Hugh Donnelly Esq.,

Chief Clerk to District Attorney &c.

Dear Sir:

When Chas. Marsh is arraigned on indictment by the Grand Jury on the several charges of abduction preferred against him at the instance of this Society, he will probably plead not guilty, in which case, the amount of bail should be increased. He was held to answer by the committing magistrate on two charges, and the Grand Jury have instructed four additional indictments, as I am informed, to be found against him on four other complaints preferred by the witnesses who appeared, - making six in all. His present bail is very insufficient in my judgment for so serious and aggravated a series of offences.

I prefer not to have any day of trial set until my return to town towards the end of next week, as I would like to be present and see the District Attorney before the day is fixed for the trial.

I remain, with great respect, doubtedly very feeble.

The presence of a large tumor in the region which is the 'habitat' of cancers affecting the stomach, his rapid emaciation in association with his other symptoms, warrant the opinion of organic disease of the stomach probably of a malignant nature.

His weak pulse, his temperature, the expression of face, the physical evidence of rapid loss of flesh, his gait in walking, his manner of standing, his general aspect warrant the statement that he is very feeble.

In my opinion he is in no condition to stand the strain of a trial at present, altho' he is undoubtedly stronger now than he will ever be hereafter, as the natural course of his disease is a fatal one.

He should, in my opinion, be removed to a place more fitted to the care of the sick than his present quarters, & I see no reason why he should suffer more by a transfer to the Island than to Bellevue Hospital.

Very Truly Yours
