INDICTED FOR FORGERY IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

INDICTMENT FILED NOVEMBER 16TH, 1892.

APPEARANCES:

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY BARTOW S. WEEKS,

For THE PEOPLE.

MR. CHANLER,

For THE DEFENSE.

GEORGE HANSEN, the complainant, testified that he kept a saloon and boarding house at 128 1/2 Cherry Street, particularly for sailors, and men who follow the sea. A good many longshoremen live there. He first met the defendant in the latter part of October or the first part of November. He came into the complainant's saloon along with a crowd that came from Calcutta, as he said, and he was a ship carpenter, and he was going in and out for a week, and he ran short of money, and asked the complainant to trust him for a few drinks. He said he had a note for £26, but the complainant did not look at it particularly, and "didn't take much stock in it;" but the defendant had spent a few dollars, and the complainant trusted him for a few drinks. On Thursday or Friday before election he came to the complainant, and he said he had changed the note for £26, and paid him what he owed, some $5 or $6. On Saturday or Sunday night the defendant said to the complainant, "Do you want to sell this place?" The complainant answered, "Well, I will sell anything if I am paid for it." The defendant said, "I will give you £200---$1000---for the place." The complainant said, "That will do." The complainant said, "I will go to-morrow or the day after, and fix it up." The complainant said, "All right," thinking he could not do anything of the kind. The complainant said to the defendant, "Where can you raise a thousand dollars from?" The defendant said, "Well, I will tell it to you. I never told it to a soul before. Well, I have some £26, from some relations of mine, and I have three or four brothers or sisters." One, he said, was a priest in St. James Church, and another was a lawyer in Syracuse, and he had a sister in Canada. He said that each had that much money, and he was drawing interest on that money, but he couldn't get the capital. He said that he could draw only £5 a month; that he drew away ahead, and that he had to pay £4 or £5 on £25 to get that much head. The complainant testified that he "half believed" the defendant. On Monday he came along with the policeman who brought him in---the roundsman. This was on the 7th of November. Roundsman Eagan brought him in and said, "Do you know this man?" And he said that he did. The officer said, "Well, a citizen has brought him into the station house, and he claims to have £100 in his pocket," and he advised the defendant to give it to the complainant for safe keeping. The defendant thereupon pulled a draft out of his vest pocket, which the complainant identified in court as being the draft in question. The officer said, "I thought you had £100 in cash? That is what you claimed, or I shouldn't have bothered coming down with you. Nobody could cash that draft unless you endorsed it." The defendant left the draft, and, after the roundsman went out, the defendant said, "Well, now, the place is mine." The complainant said, "How do you make that out?" The defendant said, "You have got half the money that you want for the place, and I will give you the other half to-morrow." The complainant said, "I would not sell the place for a thousand dollars. It cost me more than that." The defendant said, "You said you would do it the other day." The complainant said, "I had no idea, that you could raise the money." The defendant said, "Well, I want to buy the place anyhow." The complainant said, "How do I know that the draft is good?"

that he did. The officer said, "Well, a citizen has brought him into the station house, and he claims to have £100 in his pocket," and he advised the defendant to give it to the complainant for safe keeping. The defendant thereupon pulled a draft out of his vest pocket, which the complainant identified in court as being the draft in question. The officer said, "I thought you had £100 in cash? That is what you claimed, or I shouldn't have bothered coming down with you. Nobody could cash that draft unless you endorsed it." The defendant left the draft, and, after the roundsman went out, the defendant said, "Well, now, the place is mine." The complainant said, "How do you make that out?" The defendant said, "You have got half the money that you want for the place, and I will give you the other half to-morrow." The complainant said, "I would not sell the place for a thousand dollars. It cost me more than that." The defendant said, "You said you would do it the other day." The complainant said, "I had no idea, that you could raise the money." The defendant said, "Well, I want to buy the place anyhow." The complainant said, "How do I know that the draft is good?"

The defendant said, "Brown Brothers are well-known, and George F. Blean is well-known." The complainant and the defendant then went to a notary public in South Street, and asked whether the draft was good, and was told that Brown Brothers were good for that or any amount of money. The defendant then signed the draft--- endorsed it---wrote it before the notary public---and the complainant identified the endorsement in court. The defendant then handed it over to the complainant. The defendant then hired a man next day, as bartender. After the complainant left the notary public's, he went back to his place, and went up stairs to bed. This was the day before election. The complainant testified further, "I had the draft and he had control of the place. And I told him I could not very well do it, it aint business. We want to fix this thing up. I will tell you, I will leave my own bartender there, and he can stay behind the bar, and, when everything is fixed up all right, whatever goes in, if you can furnish the rest of the money, it belongs to you; and if you can't, I will take that amount out of the note when I get it changed, because I naturally thought that note was good." A man named George Abrams was left in charge. The next day the complainant was around the place very little until after four o'clock. The defendant was there getting business and said that business was first-rate. The complainant said, "I asked the new bartender how he was doing, and he said, 'I don't know what to make out of him. When a dollar comes in, he goes and puts it in his pocket.'" The complainant said, "Let him get it---I thought the note was good---I will see about the note to-morrow and I guess we will fix it up all right to-morrow." So it went on that day, and we closed up that night. That was in the morning---about one o'clock we left. We left together the store, and went into another place and had a few drinks and segars. And he was short of money and asked me if I could not let him have some money, and I gave him a few dollars, and a little while after he wanted some more money, and I would not give it, and he said, 'You have my note for one hundred dollars. That is enough.' And I said, "I got that note to bind the bargain on the place; and he said, 'well, you know well enough when I can raise that.' So, he had some more money, from me."

The complainant gave the defendant, in the three or four days, $60 or $70. On the 9th the complainant gave him $43. On the 10th the complainant went to the bank, and showed them the draft, and the defendant was not there at that time, and they gave him, the complainant, advise in regard to it. Then he went to 71 Beaver Street, looking for George F. Bleak, but could not find him, and he then went to Brown Brothers, and showed the draft to a clerk and had a talk with him in regard to it, and then he returned to his place, and found the defendant there. The complainant told the defendant that he could not find any such person as Bleak at 71 Beaver Street, or at any other place, and that Brown Brothers knew nothing about it. The complainant also said, "If you can find him, come along with me." The defendant said, "Anyway the draft is not due for ten days." The complainant said, "Do you think I am going to let you run the place for ten days? You have run it long enough, anyway." It was raining, and the defendant said, "I don't feel very much inclined to go." The complainant said, "You will have to go." He went along with the complainant, and, at 71 Beaver Street, he was lost, apparently. The complainant said, "Show us where it is," and the defendant ran around, from one side to the other, and into an insurance office, and then he asked the elevator man, who told him there was no such a man there. The complainant then said to the defendant, "he", meaning Bleak, "doesn't live here." The defendant said, "So I see." Then we went together to Brown Brothers, and saw the same clerk that the complainant had spoken to before, and the clerk said "I don't know anything about this draft. This is not on our house. Of course, we are Brown Brothers and Company, although plenty of people call us 'Brown Brothers.' And George F. Bleak has no claim upon us; and Pope Davidson hasn't; and I have just been inquiring from the bookkeeper or cashier, and they have no account with us." And he said, "I will show it to another party," and he showed it to another party, and nobody knew anything about it, and we had to go out, of course." The defendant didn't say much upon hearing this. He asked if the clerk didn't know George F. Bleak, and the clerk said that they did not know him. The defendant then said, "Well, I have done transactions with this house before, with George F.

Bleak." And the man said, "You never did." Then the complainant and the defendant went home, about four o'clock that afternoon, and the complainant said nothing further to the defendant about the draft. The next morning the complainant went to the station house and made a complaint. Officer Haggerty was assigned to the case, and the complainant and the officer went to the complainant's place where the defendant had been, and, from there, they went to 12 Monroe Street, where the defendant lived, but they did not find him at either place. Election day was the 8th, and on the 9th the complainant gave the defendant the money, and on the 10th they went to Brown Brothers, and on the 11th, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the complainant saw the defendant at the corner of Monroe and Catherine Streets, opposite his, the defendant's own door, and had him arrested by Officer Haggerty. The next morning, when taken to the police court, he claimed that the draft was good. The judge then directed the officer to take the defendant to 71 Beaver Street and to Brown Brothers, and ascertain whether or not the draft was good, and the officer did so, the complainant accompanying them, with the same result as before---nothing was known about Bleak or the draft. The defendant did not say much, but merely insisted that the draft was good. In the witness testified that he had never seen the defendant before in his life, until this occasion. He was in the complainant's house, on a spree off and on, before he was arrested. One Sunday night the complainant went with the defendant to Brooklyn, to see friends of the latter. The complainant was not drinking a good deal with the defendant during the time he knew the complainant; the defendant was with his shipmates most of the time. The complainant and the defendant had some conversation as to the price to be paid for the saloon. The defendant did not want to go to Brown Brothers and the complainant said that he would have to go there. The complainant was not a drinking man. The complainant talked to the same clerk at Brown Brothers twice. The clerk first said that he would look it up. Afterwards he said to the complainant "I hope you will get your money, but I doubt it very much." The defendant was present at that time. The complainant testified that when he presented the draft to Brown Brothers on the first occasion, "he went right in, naturally thinking it was a good draft. I asked for the cashier; I asked one of the men that stands there and he simply referred me to the first man on the left hand side, and I said, 'do you know anything about that draft?' and he said, 'no; I don't.' and I said, 'This is Brown Brothers?' and he said, 'No; it is Brown Brothers and Company, though many people call it Brown Brothers.' And he looked at the draft and said, 'Is is a queer kind of draft---I don't know anything about that draft---full of postage stamps. I may be all right. I will see about it.' And he went in through a screen door, and was away about five or ten minutes, and he said, 'No, sir; that draft is not on us. We have no account with George F. Bleak or Pope Davidson. That draft is not worth anything for here.'" Then the complainant returned and brought the defendant down again the same day, and went again to the same clerk who said, "I saw that before. I told you that draft was no good. Why do you bother me about it." The complainant said, "That is the man I got it from, and I wanted to satisfy him, as well as myself, that it was no good." The clerk was vexed, and gave very short answers, and we went out." The defendant still insisted that it was good. The complainant did not then say anything to the defendant about arresting him, as he wanted to give him another chance next day to find out about the draft, and the next day he could not find the defendant, so he caused his arrest. He first made a charge against the defendant at about 11 o'clock in the morning of the 11th, and the defendant was arrested at about 5 o'clock that afternoon. He kept away from the saloon the day that he was arrested.

GEORGE ABRAMSON testified that he lived at 17 Hamilton Steet, and had been employed by the defendant as a barkeeper in the complainant's saloon in Cherry Street, on the 9th and 10th of last November---the day after election, as the money came in that saloon, the defendant would at once take it and put it in his pocket. The defendant sold and used for himself wines and segars.

The defendant sent him, the witness, to the complainant to get $5, and the complainant gave him, the witness, $2 saying that he would give him the balance about 4 or 5 o'clock, and the witness gave the defendant the $2. In the witness testified that the receipts from the bar that the defendant took amounted to a good deal, and he drank considerable. In R e - D i r e c t E x a m i n a t i o n the witness testified that the bar receipts that the defendant took amounted to about $15 that day, and a good deal of beer and wine. In the witness testified that the money was paid in over the bar, and he could not count it, because, as fast as it came in the defendant took it.

C r o s s - E x a m i n a t i o n

R e - C r o s s E x a m i n a t i o n

OFFICER JAMES HAGGERTY testified that he first learned of this case about 11 o'clock on the morning of the 11th of November. He went with the complainant to the latter's place at 128 1/2 Cherry Street, and, from there, he went to where the defendant was supposed to live, No. 12 Monroe Street, but he did not find him at either place; he also made a search for the defendant in three or four places in Cherry Street, and in Catherine Slip and in the side streets around there, and, finally, between 5 and 6 o'clock he saw him going into the house at 12 Monroe Street, and charged him with the offense, and arrested him, and the defendant said, "Oh, that's all right; I can straighten that out in the morning." At the police court, the next morning, he told the judge that the draft was good. Before he was examined he was informed by the Clerk, of his legal rights. The judge then directed witness to take the defendant to 71 Beaver Street, and make an investigation and report to him, the judge. When the witness and the defendant got to the hallway of No. 71 Beaver Street, the witness asked the defendant where Bleak's office was,

and the defendant said that the transaction took place in that hallway. The witness said to the defendant, "Did you give your money to the man in the hallway, and let him go out of your sight with your money?" The defendant said, "Oh, I know the man well. I did business with him before in Russia." Then the witness took the defendant to Brown Brothers, and the cashier said that "there were two men here about this thing." The witness explained to the cashier that he had been sent there by the police justice, and he made an examination and said, "There is no such man as Bleak that has an account with us; and, anyhow, this signature, of 'Brown Brothers' is not our signature at all. Our signature is 'Brown Brothers and Company.'" Then the witness took the defendant back and reported to the justice, and the defendant still insisted that the draft was good. The witness saw the defendant sign his name at the police court, and identified such signature in court in this case.

THE DEFENSE.

POPE DAVIDSON, the defendant, testified, in his own behalf, that he was 47 years of age, and was born, in 1847 in Canada. In early life he had been an engineer, and afterwards went to sea, and had followed the sea, off and on, during the last eighteen or nineteen years, having spent, in the whole service at sea in all, six or seven years, and when not at sea, he worked on shore. He never worked in this city, but had always been off ships near here. He landed on the 27th or 28th of October, from the ship "George R. Schofield," and went to "Peter's" house, in Cherry Street. He stayed there until he was paid off from the ship, on the 1st or 2nd of November. From Peter's he went to his "old house, Mrs. Dixon's." When he was paid off he received $119.23, and he paid Sobat between $50 and $60, and Mr. Peters something between $20 and $30, and Mr. Cohen $4. Before that he became acquainted with the complainant. The defendant was looking for a woman that he knew the last time he was in this city, and the defendant, and a shipmate, Swansen, went into the complainant's saloon. And the defendant said, to his shipmate, "This is not the place; the woman is not here," and they went out. And the defendant's shipmate said, "Yes; it is the place. She is married." And then they went back again, and began drinking and passed the evening there. The next day they went there again and began drinking again. As the defendant had no money with him but 100 Rupees he had deposited with the ship captain, and the defendant ran up a bill with the complainant which he subsequently paid. The defendant testified further, that he went on a spree with the complainant all night, returning at 5 or 6 or 7 o'clock in the morning, on one occasion, and that he also went to the Atlantic Garden and the Windsor Theatre on two different occasions with two different women from the complainant's place. The draft he got from a man named George F. Bleak of 71 Beaver Street, whom he met in the Atlantic Garden. He had some drinks with Bleak, and he invited the defendant to his house. The defendant did not remember where Bleak lived. The defendant said to Bleak, "I am going to change money in Wall Street." Bleak said, "Well, I am going to my office in Liberty Street," and you can change it at the Canadian bank." The defendant continuing testified, "and I went with him, going up Liberty Street, as I remember, and handed the money to him. And he went behind a line of desks, where a lot of clerks were, and came out with a single bill for £28, and another bill for £100---that bill there" (indicating People's Exhibit A), "and a gentleman was there, and I told that gentleman to go with me as I were going down to Cherry Street, and he go with me till some place, I don't know where, and I don't know how it was or how it happened, but I went in the police station with another gentleman, or whether it was the same gentleman yet I don't know, and this gentleman got me a policeman to go along with me to Cherry Street, and I go there, as the policeman knew that I had money about me, and took me down to Cherry Street, and we went there to Hanson's, and deposited the money there.

I deposited it with Hanson. I showed the draft to the policeman, whoever he was, I don't know, and that night we were drinking again, and I couldn't remember whether it was the same night---yes; it was the same night---me and Hanson and three women. We went up to Brooklyn, well, that night we came home, after being out in Brooklyn. The next day or night, I remember, in the course of conversation---whatever it was I can't remember, because I were hazy, drinking all this wine---as to what I would sell the house for. And he said, 'I will sell you the house and girls, all for $1,000.' Well, whether the agreement was made that night or not, I can't remember; but I remember---whether it was in the day time or the night time I can't remember---but the argument came up again and the women came up in it, and I said, 'You have £100 deposited now, and how much will you sell the house for?' The defendant arose to £300, and I said, 'Well, go and settle the matter. We will go to the public notary.' And that gentleman was engaged, and he said we should come back. It was late at night when we were there. And we went back to Cherry Street, and the agreement was a thousand dollars, or something to that effect, and we went back to the public notary, about 12 o'clock, me and Hanson, and that shipmate, I mean, and Abramson was along with us, if I am not mistaken, and there the agreement or bill of sale was made out, and Mr. Hanson received there from Mr. Driscoll---he had a copy of the bill of exchange and gave me a receipt---the receipt in court. After that I don't know whether it was that night or the next day, anyhow, I kept in the house all the time in Cherry Street, drinking all the time. I don't know how much it was. Well, that night or the night after, Abramson told me that there were no segars in the house. And I said, 'Go to Hanson' and tell him to send $5 for segars,' and I believe he brought $2, and five segars were bought out of the segar store next by. The next day I don't think I recollect anything, whatever there was; but, in the afternoon, of that day, Hanson came up to the house, and said, 'Are you ready to go up to Wall Street?' and I said, 'Yes; let us go.' And we went away there, and I couldn't remember, he had knew the place, according to the number, 71 Beaver Street, and we went there and inquired if Mr. Bleak was in." The defendant testified that he went willingly with the complainant, who did not say anything to the defendant about having been there before. He, the defendant, thought he knew Bleak. He thought the draft was good. He paid Bleak £100 for the draft in question. He had no intention of cheating the complainant. Being asked where he obtained the money, the defendant said, that he had £155 in the bank of Bengal a few days before he sailed from the port of Calcutta, and the last time he was here he had £122 in gold---twelve months ago---he came to Mrs. Dixon's with £122 in gold. He, the defendant, ran up three bills with the complainant, but paid all of them. But after he gave the complainant the draft in question, he ran up another bill, which he is perfectly willing to pay. In the witness testified that he left Canada in 1867, and was in Canada in 1878, but since that time he has not been there. His home was in Lachine. He had received a general university education, and had traveled mostly as a man of leisure, from one country to another, and had a letter of credit, and had independent means of his own---hw had an income of about £15 a month, but he declined to say from whom he received it. He testified that he was not an agent of a Russian Nihilistic society, but that he was connected with the Russian military service. In answer to a question, as to where he got the money, the defendant said, "Well, I decline to answer the name of the party, but I can draw in the bank of Agra, Patra or Bengal; if I am in England I can draw it; whenever it is notified to me that the letter and amount is there, and I will come up with the letter and get the money. I had no knowledge whatever that the bill in question was not good. The witness testified "I have never drawn any money in New York from anybody. Once I am writing to Russia to the party that they will send me the money here that I require, and it will be sent to a bank, and I will be notified of a letter to myself, that such and such a place I can draw the amount, as I do in other bank." The defendant was not acquainted with anybody in the Russian Consulate here; he didn't even know the name of the Russian Consul. He brought £155 in gold from Calcutta, and, in addition to that, he had $119. He was not sober when he went to Bleak's house. He had been drinking for eight or nine days before. The witness corrected himself, and said that Bleak's office was not on Liberty Street but on Beaver Street. He trusted Bleak with the money because he had known him in Russia, and that he was all right. He, the defendant, handed Bleak £126 and Bleak got two notes and gave them to him. The defendant identified the signature on the bill of exchange, People's Exhibit A, as his signature, and on the police court paper, as his signature also. He testified that he was drunk when he signed his name at the notary public's, and that when he is drunk he cannot write at all. He had never cashed any drafts at Brown Brothers. He changed his money into a draft because he wished to send it away to his sister, in Canada. His sister's name was Julia Davidson, and she lives in Quebec at the present time. The defendant repeated that he endorsed the draft---signed his own name---at the notary public's, and gave the draft as a payment, on account, for the saloon; and yet all that time he thought the draft was drawn to his sister's order, and he endorsed it. He has not seen Bleak since. In coming from India he didn't buy a draft but brought the gold with him; and, on one occasion, after the vessel had put out to sea some time, he deposited his money with the captain, for safe keeping. In addition to the £126 that was represented by drafts, he had money coming here, in gold---£155---that was all the money he had with him, with the exception of his pay on board of the ship. When he gave the £100 draft to the complainant he had the £26 draft and some change---he had no other money on him but expected to get the other £200 from Russia about the 10th, by sending for it by wire. He, the defendant, could send over now to the Bengal Bank at Calcutta, for it. Mrs. Dixon saw the money the last time that the defendant was here, and was anxious to take it from him when he went on a spree.

WILLIAM E. BLEWETT, JR. testified that he was in the employ of Brown Brothers and Company, and was there in the fore part of November last. He identified the draft in question as having been presented to him by the defendant, who demanded payment, and the witness saw that it was not 'Brown Brothers and Company's' draft but 'Brown Brothers', and not on the firm by which he was employed.

The first time he saw the draft it was presented by the defendant, and the complainant was with him, the defendant. In the witness testified that the complainant did not go in and see the witness before about the draft. The first time he had his attention called to the draft at all was by the defendant. He was almost positive of this. He could tell because he had such a severe cold. He turned and spoke to his friend or the man who was with him, and they seemed to ask about something; the witness didn't know what it was. They came together twice. The witness told him that it was no good with Brown Brothers and Company.

MARY ANNA DIXON

testified that she lived at 12 Monroe Street, and kept a seamen's boarding house. She had known the defendant five or six years, and maybe longer. She had always found the defendant honest, and had never heard anybody call his honesty into question. He has always been very free with his money, and drank hard when he lands, like all sailors. She had seen gold in his possession before.

New York Nov 15-92.
Recorder Smyth:-

My dear sir:-

Will you kindly pardon me for the liberty I take in addressing you this letter and read its contents. I am to appear before you on Friday ^{next} sentenced. I am the son of Dr. D. C. Davies of Columbus Wisconsin and am 27 years of age. The only crime that I have ever been charged with is drunkenness. I came to this city ~~from~~ Aug 1st 1891 from Utica, New York where I had been in the con-play of my uncle Mr.

 David Pierce a whole sale grocer at that place.
 I was obliged to leave his employ on account of my drinking habits.
 A few days after arriving in this city, I entered the employ of the N.Y.C. & H.R.R., as an accoutant in its general office at a salary of $3.00 per week.
 While there I became acquainted with a fellow clerk Chas. T. Nolan became who is the complainant in my case.
 In addition to performing his clerical duties he was selling watches and jewelry for an installment house "down town". He finally sold me a watch for $20.00 to be paid in monthly installments. I paid him in full for this watch when he importuned me to buy a higher price watch. & I finally agreed to give him $50.00 for it to be paid as before in installments. He gave me that watch on the morning of Feb 1st of this year. On the afternoon of the same day I drew my monthly salary and at that evening & I became intoxicated with drink and when I came to my senses I was without water or money.

On account of this and fair I lost my citization and what was worse my character.

I finally dwindled from bad to worse
finally winding up in the gutter. On Monday Oct 15th I obtained work as a common laborer and sent a friend of mine to the Comptroller but in my case Mr Chas. T. Nolan to tell him that I wanted to see him to try and settle the matter
the best way I could.

Mr Nolan's answer was his letter which I here enclose so that you can see that I am telling you the truth.

After receiving his letter I wrote him inviting him to the place where I was stopping.

He came accompanied by Mr Weller a detective and without having a word to say to me had me arrested on a charge of grand larceny. Now Mr Smyth these are facts of my case and I beseech you to investigate them.

and see for yourself, I was never arrested in my life before except for drunkenness, and that fault has been the bane of my life. I know I deserve punishment for making such a fool of myself and disgrac-ing all my relatives and friends. I expect you think I am very foolish in writing to you, but I could not help it. I wanted you to know how much I had sinned and how big a fool I have made of myself.

I am sir yours Truly

Indictment file November 9th, 1892.

Indicted for Assault in the First Degree.

New York, November 16, 1892.

APPEARANCES:

For the People,

Assistant District Attorney John F. McIntyre.

To: the Defendant, Mr. F. A. Ware.

EMILIE NELSON, a witness for the People, sworn, testified:

I live at No. 328 East 61st St. On the 2nd of November I was employed driving an ice-wagon round the city. When I returned to the stable on that day the boss told me to take the election wagon and drive it around the streets. This defendant had previous to that been employed driving the election wagon. At half past four I started off driving the election wagon. This defendant got into the wagon with me and remained in it until we reached the corner of 56th St. and 3rd Ave. He claimed that the boss authorized him to drive the wagon. When we reached that place the defendant came behind me and struck me twice with a knife. I got two cuts on my cheek. He also cut me on the side but the blade of the knife only went through the cloth. I grabbed hold of him and held him until a policeman came.

The knife was afterwards found on the corner of 56th St. and 3rd Ave. This cutting took place at half past 8 o'clock in the evening.

CROSS EXAMINATION.

Three or four days before this occurrence I had a fight with the defendant down in the stable. At the time of the cutting there were three or four boys in the wagon. I told this defendant he could remain in the wagon and ring the bell as I drove it through the different streets. I did not see the knife in the defendant's hand until after he cut me. I then saw him throw it into the street. I positively swear that I did not strike this man, nor did I give him any reason for assaulting me.

RICHARD SNOW, a witness for the People, sworn, testified:

I am a police officer connected with the 23rd Precinct. On the 2nd day of November I arrested this defendant on the corner of 56th St. and 3rd Ave. He was charged by Nelson with stabbing him. I saw blood on Nelson's cheek. I asked the defendant if he stabbed Nelson and he denied it. I asked him where the knife was and he said he had none. I took him to the stationhouse and had him locked up. I went back to the corner of 56th St. and 3rd Ave., and I found the knife in the street. I asked the defendant in the stationhouse if he cut the complainant, and he said "I must have done that with my finger-nails." Another officer remarked that his finger-nails were rather short; then the defendant said "I did not cut him; I have no knife." I searched him and found no knife upon him. When I returned to the stationhouse with the knife I showed it to the defendant, and asked him if it was his; he said he never saw it before. There were no wounds of any kind on the defendant.

CROSS EXAMINATION.

In my opinion this wound could not have been inflicted by the complainant falling on the sidewalk. A couple of small boys assisted me in my search for the knife at the corner of 56th St. and 3rd Ave. One of them found it and handed it to me. I have never seen the defendant previous to this time.

DEFENSE.

THOMAS F. DONAHUE, the defendant, sworn, testified:

On Wednesday, November 2nd, I took out this election wagon and drove it through the different streets of that district. I took the horse and wagon home for dinner at one o'clock. At 5 o'clock the boss told me to hitch up the horse again and start out. When I had the horse hitched up, this complainant Nelson got into the wagon and began to drive it. We then had a quarrel as to who was authorized to drive the wagon. I told him that I was the one who had charge of the wagon. He struck me in the face, and I hit him back. When we reached 56th St. and 3rd Ave. we had another quarrel and we struck each other. I did not use the knife. I deny that the knife shown me is my property.

CROSS EXAMINATION.

The reason I got on that wagon was that I was authorized by the boss to drive it. There was a bell in the wagon and I was ringing the bell part of the time. I had not done anything to Nelson before he struck me in the face. When I struck him back at 56th St. and 3rd Ave., he called the officer and had me arrested; he told the officer that I struck him in the jaw with a knife. I did not see any blood or any cut on his face. I am positive that I never saw this knife before.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty of Assault in the Second Degree.

Affidavit—Larceny.

City and County } of New York, } ss.

James McAllister
 of No. 316 Greenwich Street, aged 32 years, occupation Watchman being duly sworn, deposes and says, that on the 11 day of November 189*2* at the City of New York, in the County of New York, was feloniously taken, stolen and carried away from the possession of deponent, in the day time, the following property, viz:

One barrel of Mackeral valued at Twenty eight Dollars

the property is in the care and custody of deponent and that this deponent has a probable cause to suspect, and does suspect, that the said property was feloniously taken, stolen and carried away by Edward White - James Dowd and John Gibson (all now here) and two others not arrested - acting in concert with each other for the reasons following, on said date deponent missed said property from in front of no 93 Murray Street - and deponent is informed by John H. Behre of no 255 Washington Street that he saw the four men putting said property in an Ash Cart no 421 and deponent is informed by Edward White the defendant that he was employed by Martin Murphy (one of the defendants not yet arrested) to carry said property to the corner of Washington and Carlisle Streets. said White did carry said property and left it on the street on said corner deponent further says that he recovered said property on said corner deponent fully identified the property recovered as the property that was stolen and deponent is further informed by said Behre that ~~he~~ he ~~deponent~~ fully identifies the defendant Gibson as one of the men he saw, putting said barrel on said ash cart.

Deponent therefore charges the defendant with the larceny aforesaid and prays they be dealt with according to law.

Deponent is further informed by said White that the defendant Dowd was one of the persons that put said barrel in the ash cart.
