In this case I have made a careful examination of all the evidence.

The defects before this charge ~~are~~ are numerical repetitions as will appear by the within exhibits.

The complainant herein also states that in his opinion the defendants did not intend to commit any general crime. This also appears in his written answer hereto, in view of the previous good character of the defendants and the statement of the complainant; whereas I am convinced that no conviction can be had, if the defendants are true. I suggest that they be discharged upon their own recognizance.
