THE PEOPLE

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS, PART I.

vs

BEFORE RECORDER SMYTHE.

JOHN VOGEL.

Thursday, September 8, 1892.

Indictment for injury to property.

A Jury was empannelled and sworn.

THOMAS STOCKDALE, sworn and examined:

What is your business? Licenced vendor. Where do you live?
I live in 151st Street and Morris Avenue, New York City. Were you in 138th Street, near Willis Avenue, on the 18th day of July last? Yes, between two and three o'clock in the afternoon. What were you doing there? I was serving customers, selling potatoes and trying to make a living, and this man came along and drove. Out of what kind of a wagon were you serving potatoes? A Peddling wagon. A four wheeled affair?
Yes. Light box? Yes. One horse? Yes. Were you alone? I had two or three young men with me, helping me. About where in 138th Street were you when you first saw this defendant Vogel? Going towards Willis Avenue, on the right side of the street going down towards Port Morris, on the side towards Port Morris; I was going towards the river. I was on the down town side, going down towards Port Morris. At 138th Street where you were is the street paved? Yes. Two car tracks in the middle of the street? Yes. Were there any other vehicles in the immediate neighborhood of your wagon and this man's wagon when he came close to you? No. Which way did he approach? The same road, I was standing still attending to my business. Were you against the curb on the south side of the way? Yes. Was anything between you and the inner curb? No.
No car or anything in the whole roadway? No. Your wagon was an ordinary licenced wagon was it not? Yes. How many feet from one wheel to the other? Six and a half feet, I was right along the curb. It is a very wide street, room for six trucks to go through that street, plenty of room for everybody. I was in the wagon. What were your two men doing, were they taking potatoes into the houses to sell? Yes. The defendant was driving alongside of me and he dumped the wagon over; his front right wheel took hold of my left hind wheel and dragged me right along, and turned the wagon over on me. He dragged me about 75 feet. Did he upset your stuff out of your wagon? Yes. Were you thrown out? Yes, right on the pavement. What did you do when your wagon upset and you fell out? Two officers caught hold of the horses and arrested him. They seen they dragged me. Describe to the jury at what pace his horses were going, were they running while pulling you along? Yes, a dog trot right along. Running up against the curb? Yes. Do you know the names of the two officers who arrested him? Mr. Clark and some other officer. Vogel was arrested there, he was fetched down to the 125th Street station; they put him under bail there, they kept him over night, that is all, he came out the next morning. My wagon was all broke up; the axle was bent, not broken; it was injured so I could not use it. You were hurt yourself? I was hurt, the small of my back is hurt, I cannot walk. What was the value of the wagon? It ought to be worth a hundred dollars; it was three or four years old, may be less or more. How long had you run it during that four years? I run it two years and a half or three years, I had it repaired all the time, nothing broken there.

I was just after fetching out of the shop when it was broke up. It was in good order? Yes.

CROSS EXAMINATION:

Did you ever see this defendant before? No, I never seen the gentleman, I do not know what cause he had for doing it. I halloed and he never stopped. When I was sitting in the wagon, when he was dragging right along, he said, where are you going. He struck you first with the wheel of this wagon, before you cried out you were in your wagon were you not? Yes. You did not halloo to him before the wheel of his wagon took the hind wheel of yours? No. You kept hallooing while he was dragging you 75 feet? Yes. He was driving a heavy wagon with two horses; he had a load of empty barrels.

JOHN J. WIMMER, sworn and examined:

You did not see this man did you? No. He was turned over to you in the 125th Street police station? Yes, turned over to me. You did not see the occurrence at all? No, I do not know anything about the case. Who turned him over to you? Officer Clark and Officer Brennan of the 33rd, it was their day off; they met me and asked me to take the case. I know nothing about this case, it was handed over to me.

PATRICK OATES, sworn and examined:

What is your business? I am a brick-layer, by trade. Where do you live? 509 East 151st Street. Were you in the neighborhood of 138th Street and Willis Avenue on the 18th of July last? Yes. I was collecting a little bill over there and I was going through that way. What time? About three o'clock, in that neighborhood, in the afternoon. Did you see this defendant Vogel? Yes. Where was he? On a brewer's wagon. He was on a large brewery wagon piled up with kegs. What pace was he going when you came along? He was going at an outrageous pace, he was going seven miles an hour at the time I seen him, he was driving furiously, and he appeared to be pretty drunk. Which way was he coming when you saw him? Towards Willis Avenue, towards Port Morris. Where was the complainant in this case, Thomas Stockdale, did you see him? His wagon was standing on the curb-stone, pretty close to the curb-stone, I should judge. This man came along and his wheel caught into Stockdale's hind wheel and he dragged him I should judge about 70 to 75 feet, and he dumped the horse and the load and the man, and all was dumped over and broke the wagon. Was there any obstruction on that highway between the extreme southern side of the street and the other curbstone? Not that I could see; it is all open and a very wide street, there were no other vehicles in sight. Where was Stockdale's wagon, was it up against the curb? It was standing very close to the curb and his boy was dealing out some other vegetables, potatoes, etc., what he had in the wagon. This man (the defendant) drove at a furious rate right into his wagon and dragged him along. How many feet or how many yards away was this defendant, Vogel, with the beer wagon when you first saw him going from Stockdale's wagon? I was coming from Willis Avenue towards Alexandria Avenue and I heard the rattling of a heavy wagon and I looked; I thought the man was driving at rather a furious rate. The next thing he caught Stockdale's wagon and dragged it along and one wheel got locked in the other and dragged him along about 70 or 75 feet until the wagon upset. And the horse was upset? Yes; and I saw two policemen coming along and run after the brewer man. He tried to drive off; the officers caught him near Willis Avenue. Mounted policemen, were they? This gentleman here and another policeman, I did not see any of them mounted; there was two officers, Clark and Brennan. When Stockdale had been dragged about 75 feet on the back, Vogel and his wagon and his Team---? He was on the team until the policemen arrested him and took him off it. Did he slack his pace until after he let go Stockdale's wagon? He did not slack, he went right along. No interruption at all? Not at all, the policemen called for him to stop. Were you present when the policeman stopped the horse? I was probably a hundred feet away. The policeman I saw was on foot. Could you tell how he stopped that wild team, did he take him by the head? I was looking after him and the policeman walked up and took the horse by the head and stopped him and arrested that man. There was two policeman. Did they both run after the horses and catch them at the same time? I could not solemnly swear that both caught him, I know one did.

CROSS EXAMINATION:

You were behind this wagon? I was. I saw the driver, he was on the wagon, I was walking down Willis Avenue on the south side of the way, one of these men drove up, I heard the rattling of the wagon and the furious driving; it drew my attention, the first thing I saw he caught in the wagon and spilt this man and the load in the street; I was walking, I was going in the opposite direction to the defendant. He was the only man on the drivers seat. I did not see anybody else except him.

JAMES L. KINNELLY, sworn and examined:

Where do you live? 610 East 138th Street. Then this occurrence that has been testified to by these witnesses took place right near where you live? About a hundred feet away from my store. You keep a butter and egg store there do you? Yes. Did you see the occurrences related by these witnesses on the 18th of July last, about three o'clock in the afternoon? Yes. Where were you when Vogel came up with the brewery wagon? I was standing in front of my store, I saw the wagon driving along kind of lively, I saw him catch the hind wheel of the peddler's wagon. When I seen him catch the hind wheel I ran

5 towards the wagon and as I got there the wagon was dumped over.

He did not try to stop or make any effort to stop. You were looking at this defendant as he was in the box of that beer wagon? Yes, and all the neighborhood was hallooing at him. Everybody was hallooing at him to stop until Officers Brennan and Clark got hold of his horse and then he made two or three attempts to get away. Did you see him attempt to stop his horses? I know he did not attempt to stop them, I was looking at him. And he went on until the officers grabbed his horses? And then he wanted to go on, didn't want to stop even for them.

CROSS EXAMINATION:

Are you alone in that store? No. You had assistance on that day? My wife takes care of the store, I work at the carpenter business, I was not working that afternoon. She was in the rear of the store. You left the store empty and ran down to see what was the matter? Yes. You go out on all such occurrences? No, not necessarily, sometimes I go after a glass of beer or something, my wife takes care of the store. Did you shout after this man? Yes. Did he turn back to look at you? No, he did not pay any attention at all, I do not know whether he heard me. Ordinarily he ought to have heard somebody, there was enough hallooing at him. Everybody that seen him was shouting. The horses were not going so very fast, they were going along at a good gait, going along at a pretty fair gate for a brewery wagon, I should judge. How fast did you consider it? It was loaded up and the barrels piled away up, and I should judge they ought to go at a walk. You believe a man who was an experienced driver would not drive his horse at such a rate? He would, but he had not ought to. You have some feeling against this man? Not a particle, I drink their beer every day, if I had anything against them I would not drink their beer.. Like every other good citizen

I presume you think people on the public highway have some rights? Yes, I never saw Stockdale before and I never saw the brewers driver. After this wagon was upturned by the defendant's wagon, you say he continued right ahead at the same gait? Yes? So far as you could see he made no effort to stop? Not a particle. Will you swear he made no effort? I do. Where were you standing at that time? I was standing at that time right near where Stockdale got threw out. The beer wagon was loaded with empty kegs? It was a beer wagon with shades over the sides? Yes, but plenty of room remained for a man to look out of the box or the side; it was up. You mean the sunshade? Yes. You want this court and jury to understand that, notwithstanding the big load on that wagon and the shade being up, you could see his every move? I did not see his move, I could tell whether he stopped the horses or not. If he had made an effort the horses would have stopped, that is what he was driving for.

Friday, September 9, 1892.

JOHN J. BRENNAN, sworn and examined:

You are attached to the 33rd precinct? Yes. Do you know this defendant John Vogel? No. Did you ever see him before today? No, the day he was arrested I saw him; he was arrested on the 18th of July. I saw him on the 18th of July in 138th Street, in this city, in the neighborhood of three o'clock in the afternoon. Where was he when you first saw him? Driving a brewery wagon, loaded with kegs, I do not know whether they were full or not, going towards Willis Avenue. Did you see Mr. Stockdale there? Yes. Was Stockdale on his wagon when you first saw him? No, he was after falling from the wagon. Was the wagon which this man Vogel was driving caught in the wagon of Stockdale? Yes, in the rear wheel, both of the rear wheels of the defendant's wagon. I was going along 138th St. towards Willis Avenue, Stockdale's wagon was right alongside the sidewalk and I heard a number of people calling, I turned around to look and saw Mr. Stockdale's wagon entangled with this brewery wagon, going towards Willis Avenue. Officer Clark and myself called to stop and he refused to stop. The officer ran and got hold of the horse by the bridle after going some distance. He upset Stockdale's wagon. Did you, with Officer Clark, go and take hold of the horses this man Vogel was driving? Yes. Any difficulty in stopping them? No. Were they in control, being driven, when you took hold of them? Yes. What did Vogel say? He did not seem to say anything, he seemed sullen and stubborn, we called to him to stop but he did not answer us. What was his condition as to sobriety? I could not say whether the man was drunk or sober. You took him out of the wagon? No? officer Clark got on the wagon and drove to the station house. He was arraigned at the station house before the Sergeant? Yes, I went with him, it was our day off. You went with him to the station house? Yes, on the wagon. The man was capable of controlling himself, taking care of himself. He gave his name at the station house to the Sergeant and his pedigree? Yes. How about the wagon of Stockdale? The wagon seemed pretty well broken up, I could not tell exactly.

EDGAR T. CLARK, sworn and examined:

You are attached to the 33rd precinct? Yes. You were in 138th Street in company with Officer Brennan on the 18th of July last? I was. Did you see this defendant, Vogel? Yes. Where was he when you first saw him? He was on the wagon. A loaded brewery wagon? Yes. Describe exactly what you saw?

8 This man Vogel was going East on 138th Street, there was a brewery wagon on the railroad track, this peddler's wagon stood between the railroad track and the curbstone. This man Vogel drove his team between the other brewery wagon and this peddler's wagon. I halloosed for him to stop; there was not room enough. He paid no attention, he went right on and over-turned the peddler's wagon, throwing Stockdale out; he was in the wagon also, and I believe broke the wagon, I do not know as to that. How far did he drag the wagon of Stockdale? About six or seven feet. Are you aware that the other witnesses in this case have testified that the wagon was drawn about 60 or 70 feet, and that there was no other wagon on that roadway at that time but the wagon of Stockdale and the wagon that Vogel was driving. I am not, I was here only to-day. Why is it that you did not appear in the police court in this case and that your name was not endorsed on these papers? I do not know.

THE CASE FOR THE DEFENCE:

JOHN VOGEL, sworn and examined:

Where do you live? 3038 Third Avenue. Who were you working for on the 18th of July, last? It was the first day that I commenced to work for Ebling, I entered the service of Ebling. On that day you were driving a brewery wagon up 138th Street? Yes. At 138th Street where I drove my brewery wagon there were two brewery wagons ahead of me, and I had new horses, they were very wild and the brake on the wagon I had was rusty because it was not used for some time and the brake would not work. I did not know what happened until I turned around and I heard a cry but I did not know what it was, I turned around and then I saw what it was. I tried to stop but I could not do it, I could not hold the horses. Do you know Mr. Stockdale? I never saw him before. Had you any feeling against him? No, I never was in Morrisiana before, it as the first time I came out. Did you drive into this man's wagon intentionally and purposely? No, the other two wagons they passed but my wagon caught his wheel, I could not stop the horses. Havv you ever been convicted of any crime before?

No, sir.

The Jury rendered a verdict of GUILTY, with a RECOMMEND-ATION TO MERCY.

S. M. Gidd ings, Esq.,

Dear Sir:

Replying to your letter as to a man named Isaac Polinsky, he was originally employed in Canal St. factory as floor boy, and from there was taken to the plating room under Mr. Wright. He came to Brooklyn factory and remained with us until last spring when he left us of his own free will to better his condition. During the time he was in the plating room, he rose from simply being a washing-out boy to have full charge of our silver and gold plating. During the three years he was in charge he had the gold, silver and other valuables in the shape of fine chemicals under his charge, and we can honestly say he did his work well and was thoroughly reliable while with us.

Yours very truly,
