being further sworn deposes and says that on the 16th 18th 22nd days of January 1892, deponent visited the said premises, named aforesaid, and there saw the said John Smith, James Smith and Richard Smith ^{and Walter Smith} aforesaid, and had dealings and conversation with them as follows:

January 16th. upon entering the premises we found a door inside of the premises fastened. Deponent in company with one JACOB KIRCHHOFF entered the front room, and the said KIRCHHOFF rapped at the door, when JOHN SMITH came and looked out from behind the partition, when the said KIRCHHOFF said: "What are you looking at; don't you know me?" JOHN SMITH replied: "No, you have never been here before." The said KIRCHHOFF showed a play and said: "Don't that look like it?" The said JOHN SMITH then opened the door and Deponent and the said KIRCHHOFF walked in. The said JOHN SMITH was near a desk upon which were pencil and strips of paper. In the rear room JAMES and RICHARD SMITH were writing what are commonly called "Lottery Policies." Deponent said to RICHARD SMITH: "Let me see your file of drawings, please." The said RICHARD SMITH took from a shelf behind him package of printed drawings and handed the same to Deponent. While looking at them, the said KIRCHHOFF said to RICHARD SMITH: "Give me 3 21 30 for all day." The said RICHARD SMITH placed a paper under the Manifold sheets and with his agate pencil recorded the play on both the Manifold sheets and the piece of paper at the same time, and afterwards wrote the line "Blx Jan 16." at the top and handed the same to the said KIRCHHOFF, and the said KIRCHHOFF paid him the sum of ten cents for the same. Deponent then said to JAMES SMITH: "Give me 19 28 37 for all day for five cents", whereupon the said JAMES SMITH placed a piece of paper between the sheets of Manifold, recorded the numbers upon the Manifold and upon the piece of paper at the same time, then took the piece of paper out from under his Manifold sheets and placed upon the top "Blx Jan 16." and handed the same to Deponent and Deponent paid him the sum of ten cents for the same.

Deponent further says, that on the 18th. day of January 1892 he again visited said premises and there saw the said JAMES SMITH selling what is commonly called a "Lottery Policy" to JACOB KIRCHHOFF for the sum of five cents. And Deponent did further purchase of the said RICHARD SMITH another of what is commonly called a "Lottery Policy" for the sum of five cents, when Deponent said to the said RICHARD SMITH: "Give me 19 28 37 for five cents", when the said RICHARD SMITH turned to the said JAMES SMITH and said: "Do you know this fellow?" KIRCHHOFF replied: "He is all right; he's with me." RICHARD SMITH then put a piece of paper under his manifold and with agate pencil recorded both play on paper and Manifold at the same time.

Deponent further says, that on the 22nd. day of January 1892 he again visited said premises and there saw the said JOHN SMITH who was engaged sweeping out the cigar store in front. Deponent passed him and went to go into the back room, when the said JOHN SMITH said: "What do you want?" Deponent replied: "You're a great fellow to remember your customers. You have got so many, you can't remember half of them." He said: "Have you ever been here before?" Deponent replied: "Yes. Been here lots of times." The said JOHN SMITH said: "All right, go in." Deponent entered said premises and found in the rear room WALTER SMITH sitting at a desk with a Manifold book in front of him. Deponent said: "Give me 5 11 55 and 6 12 72 for all day for twenty cents." The said WALTER SMITH put piece of paper under Manifold, then recorded with agate pencil the numbers aforesaid on Manifold and piece of paper, then took the piece of paper out from under the Manifold and wrote at the top Bx Jan. 22nd all day. Then handed the same to Deponent, and Deponent paid him the sum of twenty cents for the same.

Deponent further says, that he is informed, has just cause to believe, and verily does believe from personal observation, transactions, and statements had with the said John Smith, James Smith, Richard Smith, Walter Smith that the said John Smith, James Smith, Richard Smith, Walter Smith aforesaid now have in their possession in, at, in, and upon certain premises occupied by them and situate and known as the premises and place described in foregoing Affidavit in the city of New York, and within the County and State aforesaid, for the purpose of using the same as a means to commit a public offense, divers and sundry device, apparatus, tables, establishment, paraphernalia, layouts, chips, deal boxes, cards, lottery tickets, lottery policies, writings, papers, books and documents for gambling purposes, in violation of the provision of Chapter IX of the Penal Code of the State of New York.

Conrad Altoff's grocery, No. 222 Chrystie street, is opened promptly at 6 o'clock every morning. Edward Fiegert, fourteen years old, who sleeps in the store, was aroused a little ahead of time yesterday morning by loud rapping at the door. He thought it was a customer whose timepiece was out of gear and he shouted:

"You're too early. It isn't 6 yet."

The next instant the door was broken open and a wild-looking man rushed in. Edward sprang out of bed. The man attempted to enter the apartments where the grocer and his family slept, when the boy barred his progress.

"Get out of my way," roared the frenzied man, "or I'll kill you!"

The plucky boy darted behind the counter for a club.

At the same moment the wild-looking man drew a six-barrelled loaded revolver from his pocket and pointed it at Edward, who almost fainted from fright.

"So, you were looking for a club, eh?" snarled the man. "Stand on that chair. Now hold out your hands. Steady, I'm going to shoot. One, two, three."

The revolver snapped two or three times before it went off, and when it did go off the bullet passed within three inches of Edward and imbedded itself in a potato barrel. Edward screamed with terror and rushed out of the store.

The noise awoke Grocer Altoff, who grappled with the intruder. The man attempted to shoot the grocer. Over and over the floor they rolled. Altoff was trying to get the revolver from him, while the man was endeavoring to bite him.

The grocer's family took refuge in the back of the store and shouted at the top of their voices. The unwelcome visitor finally got the better of the grocer, whose strength became exhausted. But Policeman Benham, who had been summoned by Edward, rushed in.

The man was about to turn his attention to him when the policeman's heavy night stick began its work, and in less than five seconds the man was stretched on the floor insensible. He was carried to the Fifth street station, where his head was bandaged.

When the man revived he was taken before Justice Kilbrath in the Essex Market Police Court. He described himself as Thomas Weldon, twenty-three years old and born in Mexico. He said he was a detective in the employ of the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad Company. He showed a badge in corroboration of his statement. He had come to town, he said, to go on a spree, and had drunk freely. He believed that the liquor was drugged.

When he broke into the grocery store he thought it was a freight train and that thieves were committing a robbery. He mistook a square tin-box of crackers for the money-box of the company and thought that Edward was trying to steal it. For this reason, he says, he told Edward to hold up his hands.

Weldon was held in $1,000 bail for trial in the General Sessions for attempted felonious assault. He may get five years.
