The People

William Muldoon

Court of General Sessions. Part I Before Judge Cowing April 18. 1892.
 Indictment for assault in the second degree.
 Peter Crawford, sworn and examined, testified.
 I live at 105 Bowery and am assistant Superintendent of the Bowery Mission and Young Men's Home; over the Mission is a home; it is partly charity and we partly sustain ourselves.
 We have a reading room - it is public and any one is welcome to it as long as they are orderly and conduct themselves properly; we charge no admission to the reading room. I have seen the defendant in the house. It is part of my duty to keep order and maintain the rules of the Society. A committee of eight or ten business men of the city constitute the Bowery Mission; it is not connected with any church - it is undenominational - we invite all creeds and colors. I have known Muldoon probably two weeks; he has been a frequenter of the place. I have not had trouble with him up to the time of his arrest. What was the cause of this trouble with him on the 5th April that you had with him? He came up to my assistant, a clerk in the office and demanded fifteen cents. I was not there at the time but I learned that afterwards. What was the first fact that came to your personal attention on that day? He was down the street where I was coming in half past nine or ten o'clock in the evening. He saw me coming in with a friend and followed me up stairs to the Mission. He was very slightly under the influence of drink. He said to me the clerk refused to give him fifteen cents. I said, he has no orders to refund any one any money. I went into the office and asked what he wanted the fifteen cents for? The clerk said he smashed in the office door and broke the panel. I went up to reasonate with him. I had got no further than to the corner of the office when he pulls out this knife and made a lunge at me. I stepped back and he made another lunge at me. Five or six men rose to my assistance, and he bolted for the street, and the witness caught him in the street and took the knife. I took him into the home with the assistance of three officers and had him arrested. Was that knife opened when he made the lunges at you? Yes. He had his hand this way (showing) and when I came round the corner of the office like this, he was standing there and as soon as I got round he followed me round. I jumped back and he came up after me again with the knife. Did you say anything to him after you got him arrested? No. I did not speak to him until the next morning in Court. He asked me to forgive him, he asked me if I would withdraw the charge. I said, No. I did not feel inclined to withdraw the charge: if a man drew a knife without any cause or provocation I think he deserves some punishment. That is what I told the prisoner. Did he say anything to you in the Police Court as to why he had taken this knife? He said he was intoxicated I believe. He ran out of the house and he got to the corner of Grand street before we caught him; the Mission is 105 Bowery, between Grand and Mester Streets, it is a six story building. You never had any difficulty with him prior to that day? No sir, none whatever.

Cross Examined. How long had he been at the Mission? As far as I recollect about two weeks; he paid every night for his bed; the dispute arose with the Clerk who refused to refund fifteen cents. When he drew the knife there were about thirty men around; a good deal of excitement was prevailing. After he drew the knife men came to my assistance. You were not injured were you? No, I was not, but it was no fault of his. I jumped back from the man. I was not going to stand and be stabbed. I got to the corner when he flew at me. There was no one around me. In the reading room there was twenty five or thirty men on one side, and there was about four sitting. This loud talking prevailed and these men congregated near you? They came to my assistance and when I rose he (the defendant) bolted to the door. Did any of them make any threatening remarks? When he broke in the panel of the office door he went for the street and laid for me and when he saw me he followed me up and demanded fifteen cents. I came out of the office to reason with him. I never had a chance to speak to him and had not spoken a cross word to him. I have no hard feelings towards the man whatever, I feel sorry for him. You were not close enough so that he could inflict any injury with that knife? He could if I had not jumped back. He was slightly under the influence of liquor; he talked rationally and knew what he was doing.

John Schneider, sworn and examined I am a Tonsorial artist. On the day of this assault I ran after the defendant after he attempted to stab Mr. Crawford. What did you see this defendant do? I was just sitting down there playing a game of dominoes and this defendant came up to Mr. Crawford. There was an argument about some money, I don't know what it was. I believe Mr. Crawford came out to put him out on account of raising a disturbance then Muldoon drew a knife and attempted to stab Mr. Crawford. Then he turned around and started to run out. I ran after him and ran half a block, and he stopped and gave me the knife. He had it in his hand; it was closed when he gave it to me. He said to me when I caught him, "you are pretty cute." He ran behind a wagon. I got close up to him, then he stopped short and gave me the knife. I held him. Mr. Crawford came over and an officer took him away cross examined. They were trying to put him out of the room on account of raising a disturbance because the money was not refunded to him. How many people were around there? The place was full. I guess something around twenty five or thirty people. Did loud words prevail? Not until they got up nearly close together; some of them halloed, "Look out, he has got a knife." Did you hear any threats made? No, none whatever. I did not hear anybody threaten to do him injury, or to throw him down stairs or to club him. I saw the knife. Mr. Crawford started to open the door to put him out or tell him to go down and just as he was going to grab for the door, some one halloed, "he has got a knife." Muldoon started to run off and I ran after him. Mr. Crawford started to open the door, and the defendant was standing there, he made a sort of a dash at him and he opened the door and started to run out. There was no one trying to put him out. Nobody punched or struck or kicked at him at all.

William Muldoon, sworn and examined in his own defence testified. I am 28 years old and am a harness maker by trade; it is about eight years since I worked at my trade. I was in Chicago two or three years. I worked in the Palmer house and the Leland hotel. I have been in Philadelphia. When did you come to New York.

About last January. I stopped at the Young Men's Christian Association, corner of Broome St. and Bovey. I remained there four or five weeks, and fifteen days of that time I had been in Bellvue Hospital. I had chills and fever. I was confined in the Detention Hospital for the Insane; it is located in Randolph St., Chicago. I was there two weeks on a charge of attempting to commit suicide. I have a faint recollection of the disturbance I had with the complainant. I had been stopping there, and the night previous to this occurrence I paid thirty cents for two nights lodging. I occupied my bed the first night, and on the second night intending to leave I wanted to get my fifteen cents back, and the man in the office would not give it to me. I was standing in the office door, and he was sitting in front. He got off the stool and came to the office door and went to push me out. I had my shoulder and he had his shoulder and finally he closed the door. Then I went down stairs and met this other gentleman who testified here awhile ago. I told him of the occurrence and he said, "we will go and see about it."

He went up and spoke to the clerk. I don't know really what he said, but he pointed to the panel and said it was broken. I did not know anything of that. I did not hear anything of the panel being broken until this time. Then he says, "Is that so?" to the clerk? and he said, "yes." He said, "at any rate he will not get his fifteen cents or stop that night." They came up to me to put me out. There was four or five of them. I pulled out the knife to defend myself - not to intend to hurt anybody but to keep them away from hurting me. Did you intend to stab the man? No sir. Could you have stabbed the man if you wanted to? Yes. Then I ran down stairs and ran up the street; the crowd was after me. I turned once or twice and swung my knife and told them to keep back - at last I turned around, I noticed one tall gentleman who testified last; he was pursuing me closely. I turned and closed the knife and gave it to him and submitted to arrest. Have you ever been convicted of crime? No sir. I have been in prison upon this charge about two weeks. I did not intend to stab the complainant.

when I drew this Knife. I have had it not quite three years. Did you ever have occasion to use it before in a similar manner? No sir, never was in any trouble before in my life, never in any rows of any kind. I had been drinking heavily for two weeks.

Cross Examined. You say you had a faint recollection of what took place? Yes. Do you think that story of yours is a faint recollection, haven't you told us pretty much all that did occur that day? That is pretty near all. You do not remember breaking the panel? No, I do not remember breaking any panel. What did you want to kick and bite the Officer at the station house for and smash everything in general? I did not smash anything. Did you do anything like that in the station house, did you kick or try to bite anybody in the station house? Not that I know of. You do not recollect that do you? No. For two weeks you had been drinking? Yes. You did not get the ligua at the Home? No sir. Did they charge you fifteen cents a night for your bed? Yes. That is about as good as you could do anywhere isn't it? It was comfortable for the price. They charge twenty five cents in other places? I do not know anything about other places.

John Gerlinger, sworn and examined.
I am an officer and I arrested the defendant on the sixth of April in the Brewery.
He made no statement to me when I arrested him; he did not tell me anything about any men attacking him, nor did he say that he believed himself to be in danger when he pulled the knife out. I asked him what he did, and he would not speak. I asked him his name, and he would not tell me. We got him in the back room of the station house, and the Sergeant says, "See what he has, whether he has a knife or anything else in his pocket." I had the knife, which Mr. Schneider had given to me. I started to go through his pants pockets. He took some kind of a spell or a faint, I did not know what it was; he lay down and started to kick and tried to bite; we pulled him in the back room and we left him there. We sent for a physician.
It was not feigned was it - it was real as far as you know.
The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of assault in the third degree with a recommendation to mercy.

OFFICER JOHN MULHOLLAND, testified that he was a detective sergeant, attached to the Police Central Office. On the evening of March 19, 1892, he saw the defendant, Murphy, and the co-defendant, Flynn, together on Eighth avenue, in the city of New York, at about half-past nine o'clock. Barnum's parade was just going up the avenue. He first saw the defendants between 23rd and 24th streets, on Eighth avenue. The defendants jostled people and they went along, and that drew the witness's attention to them. He, the witness, then followed the defendant and the co-defendant. He, the witness, was accompanied by Mr. Murray, a son of the superintendent of police. The witness and Mr. Murray followed the defendants as far as 24th street. On the southeast corner of 24th street, he saw Flynn go in front of a woman and Murphy get behind her. The crowd was just breaking up after the parade. He, the witness, was then about six feet from the defendants. He, the witness, had put Mr. Murray in front of him, fearing that the defendants might recognize him as a detective. He saw Flynn pushing the woman from in front and Murphy pushing her from behind, towards Flynn.

then they started to go away, and the woman put her hand to her pocket and cried out, "My pocketbook is gone." He, the witness, then pursued the defendants, and caught Flynn and turned him over to Officer Carey, and caught hold of Murphy. The arrests were made at 25th street. Then he, the witness, said to Mr. Murray, "Put your hand in his pocket, Walter," and Murray put his hand into Murphy's pocket --- his overcoat pocket. Murray put his hand into the pocket and pulled out a pocket-book. He, the witness, said to Murphy, "Where did you get this," and Murphy said, indicating Mr. Murray, "This man must have put that pocket-book in my pocket. He, the witness, said, "This man isn't going around putting pocket-books in people's pockets." And Murphy said, "I don't know anything at all about it, I never saw the pocket-book before. " Murphy wore a blue over-coat, almost new, and in excellent condition except that the pocket on the right hand side was cut, that is, there was a cut in the lining of the pocket, at the bottom of the pocket. The cut was large enough for a man's hand to go through it. The cut in the overcoat pocket was on the

1160

side of Murphy which was turned to the woman at the time that she cried out that her pocket-book was lost ----- Murphy's right hand side. Murphy apparently had his hand in his right hand outside overcoat pocket at the time that he was pushing against the woman.

In cross-examination the witness testified that he had been a detective for about seven years. Previously he was engaged in the plumbing business. He was on the force for three years before he was promoted to be a detective sergeant. He had been a detective sergeant about seven years. He first met Mr. Murray that evening in front of the Metropolitan Hotel, in Broadway, at about eight o'clock. They went to the Bowery, through Houston street. The parade was just then coming down the Bowery. They followed the parade as far as the corner of Prince street and arrested a man at the corner of Prince street and the Bowery. Mr. Murray had asked him, the witness, "Is there any harm for me to walk along with you, John?" And he, the witness, said, "Oh, certainly not." He did not take Mr. Murry along that evening to help him in his work, but merely because Mr.

Murray wished to accompany him. He, the witness, saw Mr. Murray take the pocket-book out of Murphy's right hand outside overcoat pocket. The pocket-book contained $1.38, and the money was still in the pocket-book at the time of the trial. He, the witness, did not pretend to swear that he saw Murphy's hand in the unknown woman's pocket. The woman disappeared in the crowd at the time of the arrest, and the witness had been unable to find her. He had caused a general alarm to be sent out for the owner of the pocket-book, but there was no response. In his opinion, the pocket-book was a woman's pocket-book, and not a man's pocket-book. Murray was only nineteen years of age, and he did not wish to expose the boy to risking an encounter with two such men as Murphy and the co-defendant, and therefore he did not call upon him for assistance, but called upon Officer Carey, a full-grown man and an experienced officer.

WALTER A. MURRAY testified that he lived at 1,041 Madison avenue. The witness gave testimony in corroboration of Officer Mulholland. He found the pocket-book under the lining of the right hand outside pocket of Murphy's overcoat.

POOR QUALITY

In cross-examination the witness testified that he was a contractor for the elevated railroad, and also did work for the city. He met Sergeant Mulholland by accident in front of the Metropolitan Hotel, on the evening in question, and asked permission to accompany him on his round. He understood that Mulholland was assigned to follow the procession and look out for pick-pockets. He, the witness, was a son of Superintendent Murray, of the Police Department.

OFFICER JOHN CAREY testified that he was attached to the 20th police precinct. The witness then described the arrest of the defendants as Sergeant Mulholland had described it.

FOR THE DEFENCE, RICHARD MURPHY, THE DEFENDANT, testified that his father's name was Robert Murphy, and that his father was a stone cutter. He, the defendant, was a carpenter. He was nineteen years of age. He had never been convicted of any crime. He did not know the co-defendant

POOR QUALITY

7

Flynn, and had never seen him until he was arrested. He, the defendant, lived in 134th street, and came down town at about half-past six o'clock on the evening in question, to see Barnum's parade. He got down town at about half-past seven and walked over from Third avenue and stood on the corner of 23rd street, looking at the passing parade. After the parade passed, he started to walk up Eighth avenue, towards 24th street, and at 25th street, Officer Mulholland caught hold of him, the witness and held him while Mr. Murray put his hand into his, the defendant's, overcoat pocket, and said, "He e I have a pocket-book." Mulholland said, "Well, give me that, I will put it in my pocket." He, the defendant, said, "I don't know anything about it. At that time, he, the defendant, did not see the pocket-book. It was his sister's pocket-book, and he, the defendant, used to carry small change in it. When he said that he did not know anything about the pocket-book he had not seen the pocket-book. As soon as Mulholland received the pocket-book, he stuffed it into his pocket. He, the defendant, did not have on a blue overcoat. He only wore an ordi-

1164

POOR QUALITY
ORIGINAL

nary sack coat. He had a light overcoat at home, but very rarely wore it, because it was too short. There was no cut pocket of the coat he wore that night. He did not attempt to steal any property from any woman, or any one else, on the night in question, and had always worked for a living. He might have bumped up against a woman in the crowd after the parade was over, but not intentionally. He intended to turn at 25th street and walk over to 23rd street and take the elevated train home. He was taken to the station house and searched. He had about a dollar and a half in his pocket when he left his home. He bought a package of cigarettes and paid his fare down. He bought two elevated railroad tickets and had one of them still in his possession, and that left about $1.38 in his pocket when he was arrested and searched. He had the money in his sister's pocket-book.

In cross-examination the witness said that when he picked up his sister's pocket-book that night at home, before he left home, there was no money in it. He had a dollar bill and he put it into the pocket-book, and had

POOR QUALITY

it changed on the way down town at the elevated railroad station. Besides the dollar bill, he had about thirty-five or forty-five cents when he left home. He got the change in silver. His recollection was, that he put into the pocket-book when he left home a dollar bill, a quarter, a five cent piece, and some pennies, and that was all the money that he had on his person when he left home. He put that money into the pocket-book. He bought the ticket on the elevated railroad out of the dollar bill, and also some cigarettes. That left him with all small silver in his pocket. He remembered that he had a bad three cent piece with a hole in it, that he did not put into the pocket-book. The District Attorney then directed the defendant to look into the pocket-book and tell what money there was in it. There was only a silver dollar in the pocket-book. This was the change that he got when he got the dollar bill changed at the elevated station.

In re-direct examination the witness testified that the silver dollar might have been in the pocket-book without his knowledge when he picked it up out of the

POOR QUALITY

drawer at home. He did not examine the pocket-book carefully before he put his own money into it. He lived in 134th street, No. 547, between Alexander and Lincoln avenues, in a flat.

Being recalled, IN REBUTTAL, SERGEANT MULHOLLAND testified that the defendant had on, at the time of the arrest, a blue smooth-cloth overcoat, and an undercoat also. At no time did the defendant say, after his arrest, that the pocket-book belonged to him or his sister. He said only that Mr. Murray must have put the pocket-book into his pocket. The defendant's testimony, that the pocket-book contained all of the money that he had on his person that night, was false, because, when he was searched in the station house, between thirty and forty cents was found in small change in his right hand trousers pocket, and the money was not taken from him.

down the Bowery to Grand street, from Grand to Hudson and up Hudson to Eighth avenue. They broke away from the parade at Twenty-sixth street and Eighth avenue. He saw the defendant at about half-past nine o'clock, on Eighth avenue, between 23rd and 24th streets, going north, in company with Murphey, the co-defendant. He, the witness, followed the defendant and Murphy as far as the corner of Twenty-fifth street, where he, the witness, saw the defendant get in front of a woman. Murphy was behind her. The defendant kept pushing the woman towards Murphy. The woman put her hand up and tried to get Flynn, the defendant, away from her, but the defendant still kept pushing. The crowd was just beginning to disperse. He, the witness, was within six or seven feet of them, the defendant, Murphy, and the woman and Mr. Murray was three feet away from them. Immediately afterwards the woman called out "I have lost my pocketbook." The defendant and Murphy started to run away. He, the witness, went for the defendant and Murphy, and called Officer Carey, to whom he handed over Flynn, and he, the witness, took Murphy. In the Sixth Precinct station house he, the witness, searched both of the prisoners. When he, the witness, arrested the defendant and Murphy, at the corner of Twenty-sixth street and Eighth avenue, he turned the defendant over to Officer Carey and told Mr. Murray to put his hand into Murphy's pocket. Mr. Murray put his hand into Murphy's pocket and pulled out a pocket book and handed it to the witness, saying, "Why gentlemen here it is." Murphy said to him, the witness, that he did not not know anything about the pocket book. He, Murphy, said, "Some of you fellows must have put it in my pocket." The defendant, who was in Officer Carey's custody, said nothing. Murphy had on a smooth cloth overcoat. The right side pocket of the overcoat- the bottom of the pocket was cut out in the inside and then the lining was cut so that the hand could go through it. The prisoners were about a foot apart when arrested. The Murphy in whose possession the pocket book was found, was jointly indicted with the defendant, Flynn, and was, the witness said, convicted the week before in the court, for stealing the pocket book.

IN CROSS-EXAMINATION, the witness testified that he had been connected with the police department about eight years altogether. He, the witness, did not ascertain who was the owner of the pocket book. He sent out a general alarm for the owner and went to the neighborhood where the pocket book was lost. At the time the alarm was given he, the witness, wanted to catch both of the men, and made no effort to find out from whom the pocket book was stolen. Mr. Murray was with him, but Mr. Murray was not an officer. There was a crowd of six or seven hundred people on the thoroughfare when he noticed the defendant and Murphy standing in front of the woman. He did not see the defendant have his hand in the woman's pocket. The defendant stood in front of her.

Walter A. Murray, being duly sworn testified that on the evening of March 19th, 1892, he met Detective-Sergeant Mulholland at the Metropolitan Hotel, and accompanied him along the line of Barnum's parade. He, the witness, saw the defendant, Flynn, on Eighth avenue, between Twenty-fourth street and Twenty-fifth street, at about half-past nine o'clock. The defendant appeared to be with Murphy. He, the witness, saw Flynn, the defendant, in front of a woman and Murphy behind her. The defendant stepped back a step and Murphy pushed to her, and slipped his hand through her coat and into her dress, and she then immediately called out her pocket book was gone. Murphy and the defendant started to walk away and at the southeast corner of Twenty-sixth street Detective Mulholland arrested them. When he was arrested, Murphy said to him, the witness, "Put your hand in that man's pocket," which he, the witness, did, and found the pocket book there. He, the witness, found the pocketbook in the bottom of the coat, in the lining. The coat pocket and the lining of the coat was cut.

Murphy said that he, the witness, must have put the pocket book in his, Murphy's pocket, which he, the witness, did not do. The defendant and Murphy were three feet apart when arrested.

IN CROSS-EXAMINATION, the witness testified that he did not see the defendant put his hand into any person's pocket, or attempt to. There were hundreds of people on the avenue, jostling against one another. He, the witness, did not open the pocket book he found on Murphy, but passed it over to Mulholland.

Detective-Sergeant Mulholland, recalled by the People, testified that the money contained in the pocket book in evidence, $1.38, was the same that was in the pocket-book when it was handed to him by Mr. Murray. There was a silver dollar, a silver twenty-five cent piece, a silver dime and three pennies.

Officer John Carey being duly sworn testified that he was attached to the 18th Precinct on March 19th, and now to the 19th Precinct. At about half-past nine o'clock, on that evening, he was standing on the east side of Eighth avenue, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets, when he saw Officer Mulholland coming up the avenue. Detective Mulholland said something to him, the witness, and they walked together quickly to the southeast corner of Twenty-sixth street and Eighth avenue. Detective Mulholland took hold of the defendant's coat and passed him, the defendant, over to him, the witness, and then immediately arrested Murphy. Murphy was about two feet from the defendant at the time he was arrested. He, the witness, was present when Mr. Murray took the pocket book from Murphy's pocket, and he heard the conversation between Murphy and Detective Mulholland. The defendant was near enough to hear the conversation also. Detective Mulholland told Mr. Murray to search Murphy's pockets, and Detective Mulholland also searched in the pocket next to him, the left hand side .

CHARLES FLYNN, the defendant, being called by the defense, testified that he was not acquainted with the defendant Murphy. He first saw him on the night in question in the 20th street station house. On the night in question, he, the defendant, did not pick any pocket, or attempt to pick any pocket , and had no knowledge of the pocket book, or where it came from, until he got into the station house. On the night in question he was standing between 23rd and 24th streets looking at Barnum's parade, about two doors from the 24th street corner. After the parade was over, he walked up town and was going home. He got as far as the 26th street corner. The first thing he knew he was arrested. He did not stand in front of any woman, and back up towards her, as he knew of. There were people walking up and down, and cross-ways, towards and the east and the west and they were jabbing up against everybody. He, the witness, did not attempt to run up against anybody, or attempt to do any such act as he was charged with. He, the witness, had been confined on the charge since the night of Barnum's parade, March 19th, 1892.

IN CROSS-EXAMINATION, the defendant testified that on the night in question he went out to see Barnum's parade. He left his house about 7 o'clock, and went to 24th street and Eighth avenue. He did not go directly from his house. He got shaved and then walked down Third avenue and bought a couple of segars, and had a couple of drinks, and walked down the avenue for a while. Then he took a Third avenue car down as far as Twenty-fourth street, and walked across to Eighth avenue. At that time he, the witness, lived at No. 193 East Ninety-third street, near Third avenue. He went over to Eighth avenue and Twenty-fourth street, because he was too late to see the parade on Fifth avenue, because he could see the last of it passing, from Third avenue. He got off the car at Twenty-fourth street to see the parade. He noticed the lines passing down Fifth or Madison avenues, while he was about Forty-eighth street, on the car. On the corner of Twenty-fourth street and Eighth avenue, he waited about twenty-five minutes. He, the witness, did not meet anybody, or speak with anyone, or walk with anyone. After the parade was over, he walked up Eighth avenue as far as Twenty-sixth street. He was going up to Thirty-fourth street, and then over to Fourteenth street and Third avenue. He went way because he wanted a walk. It was snowing, and the street was all snow. There was some slush. His pants were wet, but his feet were not. He, the witness, did not notice what kind of an overcoat Murphy had on, but he was sure Murphy had an overcoat on.

REBUTTAL. Detective Mulholland, recalled by the People, testified as to the route of the parade .

The People vs
John Mulholland

<sup>2</sup>
Richard Murphy
Charles Flynn

Examination Before Justice Grady
March 29 1892

John Mulholland the complaining witness, being duly sworn and further examined by the court depone and says: I am a detective sergeant of the Police Department of this city. On the 19th day of March 1892 about the hour of 9.15 o'clock P.M., I was at the corner of 25th Street and 8th Avenue. I was about five feet away from a woman whose name is unknown to me. The said woman came along 8th Avenue and was walking five feet away from me, and started to go across 8th Avenue. Before she got to the cross walk I saw the defendants Richard Murphy and Charles Flynn (now here). They came up 8th Avenue behind the unknown woman. As she started to turn to go across 8th Avenue, Flynn got in front of her and Murphy was behind her. Flynn pushed her towards Murphy and Murphy kept pushing her towards Flynn so that she was between them. I did not know either of them. The defendant Murphy was on the side where her pocket was. His <sup>right</sup> hand was on her right hand side. He was up close to her, and Flynn was so close to her that she put her hand up to push him away. She made some remarks to Flynn which I did not hear.

She stopped right there and put her hand down to her side and said "my pocket book is gone." at that time the two defendants were on the other side of 25th street. They had jumped away quick. They were running away. Then I went after the defendants and arrested both of them on the corner of 26th street and 8th Avenue. I caught hold of the defendant Murphy and I called Officer Carey of the 21st Precinct and told him to catch hold of Flynn. Walter A Murray now here, was with me. He put his hand in Murphy overcoat pocket and pulled out a pocket book containing one dollar and thirty eight cents. It was a brown leather pocket book and I believe and charge that said pocket book was the property of the said unknown woman and was taken from her by the defendants. I then went to the corner of 25th Street and the unknown woman was gone. A general alarm was sent out by the police at headquarters to find the said unknown woman but without success.

Walter A. Murray being duly sworn and examined by the court deposes and says: I was present with Officer Mulholland on the 19th of March on the occasion referred to in the affidavit. I was going up St. Avenue with him. The defendant Flynn was in front of the woman, and Murphy was behind. The latter one I call Murphy. The one in front kinder bucked up on her. The fellow behind purtled into her and slipped his hand in her pocket. I could not see if they took anything out of her pocket They started to run. Officer Mulholland at this time was behind me. He ran out and grabbed Murphy. Mulholland was at the corner of 25th street when they started to run.

Mulholland had one and the ward man had another.
Mulholland said to me "Look in that fellow's pocket. I put my hand in his pocket.
The lining was cut and I slipped my hand down the lining and found the pocket book there."

John Mulholland, the complaining witness, being recalled and further examined by the court before and says: The defendant Murphy said to me when Murray pulled out this pocket book out of his pocket "Why this man must have put this pocket book in my pocket; I do not know anything about the pocket book
