WILLIAM J. GOGGINS, 217 Third Avenue, cook and carver.

On the 20th of April, 1888, I kept an eating saloon at 1057 Third Avenue and employed the defendant as cook. In the afternoon of said day about three o'clock, the defendant asked me to take a glass of whiskey with him. I accepted the invitation. Immediately thereafter I became drowsy and the defendant suggested to me to go to bed. He took me to his room 172 East 62 Street. I undressed and hung my overcoat, my Prince Albert coat and my vest containing a silver watch alongside the bed. I locked the door of ^{the} ~~them~~ room and placed the key thereto upon a little table under the window. The defendant urged me to lie on the inside of the bed, and he laid himself on the other side. I fell asleep. At about five o'clock I awoke and found my said overcoat, my Prince Albert coat and my vest with the watch missing. The defendant was gone, and the door was unlocked, leaning merely against the lock. He did not return to work, and I did not see him again until the 23d of December, 1888, when I had him arrested. I reported the theft to the Sergeant in the 67th Street Station House on the afternoon when it occurred. I am positive that the articles aforesaid were in the said room when I went to bed. Their value was $32. On the 20th of April, 1888, I lived at 172 East 63d Street. I had to close my business on said day. I am informed that the defendant did not return to his room either. After the discovery of my loss, I went downstairs and inquired of the store keeper whether he had seen the defendant leave the house. When I came out of his store again I met Mr. Jackson in the hallway.

RICHARD JACKSON, 217 Third Avenue, Cook.

On the 20th of April, 1888, I saw the complainant and the defendant go to the latter's room in 172 East 62d Street. The complainant had his overcoat on. I entered the said room a few minutes after they had arrived. They were sitting on the edge of the bed in their shirt sleeves. The complainant had a watch chain on his vest. He requested me to return in about two hours, as he wanted to sleep for a couple of hours. When I returned I found the door locked and received no response to my knocking. On searching the hallway of the ground floor, I met the complainant without a vest or coat. He informed me of his loss stated by him above. I had been in complainant's employ until the said 20th of April, 1888, when he failed.

Handwritten signatures and initials in black ink, including a large signature 'J. J. J.' and several smaller initials and scribbles.
