Dear Sir:-

The bearer of this note, Mrs. Lockwood, I have met several times, have attended her daughter while sick & have always found them to be good, sensible people. Her son is now under conviction for being found with a young man, who had stolen some things. As the boy has been a good boy before, never being before the Court the mother informs me. As he is the support of the family her daughter being very feeble & in poor health, if you could put him on probation this time you will oblige his mother & keep her as without him she will be very badly placed not being able to do anything herself. Hoping you will try to do something in this case.
