The People
vs.
Leonard Behring

Court of General Sessions. Part I Before Judge Cowing. Oct. 20. 1886.

Indictment for grand larceny in the second degree Albert Miller, sworn and examined.

I remember the 29th of Sept. and saw the defendant that day. I had known him before. I saw him that day at 11 1/2 Washington St. where I lodge about 9 or 10 o'clock in the morning. I had ten dollars and my intention was to buy a ticket to go to Germany; the prisoner said, I could go to Germany for a few dollars; then he took me and we crossed the river and went to the Red Star line; then he said he talked with a man who employed workmen to work on board the steamer; he said I could get employment in the kitchen of the steamer and would have to pay only three dollars. I said I would go on board the steamer because the man would want to see me personally; the defendant said that that was not necessary, that the man would not like it. I then gave him three dollars; he came back and said, "everything is settled now, everything is in order." He took me over to Jersey city. He asked me to pay him a dollar for his trouble and I gave it to him. We left and we came over to New York; he took me into a saloon. I don't know the streets; he requested me to pay for two glasses of beer and a five cent peice fell out of my hand and dropped on the floor. At that time I had my pocket book with $4.80 in my hand. I stopped down to get the five cent piece and he snatched the pocket book out of my hand. He said, "you may trust me, I will take care of your money," he stuck the pocket book into my vest pocket, left side. I said, I don't keep it in that pocket. I took the pocket book out of the vest pocket and at the same time I looked where he is and he was gone. I had $4.80 in the pocket book and when I looked into it there was only $1.80 left. I have not seen my three dollars since. I found or saw the defendant two days later and I saw him in Court when he was in custody of Officer Groden. Cross Examined. Had $9.90 in my pocket when I started out that morning.

Peter Groden sworn. I am a police officer connected with the 26th precinct and detailed for duty at Castle Garden and have been there for some years. I have known the defendant three or four years. I arrested him on the 5th of Oct. in Washington St. I think opposite No 12. I had seen the complainant before that time and had a talk with him. I told the defendant what I arrested him for on the complaint of Mr. Miller who told three or four days before about the larceny. The defendant left the place that he generally used to hang out previously. I told the defendant that I arrested him on the complaint of a man for robbing him last Sunday; he said that he spent the money and he gave him some; that was about all the conversation.

Leonard Behring sworn and examined in his own behalf testified. I knew the complainant first when he came to 11 1/2 Washington St. one night and lodged there; he got work on a farm, and I did not see him till he came back that morning; he asked me if I would not be kind enough to see if he could not get work on board the Antwerp line of steamers; he told me he had ten dollars but that was not sufficient to buy a ticket. I told him he was an old man and it would be hard for him to get work in the ship in the engine room. I had nothing particular to do and I crossed the ferry with him. We wanted to go inside of the dock, but they were busy loading the ship and we went into a lager beer saloon in Jersey City adjoining the dock; we had a glass of beer; there were several sailors and longshore men in there; one man who looked to me to be a sailor spoke to me; he says, "What does that old man want?" I told him that he would like to work in the Antwerp line of steamers over. He said, there might be a chance. I told him that the man would be willing to pay him for his trouble; he said it would be three dollars and the man gave him the money; we had another glass of beer and came over to New York. I had to go to Canal St. to look for one of the Panama line of steamers, and the complainant went his way. I had not seen him up to the night; he said, I dont know what became of my money, but I missed considerable of my money. I said, I dont know anything about it. The next morning he asked me to go over to Jersey with him; he said nothing about the robbery. I said, I have something to do, but I will show you the ferry. The next day I heard there was a rumor around that this man had been robbed of his money and that Mr Groden the detective had it in hand. It frightened me more or less and I thought the accusation might be made against me and I kept a little out of the way, but I was always around and five or six days after Mr Groden arrested me I did not snatch his pocketbook from him; the only money I got was the one dollar which he gave me for my trouble. I was not in a saloon with the complainant after we came back from Jersey to New York. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty. He was sent to the State prison for four years.
