City and County of New-York, SS.:

2x Bernard Stahl, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he resides at No. 64 Forsyth street, in said City; that on the fourth day of November, 1884, he worked in the Eighth Election District of the Eighth Assembly District, at No. 64 Forsyth street, as a watcher in the interests of the business men's club; that while so acting information came to him in regard to William Brown, of No. 77 Eldredge street, being a non-resident; that this deponent looked up the matter and found that it was true that said Brown was a non-resident; that said Brown appeared there at 11 o'clock of said day to vote and that deponent challenged his vote and called an officer named Madden, who was stationed there to protect the purity of the ballot box to arrest him, and that said officer refused to do so and threw deponent out of the polling office, and said Brown was permitted to vote.

That this deponent thereupon went to the office of the District attorney and stated the above facts, and that the District Attorney sent two officers named respectively Wood and Dun to investigate the matter and protect deponent in the discharge of his duties; that after said officers Wood and Dun arrived at the polling office they refused to render any assistance to deponent and seemed to favor the crooked conduct of officer Madden and his associates. That after officers Wood and Dun left the polling office the said William Brown returned there and attempted to vote, whereupon deponent challenged his vote and said that he had no right to vote and called upon the officers present to arrest him, which they refused to do, and that said Brown was sworn in a second time and voted again. That officers Collins and Madden refused to protect deponent, and refused to allow him to stand in a position to watch the ballots, but allowed the republican workers to lean over the boxes.

Deponent says that one Paddock, a republican worker in that district refused to allow the ballots to remain in view of the other workers but took every bunch of ballots that was laid on top of the box, and, while pretending to look over the name of the party that was going to vote, he handed those ballots behind the boxes and kept them out of the sight of everybody. That when the count was made there was found to be twenty two more electoral ballots in the boxes than there were names registered, and that said ballots were destroyed. Deponent says that there were frequently two ballots found folded together in favor of Blaine. Deponent says that one John Sullivan who is a republican worker in said district stood at the door of the polling office above named, and would gather together a number of voters, take them into the hall-way and to all appearances bargain with them to purchase their votes, and then march them into the polling place to vote; that the republican workers purchased votes with drafts which were cashed by one Sparenburg in a saloon in Forsyth street kept by a man named Barney O'Rourke.

Deponent says that he has read the return made by officers Wood and Dun, and that same is not true; that said Brown who is spoken of in said letter voted twice instead of once as reported by the officers, and deponent insists that said William Brown is not a resident of No. 77 Eldredge, and that the statements contained in said letter regarding A. Dennison are untrue; that he is not a United States Marshal, and that he did not state that Brown voted only once, for the reason that he was instrumental in tracking this man Brown to his residence.

6 X Jacob Posner, of No. 64 Forsyth street, in the City of New-York, makes the following statement: I was a watcher at the polls of the Eighth Election District of the Eighth Assembly District at No. 64 Forsyth street, at the election on the 4th day of November, 1884. Two fellows by the name of ~~John~~ Brown voted from No. 77 Eldridge street; that when the first man of that name came to the polls to vote he was arrested challenged by Bennett Starr, of No. 64 Forsyth street, whereupon the said Brown swore his name in; that some time after the other John Brown came to the polls to vote and was likewise challenged by the said Starr, whereupon the last mentioned ~~John~~ Brown swore his vote in. I have since been informed by parties, whose names I will furnish hereafter that no one by the name of ~~John~~ Brown resided at said number in Eldridge street. In the evening when the polls were closed and the box containing the Presidential vote was counted there were 330 votes, which was 21 more than were on the registry list, and these 21 ballots were taken out, leaving 309 in the box.
