Recorder Smyth

Dear Judge.

A young man named Reilly is to be tried before you for assault and battery. His mother who is a janitress of the old Marine Court Rooms at No 27 Chambers Street, is a very respectable woman. I know nothing personally about the young man, except that his mother gives him a high character.

I write to please the mother who naturally feels a deep concern in the welfare of her son.

Very Resp'y.

The People } Court of General Sessions, Part I.
 vs }
 James Carlin } Before Judge Gildersleeve.
 Indictment for Robbery. April 15. 1880.

Patrick Russell, sworn and examined, testified. On the morning of the 14th of March I was on the corner of Forty second St. and Tenth ave. I live in west Forty second St. I met James Carlin that morning and got talking to him. This was about 7 1/2 o'clock. I was a stranger in the city. I was out west. I was under the influence of drink. I began to enquire I suppose the number of the house where I lived. I got talking with him. I went into a liquor store with him to have drinks. I went out to pump ship in an empty lot somewhere around there, and in the act of pumping ship, he put his hand in my pocket and took a pocket book containing thirty dollars; the prisoner ran away and I followed after him. I was very close to him and another young man caught me by the two arms and me and him fell into the street. I did not know him before and never have seen him since; that was after the money was taken. The prisoner thrust his hand in my pocket and pulled out the pocket book; that was all; the next morning the prisoner was arrested. I went to the Thirty seventh St. station and made a complaint against him and gave a description. The officer arrested him the next morning. Cross Examined. I met the prisoner for the first time on 10th Ave. and 42nd St. the morning I was robbed; he was a stranger to me; I had been drinking that morning, I guess I was pretty full. I had my senses though all the same. I guess I had some "hard stuff" in the saloon with the prisoner. I did not get my money back; the prisoner's red head is remarkable. I could identify him by the hat he wore that time Nellie Fitzgerald wore. About 1/2 on St. Patrick's Day I was in 42nd St. going up to 10th Ave. I saw the prisoner take the complainant out of the liquor store. I thought he was bringing him home. I went home to tell one of the men, he had him in the lot when I came back and he had Patrick Russell's pocket book half down his pocket. I did not see him taking it, but he had it half way down his pocket when he was running across the Avenue. I saw the pocket book, it was a calf skin pocket book. Russell was running after him. Cross Examined My mother is Patrick Russell's first cousin I have seen the prisoner passing up and down before this. I live in 42nd St. between 10th and 11th Aves. I never spoke to him. I positively swear that the prisoner is the man who brought Russell out of the liquor saloon. I noticed that Russell had been drinking; he was staggering. I did not notice anybody knock him down. I did not go over and speak to the complainant James Carlin, sworn and examined, testified in his own behalf. I worked for Mr. Campbell at a paper factory six years. I am now going on 18 years old. I live home with my parents in 42nd St. between 9th and 10th Aves. I have heard the testimony of the complainant and the little girl as to the stealing of the money. I do not know anything at all about it. I was not on that corner that morning. I was arrested Thursday morning the 18th; that morning I went down to the printing office where my brother works. This man says you drank with him in a saloon, came out with him, followed him to a vacant lot, and took his money. Is that true? No sir. The first time I saw him was at the station house on Thursday the 18th of March. My brother was arrested on the same morning I was arrested. charged with this offence and was discharged and afterwards I was arrested. I was out of work three weeks when this happened, but I was looking for work. I went down alone to see my

and made a complaint against him and gave a description. The officer arrested him the next morning. Cross examined. I met the brother to get work. I have never been arrested before charged with any offence. I have always lived up in that neighborhood. I do not know the little girl that testified here. Bernard J. Carlin, sworn and examined. The prisoner is my brother. I work at the printing business for ex Alderman DeVries and have worked going on eight years. Officer Carmack arrested me; he took my brother down to the station house at the same time; the little girl afterwards said, it was not me, it was the other one. On St. Patrick's morning my brother was down at the printing place. I was told he came there early, but I was down stairs at the time. I saw him later; he stopped there till near 10 o'clock and I told him to go home. I did not see any chance for him to get anything to do. Francis Donnelly testified that he knew the prisoner six years and that he was a hard working boy. I saw him go in and out of Campbell's paper factory. James Casey swore he knew the prisoner nine or ten years; he is a hard working, industrious boy; he is willing to work. Stephen Carmack testified that he arrested the prisoner; the little girl said he had red hair, but she made a mistake in the name. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of petty larceny.
