New York, May 26th, 1887.

Honorable

Randolph B. Martine,

Attorney of the City And County of New York

Dear sir.

In accordance with your request, I visited and examined one Thomas Stanton, now confined in the City Prison under indictment for murder, the crime being the killing of one Callaghan, a fellow workman, in a stone yard on First Avenue. For one week or more previously, the prisoner had made preparations; had procured and sharpened a knife, and it appears had mentioned his intention to the friends of the deceased; then, without a word of warning or quarrel of any kind, he drove the knife into the body of Callaghan, who, it appears, was his best friend. He then surrendered himself to the authorities. After the deed he manifested little or no concern for what he had done, but alleged that his victim had held criminal relations with his wife, and that his child was Callaghan's, a fact which seems to have no basis; that his victim had followed and villified him, a statement equally untrue. In Jail he behaved in an insane manner, and attracted the attention of the keepers at the 57th Street prison. He had hallucinations, and heard imaginary persons speaking through the water closets and walls. Since his incarceration in the "Tombs" his behavior has been equally as irrational. For hours he will stand motionless and abstracted, when he is utterly unaware that he is being watched. When I saw him he clearly expressed the appearance of chronic melancholia. His eyes had a lack of expression and the pupils were dilated. His skin was pale, and his hair, and the general appearance, were highly suggestive of the insane temperament.

POOR QUALITY ORIGINAL

0150

When questioned about his crime by myself and his lawyer, his replies were conclusive as to the fact that he was a lunatic, and showed that he labored under delusions, especially of persecution. His ideas of his wife's behavior were erroneous and wild. He knew that she spoke to him in a " silent language " which he could not describe and if he had known this he would not have killed Callaghan. He expressed no enmity against his wife nor against the murdered man, but declared that the latter followed him about and persecuted him, telling members of " Clubs " that the prisoners child was his own, and that for no explainable purpose the murdered man had in some mystical way undermined him in the " Clan na Gael Society."

He imagines himself as having been singled out for newspaper attacks, and that in a late scandal case in which the name " Stanton " appeared (that belonged to a Brooklyn Clergyman) he took to himself all the criticism and commented upon this, cutting out newspaper extracts which he showed to friends. His condition is one of long standing, and his delusion; I am convinced, ~~one~~ of slow formation.

I believe him to be suffering from Chronic Melancholia with homicidal delusions, and would recommend his committal to an Asylum. He certainly is unable to instruct Counsel or plead intelligently.

Very truly, yours,

Allan McLane Hamilton M.D.

The People
vs.

Thomas Stanton

Indictment for Murder

Asst. Dist. Atty. Fitzgerald for the People.

Mr. Sullivan Counsel for the defendant.

A jury was empanelled and sworn to try the question of the sanity of the defendant.

Mr. Fitzgerald opened the case for the people.

Alexander E. Macdonald, sworn and examined by Mr. Fitzgerald testified as follows Q Dr. Macdonald, you are a medical doctor.

A I am, sir.

Q For how many years, doctor, have you been practicing.

A For the past seventeen years.

Q During that time, doctor, have you not made particularly a practical study of mental disease.

A I have.

Q You have been specially connected professionally with some institution for the care of the insane.

A Yes sir.

Q What institution?

A I have charge at present of the Asylums for the insane of this city.

Q Did you professionally examine Thomas Stanton the defendant.

A I did.

Q With a view of determining the question of the sanity or insanity in accordance with your judgment.

A Yes sir.

Q Will you state to this jury and to the Court the result of your examination.

A I saw the prisoner on the 23^d of last month and examined him for an hour and came to the conclusion that he was of unsound mind at that time and had been at the time of the homicide.

Q Now doctor as the result of that examination do you think that if Stanton had a good defence to this charge against him that he has got sufficient mental capacity to present it at the present time.

A I do not.

Allan McLean Hamilton, sworn and examined by Mr. Fitzgerald.

Q You are a medical doctor.

A I am.

Q Practicing in this city for how long, doctor.

A About seventeen years.

Q Doctor, during that time you have had considerable experience in the treatment of the insane.

A I have made it a specialty.

Q Dr. Hamilton, did you make an examination of the defendant Thomas Hanton.

A I did sir, make two examinations.

Q Please state to the jury the result of your examinations and your opinion as to the question of his sanity.

A I examined the prisoner on the 25th and 26th of May last and found him to be suffering from chronic melancholia and delusions of persecution with apparently no idea of the nature of his crime with a loss of identity believing that for some time he was another person. He imagined himself to be the subject of newspaper attack when really it was intended for somebody else, in a case of the same name of a man in Brooklyn of the name of Stanton; and he had delusions and hallucinations. He had heard imaginary voices, and he believed that the murdered man had persecuted him and had exerted a mysterious influence which he was unable to describe, and he had gone about to various clubs and various societies and had in different ways tried to undermine the prisoner.

Q As the result of your examination do you consider him to be sane or insane.

A I believe him to be insane.

Q Do you believe if he had a good defence to this charge against him he has got capacity to instruct his counsel.

A I believe he has not capacity to instruct his counsel.

Cross Examined.

Q You made a very careful examination of the defendant.

A I have, two.

Q I was with you, was I not on one of these examinations.

A Yes sir.

After the judge charged the jury, they rendered a verdict that the defendant was insane.

The Court: The Court commits the defendant to the Hudson River Hospital for the insane at Poughkeepsie.

CORONER.

Coroner's Office.

TESTIMONY.

At the Morgue, New York, March 29, 1884,
I had an autopsy of the body of Patrick Gallagher, who had recently died in Bellevue Hospital; it was that of a man of middle size, age, and build, and presented no marks of disease or injury, except a punctured wound about an inch and half in length, nearly vertical, in the median line, in the Epigastrium. The original wound had been extended for the operation of laparotomy, and sutured.

On opening the abdominal cavity, the peri-toneum covering intestines showed incipient peritonitis. There was a wound in the liver, another in the anterior portion of the stomach, about two inches from the pyloric orifice, both of which had been sutured.
Another wound was discovered for the first time in the posterior part of the stomach, corresponding to the anterior wound, from which the contents of the stomach had escaped into the peritoneal cavity. An opening into the suprascapular portion of the left kidney indicated the depth to which the instrument causing the wound had finally reached.
This part was marked by considerable clotted blood, & considerable hemorrhage had resulted from the wounds in the liver & stomach. All were made with one blow by a long sharp knife, and ^{was} fatal from the first. The other organs of the chest &c were normal.

Death which occurred seventeen hours after the assault was due to exhaustion from shock, hemorrhage, general peritonitis, &c, involving fatal injuries to vital organs.
