The People vs. Jacob Solomon
 Court of General Sessions. Before Judge Gildersleeve. August 2. 1880.
 Indictment for felonious assault and battery.

Rossana Bass, sworn and examined, testified I lived in 71 Forsythe St. at the time the assault was committed; it was between four and five o'clock in the morning; it was committed at 15 Christie St. in a lager beer saloon. I went in to look for my husband; he had been out all night. I woke up and missed him out of the house and went out to look for him. Did you find him there? Not at the time, he started to go home. I saw the prisoner there; he first took my pocket book out of my hand and he would not give it back. Because I said something about the pocket book he had a knife in his hand and he stabbed me in the head and he hit me two or three times and knocked me on the floor and gave me a kick on the forehead and broke three of my ribs. I have a letter from the doctor in the hospital. The 14th of January I went in and the 26th of March I came home. The knife had only one blade, and to the best of my opinion the blade was about three inches long. I said to him, "Give me the pocket book you took out of my hand." He said he did not take it. I said, "You did; you won't go out of this house until you give it to me." As I turned to go towards the door he had a knife in his hand and he stabbed me with it in the head, he hit me two or three times, knocked me down on the floor and give me a kick on the forehead and broke three of my ribs. I had to be helped home. I first went to the Tenth ward station house and reported it, I was helped by two men, strangers, home. I knew the prisoner before. Cross Examined. My maiden name was Rossanna Smith. I was married nine years ago in St. Stephens church 28th St. near Third Avenue. Joseph Young was the name of the man, he is dead. I married George Bass sixteen months after that in Essex Market Court; he works in a shoe store near Chatham Square. I do my own house work. I don't do anything else for a living. I went into 65 Christie St. on the 1st of January between four and five in the morning. I was in there about ten minutes. The moment I went in the prisoner snatched my pocket book. There were several people in the store at the time. My husband was not in the store the time I came in. As far as I know the prisoner did not have a fight with Bass. I did not find out I had any ribs broken till I went to the Hospital.

spoke about the pain in my back and in my left side at Essex Market. I do not frequent 15 Christie St. I do not have occasion to go to that saloon to look for my husband at four or five o'clock in the morning. I knew the proprietor and his son. I was arguing and quarreling with the prisoner for about ten minutes about the pocketbook; the proprietor and his son were behind the bar and they did not interfere; the prisoner ran out when he stabbed me; there were several people there at the time, I did not count them; none of them interfered when he took the pocket book I remember being examined by a doctor at Essex Market Police Court. He said it could happen by falling against something, but I knew what he was cut with. I have got a letter from the hospital where I was kept all the time Jacob Solomons, sworn and examined in his own behalf testified I was sent to the penitentiary from this Court for larceny. I was never arrested before that. I knew the woman who complains against me and the man whom she claims is her husband; he was in this saloon that morning. I went into this place about two o'clock in the morning; it was New Year's night. I went in there and had a couple of glasses of beer. I seen in the back room they were playing cards in there. I looked on for a while and then I took a hand in myself; two of us was playing poker for two hours. I never "seen" an ace, I was out about twenty dollars. I lost all the money I had with me. I told Bass he was cheating me; she was not in the room where we were playing cards but she was there the time he struck me and two of us got fighting. There was four or five women got around me and a couple of men.

 One struck me with the glass ^{on} the head and one with a stick; they were all around me; they scratched my face and tore the eyes out of my head. I thought the best way to do was to get out of that house. I did not stab the woman with a knife. As I was going out of the place there was four or five of them had hold of me. I had an overcoat and they tore it off me. I was trying to get out of the house, I was near getting killed. I pushed her away and she fell. I don't know whether she struck her head or not. I ran home, and as I was going along the next night I was arrested. I did not take a knife to the woman or strike her in any way; there was four or five women there tearing and scratching me, I was not acquainted in that house. Cross Examined. I often spoke to the man whom she says is her husband, but I had no trouble with him before that. I was arrested on the corner of Bayard St and the Bowery.
 The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of assault and battery with a recommendation to mercy.
 He was sent to the penitentiary for 6 months.

April 16th 1880.

On evening of March 23rd patient Annie Harris was admitted to ward 7 suffering from a scalp wound.

Examination revealed a lacerated & contused wound about $\frac{1}{2}$ inch above left eyebrow.
The edges of wound were irregular & contused.

The length of wound was about 3 inches & the edges, gaped $\frac{1}{8}$ inch; the depth about $\frac{1}{4}$ inch extending down to the Pericranium;

As well as I remember no bare bone was to be found.

Upon admission I found the dressings saturated with blood, but after that there was no hemorrhage that required treatment beyond compression.

There was another small wound about $\frac{1}{2}$ inch long, $\frac{1}{4}$ inch deep over left malar bone,

On admission patient was suffering slightly from shock.
