vs.

Timothy Murphy.
-----x

Before

: Hon. Frederick Smyth

: and a Jury.

Tried October 27, 1890.

Indictment filed October 23rd, 1890.

Indicted for grand larceny in the second degree.

APPEARANCES.

Assistant District Attorney Jerome, for the People.

R. J. Haire, Esq., for the Defense.

VINCENZO SPARINGEL, the complainant, testified that he was a cigar maker. On October 18th, 1890, he was the owner of a silver watch, valued at $15.00. He carried it in his left vest pocket attached to a chain. Between 4 and 5 o'clock on the afternoon of that day, he and a friend, Adam Berton, were standing at the corner of Mulberry and Park Streets. There was a woman there selling second hand hats, and he, the complainant, was selecting one to wear while at work in his shop. He had a hat in his hand, examining it, and bent down to replace the hat among the other hats. As he straightened up, he saw the defendant taking his hand away from his, the complainant's, watch-chain, and the chain was hanging down. His, the complainant's, watch was gone. The defendant sprang away about two paces, and joined some other men, who were standing on the corner. He, the complainant, caught hold of the defendant, and demanded his watch. The defendant said, "You may search me. I have no watch. I don't know anything about your watch." Then the defendant said, "Come inside into the liquor store on the corner." He, the complainant, said, "No, I will hold you until a policeman comes." He, the complainant, sent his friend, Berton, to call a policeman. As his, the complainant's friend walked away, the defendant struck him, the complainant, in the face with his fist, broke away from him and ran up Mulberry Street, and was caught in the Bowery by a police officer. He, the complainant, never lost sight of the defendant until the defendant was arrested. He, the complainant, afterwards saw the ring belonging to his watch in the possession of the officer.

Under cross-examination, the complainant testified that he had never seen the defendant before he saw him taking his hand away from his, the complainant's, watch-chain. There were eight or ten men standing on the corner. The defendant stood close to him, the complainant, on his left side. The defendant talked to two other men on the corner, and when he, the complainant, ran after the defendant, these two men beat him. The defendant was searched after his arrest by the police officer, but the watch was not found upon him. He, the complainant, had worked as a cigar maker for about 20 years, and was employed at the corner of Fulton and Church Streets. He, the complainant, drew his wages at about four o'clock on that afternoon, and started for his home.

A D A M B E R T O N testified in corroboration of the complainant's evidence.

OFFICER BERNARD W. LARKIN testified that, at about 5 o'clock on the afternoon of October 18th, 1890, he saw a crowd running through Mulberry Street, and turning into Worth Street. The defendant was running ahead of the crowd. He saw Berton grapple with the defendant, and saw two or three men strike Berton. Then the defendant broke away from Berton, and ran, and he, the witness, overtook him in the new Bowery, in front of the Grant House. He asked the defendant if he had taken the complainant's watch, and the defendant said that he had not. After the defendant was locked up in the station house, he, the witness, went back to where the complainant said his watch was stolen and he found, two or three yards from the second-hand hat bag, the ring belonging to the complainant's watch.

T I M O T H Y M U R P H Y, the defendant, testified that he was 23 years of age, and had lived at 83 Oliver Street for about a week. He was a bookbinder by trade, but had last worked in a restaurant at 121 Nassau Street. He had been employed there for about three years. He, the defendant, wanted to buy a second-hand hat. He looked at a hat, and had just put it down in the pile again, when the complainant caught hold of him, and charged him with stealing his watch. He denied the theft and offered to allow the complainant to search him. Then he, the defendant, got frightened and tried to get away. He was afraid of being arrested, though he was innocent. He struck the defendant, to make the defendant let go of him.

Under cross-examination the defendant testified that he had worked as a bookbinder for F. W. Green & Sons, in Beekman Street, for about six months, about seven years before. He had also worked for P. F. Collier & Co.

City and County } ss.
of New York,

of Kingston, N.Y. 26 years, occupation Boatbuilder being duly sworn deposes and says, that on the 15th day of Dec 189 at the City of New York, in the County of New York, was feloniously taken, stolen and carried away from the possession and person of deponent, in the night time, the following property, viz:

A chain band of the value of Twenty five cents

the property of deponent

and that this deponent
has a probable cause to suspect, and does suspect, that the said property was feloniously taken, stolen,
and carried away by John Murray and Kittle Perry

(both now here) who acted in concert
with each other, for the reasons following
to wit:

Deponent says— at about half past eleven P.M. of said date, he was accosted by said Kittle Perry, on Division Street, who solicited depunent for the purpose of prostitution.

Deponent further says— he refused to accompany said Kittle Perry for said
purpose, but told her he would treat her, so both entered a saloon on Division Street, where deponent treated her, he himself drinking

two small glasses of Lager Beer.

Deponent further says - while in her company, she elicited from deponent that he was from Kingston.

Deponent further says - he left her in said Saloon, and went alone to the said street, where he was approached by said John Murray who asked deponent if he did not come from Kingston.

Deponent further says - said John Murray then suddenly seized the chain band which deponent had on the vest worn on his person at the time.

Deponent further says - as soon as he had felt said John Murray seize said band, he immediately grasped him, when said Kittle Peety appeared and struck deponent a blow in the face with her fist while deponent was holding said John Murray.

Deponent further says - he shouted and his cries attracted the attention of officers around the 11th Precinct who arrested defendants, assisted by Officer Holland of the 11th Precinct.

Wherefore, deponent charges defendants with acting in concert with each other, and taking, stealing and carrying away said property from his person and possession.
