
