Before,

HON. FREDERICK SMYTH,

Tried OCTOBER 13TH, 1892.

Indicted for GRAND LARCENY, in the FIRST DEGREE.

Indictment filed SEPTEMBER 26TH, 1892.

APPEARANCES:

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY BARTOW S. WEEKS,

For THE PEOPLE.

MR. MAYO,

For THE DEFENCE.

TONY TAINLENA, called by the People, being duly sworn, testified that he lived at 68 Thompson street, where he kept a fruit store, on the first floor. He had little box outside where he kept the fruit. He was in the doorway about three o'clock in the morning of the 23rd of August, 1892, and was falling asleep when the defendant put his hands in his, the witness's, pocket, and took the money out? He, the witness, waked up and saw the defendant run away. The officer came along and arrested the defendant. He, the witness, had a fruit store inside of the house, and also a fruit stand on the side-walk. When he fell asleep he had $2.50 in his right side pants pocket. What waked him up was that he felt when the defendant pulled his hands out of his, the witness's, pocket. He saw the defendant run, and ran after him. The defendant turned into Broome street. The policeman came up to him and asked him what he was missing. The policeman did not have the colored man with him when he asked that question. The policeman returned with the colored man, and told him, the witness, to go to the station house. He, the witness had never seen the defendant before. He recognized the defendant by the coat that he had on, the same coat that he, the defendant, had on now.

THEODORE McINTYRE, being duly sworn, testified that he was an of officer attached to the Eighth Precinct. On the morning of the 23rd of August, 1892, he saw the complainant at 68 Thompson, street, about three o'clock in the morning. The complainant was outside of his place. The complainant was asleep when he, the witness, crossed the street. The complainant was just getting up. He, the witness, saw the defendant go out of the complainant's store . He saw the defendant start to run down Thompson street and gave chase, then he, the witness fell down. Officer Newham who was just coming up chased the defendant and arrested him, took him to the station house, and then came to his, the witness's, post and notified him. Then he, the witness, went over to the complainant's place, and asked him if he had lost anything. He took the complainant to the station house. He, the witness, couldn't swear that the defendant was the man he saw coming out of the complainant's place, as he did not get a good look at the man's face. The man was of about the same height, and had the same sort of clothes on.

DANIEL HOMES, THE DEFENDANT, being called by the Defence, being duly sworn, testified that he was born in Virginia, and was twenty-seven years old. He came here on the sixth of August, 1892, with his wife. He was never outside the State of Virginia before in his life. He went to live at 190 Prince street. His wife was taken sick, and he sent her home. He was arrested the next night. He concluded to stay here, to see if he couldn't get some work. On the night of the 23rd of August he left home about five o'clock, and went to a ball room, and from there he went to a ball. He stayed in the ball-room until about eight or nine o'clock, and from there he went to a ball, on Sixth avenue. He couldn't tell whereabouts on Sixth avenue the ball was. After the ball he thought he would go down and see a man who told him, the defendant, that he would give him a job, and then he thought he would go home. He did not know the name of the man. The man was a stranger. The man was colored. He, the defendant, was going down town on the right side of the street, when he heard the rap of a "cop's" club, and ran. The policeman told him to stop, and asked him where he was going. He said, "Nowhere," he was going home. The officer took him to the station house and to the Jefferson Market Police Court the next morning. He, the defendant, was arrested in South Fifth avenue, and Grand streets. He saw one of the officers run after another man. The officer fell, and busted his pants. He, the defendant, ran because he had heard that the "cops" clubbed people who were out late at night. He ran because he was scared. He was not on the side of the street where the complainant's store was at all. He knew that the store was on the right side, going down. It was three o'clock in the morning, but he thought he would see the man who was to give him some work. The man worked at night, cleaning up, in a saloon. He, the defendant, saw the policeman chase a man who was running, and he, the defendant, ran too. He, the defendant, was a farmer in Virginia. He was going down Thompson when he saw the policeman chase the man who was running. The policeman ran on the side where he, the defendant, was, and he, the defendant, ran across on the other side, because he thought the policeman was going to club him, as he had heard that policemen were in the habit of doing so in New York. He stopped running when he saw the policeman was after him. The policeman kept on after the man he was chasing, and he, the defendant, went on to Grand street where he met the "cop," who asked him where he was going, and ran him in. He, the defendant, ran from this policeman, because he was certain that the policeman was going to hit him. It was not the same policeman. This "cop" did not fall down; it was the other "cop" that fell down. The first officer was not chasing him at all, but was chasing the other man. The policeman who fell down and busted his pants was the policeman who took him to the station house. This officer said that he was going to swear his, the defendant's, life away, because he hurt his knee and busted his trousers. He, the defendant had the money with which he sent his wife home when he came here, fifteen dollars. He did not have fifteen cents when he got in the Police Station. He, the defendant, gave his wife seven dollars. he hired a room from a Mrs. Something, whose name he forgot, at No. 190 Prince street. It was a three story house, and he had the third floor, front room. He paid $2.00 a week for the room. He did not know the name of the man who was going to give him work.
