Dear Sir:—

I have this day examined Caroline Keck, aged 13 years, of 525 East 150th Street, and find the following conditions:— Upon the posterior aspect of the left shoulder is a severe contusion, five inches long by two to three inches wide, covering the shoulder blade. Upon the outer and posterior aspects of the arm are numerous severe contusions. The arm is considerably swollen and inflamed. Upon the left forearm are several contusions. There are one or two contusions upon the right forearm. These contusions are of such a character as would indicate that they had been caused by the forcible application of some blunt object. They Indicted for BURGLARY in the first degree.

Indictment filed APRIL 5TH, 1892.

APPEARANCES:

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY BARTOW S. WEEKS,

For THE PEOPLE.

HUGH COLEMAN, ESQUIRE,

For THE DEFENCE.

ISIDORE J. SCHWARTZKOPF, THE COMPLAINANT, testified that he lived at 167 East 94th street. He remembered the 21st day of March, 1892. On the night in question his, the complainant's, wife had a seal-skin sack, worth $250.00. He subsequently saw the sack in the Harlem Police Court, in the possession of Officer Keefe. He saw the sack in the Harlem Police Court on the 22nd day of March. 167 East 94th street was a dwelling house, in which he, the complainant, lived with his family. He, the complainant, occupied the second and third floors with his family.

At half-past seven o'clock, on the eveing in question, he, the complainant, locked his apartments up, and personally locked the vestibule and hall door. He left his wife and children and servant girl in his home. He returned at about ten o'clock in the evening. When he returned the locks were in working order. When he returned he was informed that burglars had been in his premises and had been arrested.

In cross-examination the complainant testified that he lived in a private house. When he went out he closed the hall and vistibule doors, they locking with spring locks. He could not swear that the hall and vestibule doors were closed during his entire absence. All of the other tenants of the house had access to the house through those doors, but the tenants had latch-keys. He, the complainant, was in the auction business. He bought the sack for his wife about two years before the trial. He bought it new. His wife wore it frequently.

MOSES LOWENGOOD testified that he lived at 160 East 94th street. He saw the defendant, O'Brien, in East 94th street on the evening of the 21st of March, 1892, at half-past seven o'clock. He was standing at a railing, opposite the house of the complainant. He saw the co-defendant, Kelly, at about the same time. He saw Kelly going up the stoop of the complainant's house. Kelly went to the door of the complainant's house, and he, the witness, went to call a police officer. His, the witness's, attention was first called to the matter by his little boy, whom he had sent out for an evening newspaper. As the result of what his boy told him, he came out on his front stoop. He, the witness, saw Kelly enter the complainant's house, and then the witness went down the street to call a police officer. After that, he saw Kelly and O'Brien going down 94th street and turning the corner into Third avenue. O'Brien had a seal-skin sack on his arm. He, the witness, notified Officer Stevens, and Officer Stevens arrested the two men. Then, five minutes after he saw Kelly go into the vestibule of the complainant's house he, the witness, saw Kelly and O'Brien walking down 94th street, towards Third avenue, O'Brien having the sealskin sack on his arm.

In cross-examination the witness testified that O'Brien was standing on his, the witness's, side of the street when he first saw him. He had to pass O'Brien when he went to the corner to call the officer.

MARCUS LOWENGOOD testified that he lived at 160 East 94th street, with his father, the preceding witness. He went out for an evening paper for his father on the evening of the 21st of March, 1892. When he returned with the paper O'Brien and Kelly were together, and then Kelly crossed the street to the complainant's house, and went up the stoop. Then O'Brien whistled and Kelly came over and they spoke a few words, and then Kelly went across the street again and tried the door of the complainant's house and went in. About five minutes later he came down the stoop with the sealskin sack on his arm. Then he crossed the street and met O'Brien and they walked away together. At that time Kelly had the seal-skin sack on his arm.

In cross-examination the witness testified that when he saw these occurrences it was between half-past seven and a quarter to eight o'clock, in the evening.

JAMES DESWERNEY testified that he lived at 152 East 94th street.

He saw the defendant, O'Brien, in East 94th street on the 21st of March, at about a quarter to eight o'clock. He was leaning against the railing of the last house towards Third avenue ---- No. 172. He, the witness, was on his way from Third avenue. At that same moment, he, the witness, noticed a tall man, Kelly, coming across the street. O'Brien and Kelly joined, and walked down towards Third avenue. At that time Kelly had a cloak of some kind under his arm.

OFFICER JAMES G. STEVENS testified that he was attached to the 27th police precinct. He arrested the defendant, O'Brien, in company with one James Kelly, the code-fendant. He, the witness, was going down Third avenue from 95th street, when he met Mr. Lowengood. In consequence of Mr. Lowengood's complaint to him, the witness he arrested the defendant and Kelly. When he first saw the defendants they were on the South side of 94th street, going towards Third avenue. He arrested them about twenty feet south of 94th street, on the west side of Third avenue. He found a seal-skin sack in the possession of Kelly at the time of the arrest. The two men were walking together at the time of the arrest, and he heard them talking together. He stepped up quickly behind them, and got hold of both at once. Then officer Keefe came across the avenue and the witness transferred one of his prisoners ---- O'Brien ---- to Officer Keefe, and he, the witness, took Kelly with the seal-skin sack to the station house. At the station house the wife of the complainant identified the seal-skin sack.

OFFICER THOMAS KEEFE testified that he was attached to the 27th police precinct. On the evening of March 21st, 1892, he saw the defendant, O'Brien, and James Kelly in the custody of Officer Stevens. He saw a seal-skin sack at that time in the possession of Kelly. At the station house Mrs. Schwartzkopf identified the sack as hers. The premises 160 East 94th street were in the Nineteenth ward of the city of New York.

FOR THE DEFENCE, JAMES J. KELLY testified that he had been jointly indicted with the defendant, O'Brien, for the crime of burglary on the premises of the complainant in East 94th street. He had pleaded guilty of grand larceny in the first degree. O'Brien had nothing whatever to do with the burglary. O'Brien had no knowledge that the burglary was to be committed.

In cross-examination Kelly testified that he did not know O'Brien. He first saw O'Brien in the station house, on the night in question. He had never seen him before in his life. He did not know whether O'Brien was alongside of him or not at the time of the arrest, because he, Kelly, was drunk. He was not so drunk that he did not know that he had gone into the complainant's house and stolen the sack. He, Kelly, had been in a saloon drinking with a man, and the man took him down to the complainant's house and told him to go up on the stoop. The man said that the door was open. He, Kelly, went up the front stoop and tried the front door and found the door open. The man who took him to the house stood on the opposite side of the street. He, Kelly, went into the house and stole the seal-skin cloak, and came out of the house with the cloak on his arm. The man who had taken him to the house was not in sight when he came out of the house with the cloak. He, Kelly, then walked down to Third avenue and was arrested. O'Brien was not the man who had taken him to the house. The man with whom he was drinking in the saloon was named Joseph Colloins. He, the witness, believed Collins lived in 98th street, but he could not say. Collins was in the habit of hanging out in a liquor store in 98th street. He remembered stealing the sack but he did not force the front door nor the door of the parlor floor. When he got into the room where the sack was, it was lying on a chair. He couldn't remember whether he went up one or two flights in the house. He remembered a conversation with Officer Keefe in the station house, after he was locked up. Four of five police officers came down to his cell and asked him whom the man was who was with him, and he said he didn't know. At last, to get rid of the officers, he told them that he did know O'Brien and O'Brien was with him, but it was only done to get rid of the annoyance of the officers. On the morning after his arrest he did not ask Officer Keefe what had become of the "little fellow," meaning O'Brien, and Officer Keefe did not say that they let him go, and he, Kelly, did not say, "What did you do that for? He was just as much into it as I was." He might have said this, but he could not recollect. He had said that he could not recollect to the police officers in order to get rid of them. He had talked with O'Brien in the Tombs, but had never talked with him about the case. He did not ask O'Brien why he was locked up in the Tombs.

He supposed that O'Brien was locked up on suspicion of being with him.

IN REBUTTAL, OFFICER KEEFE, being recalled, testified that he had a conversation with Kelly in the station house, on the morning following the arrest. O'Brien was not present at the time. Kelly asked him, the witness, where the "little fellow," was, meaning O'Brien. He, the witness, said, "We turned him out," and Kelly said, "What did you do that for? He is as much into it as I am."
