The People vs. Gottlieb Paas County General Sessions, Part 7
Before Judge Corwin, April 12, 1918 Indictment for violation of the Excise Law

Anderson M. Stebbins sworn and examined, testified I am a member of the Police; the defendant is charged with selling on Sunday. Are you acquainted with the defendant? Yes sir. Do you know where he resides? Yes sir. Were you in his place on February 12th? I did, sir. Was that Sunday? Yes sir. Did you see any liquor sold? Lager beer. How much? One glass. Cross Examined. How do you know it was lager beer? I tasted of it. Who was this lager beer sold to, to you? Sold to a customer apparently, not to me. How do you know it was a customer? He was a stranger to me, a man I don't know. Do you mean to tell this jury that you took a glass of this customer and tasted the beer? No sir. How did you taste it then? I tasted it out of the same faucet that the glass was drawn out of. Did you see it drawn out of the faucet? Yes sir. Where was this faucet? It came out of the ice box that was near the end of the counter. By what means did you taste it? I took a small glass that was at the end of the bar, turned on the faucet, and tasted the beer. I was in citizen's clothes at the time. I don't know whether the defendant knew at the time I was an officer or not but I told him afterwards I was. I had not been in that place within a year or eighteen months. I don't think the defendant was conducting the business, I never saw him before. It is a respectable lager beer saloon. I believe a number of lodges meet there. I am not positive whether the defendant occupies the whole building or not, but I think he does. There is a lodge room connected with the bar room. I think a number of lodges meet there on Sunday. The bar was partly covered at the time, about two thirds covered. I won't say that there was or was not any bottles or glasses exposed there at the time. This was at twelve o'clock noon on Sunday. The defendant himself drew this lager beer. He handed it to the man and he received five cents in payment for it from him. I do not think I would know the man again if I would see him. I don't know if he was employed in this house. I was standing less than two feet from the man and I swear distinctly that I saw the defendant receive a five cent nickel.

Charles A. Place sworn. I am a member of the police force and know the defendant's place of business; it is at 26 Delancey St. in this city. I was with officer Stebbins on this day. I saw a glass of beer on the bar and a man standing in front of it.
I came in after Stebbins; this was on Sunday the 12th of February. Judging from the looks of what was in the glass it was beer. I saw no money pass I did not notice anybody behind the bar. I did not see him sell the beer.

Gottlieb Jaas sworn and examined in his own behalf testified. I live 26 Delancey St. and have my place of business there. I remember Sunday, Feb. 12th of this year. I know officer Stebbins and remember the officer entering the premises.
It is not true as the officer has said that I sold a glass of beer and received money for it. The man to whom I gave it worked for me and he is here to swear. He came for his wages and I gave him his wages and a glass of ginger ale; he never drinks beer.
I received no money from him at all.
The ginger ale was not drawn from a faucet, but from the bottle as usual.

Frank Schroder sworn. I know the defendant and was in his employ on February 11th, I worked for him in the night. I remember Sunday Feb. 12th. I was there at the time officer Steffins came in. I heard what he swore to, that he saw Mr. Faas give a man a glass of beer, draw it from a faucet and take five cents for it. I was present when the officer arrested Faas. There was no other person drinking at the bar but myself. If there had been I would have seen it. I do not drink lager beer or spirituous liquors. I did not drink anything but ginger ale. I went there about half past eleven o'clock in the morning. I left there after Mr. Faas was arrested. I found nobody there when I got there but Mr. Faas and his son.

Ernie Faas sworn. The defendant is my father. I remember when officer Steffins came in and arrested him. I know Schroder, he came that Sunday for his wages. I was writing behind the bar, I did not pay attention to what he drank.

The jury rendered a verdict of guilty with a recommendation to mercy.

 informed and perjury advised that the said deceased left surviving him next any decree of the said Surrogate's Court appointing the said Catherine Roman administratrix of the goods, chattels and Common should and ought to be made and issued.

And afterwards, to wit on the seventeenth day of February in the year aforesaid, the said Abraham B.

In the morning, he went to the police court and the Justice told him to go to the police Captain of his precinct and put the case in his hands. Officer Burke was sent out to arrest the defendant. He, the complainant, was with the officer when he arrested the defendant. The Officer asked the defendant if he had cut him, the complainant, and the defendant said, "Yes" and produced the penknife which he said he had used in cutting him, the complainant.

He, the complainant, said it was a razor that he had used, and the defendant said that it was not.

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION. He testified that the saloon where the first difficulty occurred was in Seventh Avenue between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh streets. He, the complainant went in with a friend into James Hutton's. He had known the defendant before by sight only. He, the complainant did not throw dice with the defendant, and did not keep his money which he had in one hand. The defendant was throwing dice there with another person. He, the complainant, had a difficulty with a man named "Texas." He had won Texas's money, and they had words, and the defendant walked up and struck him, the complainant, without cause. He, the complainant, didn't bite the defendant in the saloon.

OFFICER MICHAEL J. BURKE testified that he arrested the defendant in the saloon. He went to several saloons before he found out where the defendant lived. It was in Twenty--seventh or Twenty--eighth street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues. On the way to the station house he said that the complainant accused him of cutting him with a razor, and the defendant said that he did not cut him with a razor but with a knife, and he produced the penknife. The officer then handed to the District Attorney the knife in question.

CHARLES WARREN testified for the defence that he lived at 145 West Thirty--sixth street and was 18 years of age. They were all throwing dice in the saloon, and when complainant lost he would not give up his money. He tried to snatch his money away from the pool. He got some of the defendant's money and the defendant wanted to get it from him, witness, and he would not give it to the defendant, and struck at the defendant. The defendant then asked him, witness to go up town to get some clothes with him, and they left the saloon together and went up Seventh avenue to 41st street, and were going through 41st street to Ninth avenue when the complainant came up and asked the defendant to fight, and the defendant said he didn't want to fight, and the complainant said, "I have a good notion to fight you now," and the defendant and the complainant got to wrestling, and the complainant pulled out a knife, and he, the witness, called out to Foreman to "look out," and then defendant pulled out a little knife, and cut the complainant in the back. The defendant didn't have a razor in his hand. The complainant was not knocked down, nor did he fall down. He, witness, and defendant were going to 59th street for the clothes.

UNDER CROSS--EXAMINATION, the witness testified that the complainant took out his knife first. The complainant got hold of the defendant by the coat collar and pushed him to the corner of the house, and the defendant was up in the corner when he, the witness, told him that he, the complainant, had a knife and was going to cut him, and then the defendant drew a knife from his pocket and cut at the complainant.

WILLIAM FOREMAN, the defendant, testified that he was 18 years of age, and lived at 239 West 39th street, and had resided in the City of New York for seven years, and had never been arrested before. He did anything for a living that he could find. The last time that he was employed he ran an elevator at 25 East 30th street. The complainant and his and defendant's friend "Texas" were throwing dice in the saloon and had some trouble about money. He, the defendant, and another man had money on the board, and the complainant grabbed up his, defendant's, money from the board, and then they quarrelled, and the complainant hit him, the defendant, and they clinched and the complainant bit him. The proprietor separated them, and the complainant ran out of the door. At about 4 o'clock he and the previous witness started to get his, the defendant's wash in 59th street near Ninth avenue. They went up Seventh avenue to 41st street, and in 41st street, near Ninth avenue, the complainant, stopped him and asked him if he wanted to fight that fight out, and he, the defendant, said, "No, you bit me." He, the defendant, was afraid of the complainant and wanted to run away. The complainant hit at him, and they clinched. He didn't wish to fight the complainant, because he knew that he, the complainant, would whip him. The complainant pushed him up into a corner and put his hand back into his hip pocket and pulled out his knife, and the previous witness said "Look out, he is going to cut you," and he, the defendant, put his hand in his pocket and pulled out a little penknife and cut at the complainant at random, and the complainant let go of him, the defendant, and he, the defendant, ran down the street. Then he went to Ninth avenue, and went to his aunt's for clothes. When the officer arrested him in his home and took him out to the side walk, he saw the complainant standing there, and the officer said, "This man says that you cut him with a razor," and he, the defendant said, "no, sir, here is what I cut him with," and he pulled out a penknife and handed it to the officer.

in the palms of their hands. The defendant then took hold of my hand and began telling me my fortune, she then said she wouldn't tell me any more there, that I would have to go outside and

I had some of the beer, then there was another pint of beer brought in and I drank some of that. I soon after fell asleep, the door was not locked and when I fell asleep the two men and the defendant were in the room, I must have been asleep about two hours when I woke up the door was unlocked and I was all alone I then got up and put on my pants loons which were laying under the pillow with the legs thereof hanging down towards the floor they were in the same position as I had placed them. with the exception that my money which was in <sup>my</sup> pants pocket
