PEOPLE ON MY COMPLAINT,

VERSUS

Conrad Bartel

As complainant in the above case, I beg to recommend the defendant to such leniency and clemency as the Court and District Attorney may see fit to show; but I expressly assert that my reasons for so doing are not controlled by any advantage to myself.

That since the arrest of the defendant I have become possessed of facts which lead me to believe that said defendant did not intend to commit a crime in the disposition by him of the horse and wagon the subject of the indictment herein and which had been in his possession some time previous to the sale thereof by him. That the family of the defendant consisting of a wife and children are in great distress and even lack for food, that friends of the defendant have agreed in case he be discharged from imprisonment to find for him immediate employment and to care for his family until he shall obtain means from such employment to provide for them, and I believe and am informed by those who have been acquainted with the defendant since his childhood that he has never before accused of any crime nor imprisoned upon any charge and that he belongs to a highly respectable family residing in Germany.

the same he treated them as belonging

Indictment filed, August, 1888.:	:

Tried, September 26th. 1888.

APPEARANCES:

Assistant District Attorney Bedford, for the people.
Mr. House, for the defence.

SIMON H. BECKER, the complainant, testified that he lived at 431 W. 39th street. He was in August last, a Deputy in the employ of City Marshall Goldstein. On the 11th of August, he went with Goldstein to the defendant's premises on First Avenue, between 85th and 86th streets. He reached the premises between half-past 10 and 11 o'clock in the morning. The defendant carried on the business of a butcher. When he and Goldstein reached the defendant's shop, the defendant was sitting in front of the shop and his mother was in the rear room. The door of the butcher's shop was open when he entered. There was another man accompanying Marshall Goldstein and himself. The Marshall went to the shop to levy on some property belonging to Block under an execution. Marshall Goldstein asked the defendant if he was ready to pay the bill, and if he was not, he told him that he would levy on his property. The defendant said "All right." Then the Marshall said to the witness and the other man, "go ahead and take out of the shop." It was said in the hearing of defendant. The execution had been shown to the defendant. Then he, the witness, and the other man commenced to take some meat that was there and put it into a wagon at the door. He, the witness, had just taken down some cleavers, so as to take them outside, when the defendant got up and took up a club. It was a regular policeman's night club, and then he hollowed to his mother to bring him the key, and when he got the key he started to lock the front door. He and his mother first shoved Marshall Goldstein out of the shop and then he and his mother pushed the door to and started to lock it. During this time he, the witness, was standing a little way off with his arms full of stuff. Then Burnett Smith, the man who was with Marshall Goldstein himself, walked towards the door and pushed the defendant away from the door. He, the witness, hollowed to Smith not to let the defendant lock the door and Block and his mother tried to shut the door. He, witness, tried to push Block's mother away from the door and Block struck him with the club. He, witness, took the club away from Block. Block struck him on the shoulder with the club; it was a pretty hard blow. He, witness, was trying after he got possession of the club to push Block's mother away from the door so that Burnett Smith could open it. Then the defendant got up a cleaver and threw it at him, the witness, The defendant was then six feet away from him when he threw it. He, the witness, had the key in his pocket and the cleaver struck the key and cut it (here the witness produced a key). The cleaver cut his, witness's leg above and below the key, about two inches each way. He had the cut sewed up. He didn't strike the defendant before the defendant threw the cleaver at him. He tried to push him away from the door. He also tried to push his mother away, but did not succeed.

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION, he testified that he didn't knock his mother down or assault the defendant with the club, before he was struck with the cleaver. Goldstein was looking through the door while this was going on. Just as he, the witness was struck with the cleaver, Burnett Smith got the door partly opened, and he, the witness, went to assist him in pushing the door open. Block then struck him, the witness on the head with the door key, and witness's head was cut open so that it bled. Smith gave him, the witness, his handkerchief to stop the blood and then the defendant began hollowing as if he had been hurt. Then he, the witness, was taken to a drug store across the street and a police officer brought the defendant over to him and he identified the defendant. As soon as his head was cut he got out of the shop.

5.

ISAAC C. GOLDSTEIN, testified that he lived in East East 57th. Street. He was a City Marshal attached to Civil Justice Morrell's District Court. On the 11th. of August, under and by virtue of an execution issued by Judge Morrell, he visited the premises of the defendant, in First Avenue, between 85th. and 86th. Streets, accompanied by the complainant and Burnett Smith. They were acting as his deputies. When he, witness, entered the butcher's shop, Block was sitting behind the desk and he, the witness, said to Block, "Mr. Block you had better pay up that execution that I had here a week ago." and he said he had no money, and witness said, "why don't you go and settle it with the stand?" Block said, "I have no money" and he the witness said, "I must levy on your property." Then the defendant said, "I would like to see you take it" then he, the witness called in his two men and told them to take the meat that was hanging in the saloon. He had two pieces of meat. Block said nothing. Then he, the witness, told the men to take the scales and butcher's fixtures. Block jumped up from his desk and drew out a club and his mother came from a back room and he halled for the key. He, the witness, stayed in the door to give his men a chance to carry out the goods, and the door was shut and he was pushed out and Block and his mother tried to lock the door. Then he saw through the glass of the door a scuffle between his men and Block and his mother. Block caught hold of the complainant as the complainant was coming towards the door with some things in his arms. Block had the club in his hands and told the complainant to put those things down. Then he struck the complainant on the shoulder. He, the witness, tried to get in, but he could not open the door. He then sent a man down to the police station for an officer and he then saw Block catch up the cleaver and throw it at the complainant, Lesser. The complainant at that time was standing about 5 or 6 feet from Block with his arms full of butcher's implements.. Then the officers came, and when the officers arrived the door was opened by someone and Lesser came out with his head bleeding, and he, the witness, told him to go over to the drug store. Block was in the back room when the officers went in and arrested and brought him out.

0728

OFFICER DANIEL DONGAN testified that he was in First Avenue, near 88th. Street with Officer Cagney, on the 11th. of August, when he saw a crowd assemble at 86th. Street and First Avenue. When they got to the defendant's shop, they met Mr. Goldstein and he told them what had occurred. They went inside. The door was locked but they knocked on the door and it was opened. It was about 11 o'clock in the morning. He and officer Cagney arrested the defendant and took him over to the drug store where the complainant identified him.

OFFICER DAVID CAGNEY, corroborated the previous witness.

FOR THE DEFENCE. Louis Block testified that when the Marshall came in, he asked him if he wanted to pay that bill and the defendant said that he could not afford to pay it, and he told his man to take the things out. His mother then came out of the kitchen and asked the complainant what he was doing, and the complainant gave her no answer and pulled a big butcher's knife against his mother. Then, he, the defendant, jumped up with a club and wanted to hit the complainant, and the complainant took the club away from him and struck him, the defendant, and his mother. When he, the defendant, had the club he intended to strike the complainant, but the complainant took the club away from him. He threatened to strike the complainant because he was pulling the knife against his mother. Then the complainant began to fight with his mother and he told his mother to go inside, and thereupon the complainant began to beat him all over his body with the club. Then he halloed to his mother to bring him a key to lock the door. He locked the door on the inside. He pushed them all out before he closed the door. He went into the kitchen to put on his coat after he had put them out and the officers came in and arrested him. They knocked at the door and he opened the door for them. He didn't throw any clever at the complainant.

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION, he testified that he had the clever in his hand and he said "if you don't go out I will kill you with that knife." Then Lesser dropped the club and caught hold of the clever and tried to take it out of his hand. He, the defendant, let go of the cleaver, and Lesser/dropped it, and dropped it right on his knee. That is the way he got cut. He did see Lesser bleeding, but he didn't know where from. He saw his head bleeding. He could not tell how he was wounded on the head.

ANNIE BLOCK, testified that she was 12 years of age and had never been in Court before. The defendant was her brother. She corroborated the defendant as to his version of the affray. She said that it was not her mother that gave the key to her brother, but she gave it to him.

EMILY BLOCK, testified that she was the mother of the defendant, and she corroborated her son and daughter in their testimony.
