The People } Court of General Sessions, Part II.
 Robert Hesse } Before Judge Gildersleeve Tuesday October 23, 1888. Indictment for grand larceny.

John Lugsmeier, sworn and examined.
 I live at 16 Greenwich St; on the 27th of Sept. I knew the prisoner; he was living in my house in a little room next to where the jewelry was; there was a door between the rooms and that door was nailed up; the prisoner lived there for a week. I had in the adjoining room three silver watches, a gold watch and chain, which belongs to my wife, and gold rings and bracelets and a gold neck pencil; the whole property was worth at least $150.
 We found on the 27th of Sept. that the nails had been drawn out of the door and I found this hammer in the room.
 We missed the things a week after. The prisoner went away in the morning of the 27th and left his empty trunk there and did not leave anything in it. My wife missed the watch and she asked me where I put it? I told her I put it in the same place where it was. That was on Friday morning the 28th of Sept. He said that he got work and he wants to board with us. He did not say how long he wanted to stay there; he wanted me to trust him one week's board; he did not pay me that either. I asked him for the money and he said I will pay you tomorrow. I got up in the morning and he skipped away; he was gone. Some of my shirts were in his bed. I have seen some of this property since - my wife's watch and chain and gold pencil; it was in Simpson's pawnshop. I found the gold pencil, ^{and tickets} in his house, in the boarding house corner of First ave. and Houston St. That was part of the property which was stolen from me on the 27th of Sept. We found two pawn tickets with him, but one belongs to him. The officer took the tickets and went to Simpson's and found out what those tickets represented; they called for a gold watch and chain. I saw that watch and chain, and it was stolen from me. Cross examined. The pawn ticket was found in his pocketbook; he had it in his pocket and he tried to put it away, and the officer said, "Hold on, let me see that." This took place in Houston St. where we found him. It was a lodging house.

George Gick sworn and examined. I am an officer of the 24th precinct on special duty. I arrested the prisoner and found him at the corner of Houston St. and First Avenue in a lodging house on the second floor; he was in bed at the time I found him; he opened the trunk and I searched it and I found a gold locket and a gold pencil in a trunk; the property is now at the property clerk's; the complainant identified the property that I found in the prisoner's trunk. I searched his pocket and I took his pocket book. There was two pawn tickets in his pocket - one was blue; he said that was his watch, and then I went to search further in the pocket book and inside a little lap I found a yellow pawn ticket and that represented a watch and chain; that ticket was issued by Simpson. I went to Simpson's and presented the ticket. I got a watch and chain and two rings and a gold pencil which were identified by the complainant. The prisoner said it was his wife's watch and chain. At the station house he said he was not married and afterwards he said he bought that watch and chain from somebody at Ligney's where he was boarding.

Robert Harse sworn in his own behalf I am a baker and confectioner and lived last at the corner of Hurston St. and Second Ave. I am in this country three months. I know the complainant since I have been here. I bought that pawn ticket in front of his house. I did not break into the complainant's room on the 24th of Sept. and steal jewelry. When I first came to the complainant's house his little boy was playing with the locket. I asked the little boy whose locket that was? He said he found it in the street and I took the locket away from him; the pencil I brought from Germany. I paid three dollars for the pawn ticket. Cross Examined. A man by the name of Krouser, from whom I bought the ~~watch and chain~~ ^{paper ticket}, told me it was a watch and chain. I intended to redeem it some time. I did not redeem it because I had not much money. I did not say to the officer that the watch belonged to my wife. I owe the complainant seven dollars for board. I left his place on Saturday morning and told him I was going to work as a baker in Hurston St. I told him I did not need the bed any more.
