Hon P. B. Olney
District Attorney
Dear Sir.

I have been requested by friends in Philadelphia to interest myself professionally and personally for a young man, recently in their employ, named Talbot. Under some temptation, not easily accounted for, young Talbot stole some valuables and pawned them - all of which however have been recovered and are now in the hands of the Police Department of New York. The party from whom he stole these articles is not only willing, but anxious to withdraw any charges he may have made against him, believing it to be his first offense and that he is deeply penitent for his crime.

I have seen Talbot and conversed fully & freely with him. I am satisfied this is his first offense, for which he is thoroughly contrite. His employers are willing to continue him in their employ, for the reason that they believe it is his first offense and will be his last. In view, therefore, of the three 0377

Controlling circumstances viz: First, that it is his first offense beyond all question; Second. That the party from whom he stole is willing to withdraw the charge ^{made} against him; and Third, that his employers at the time of his criminal act are willing to retain him in their employ after his discharge, I respectfully suggest that it is a proper case to accept a plea for a lesser offense and to move the Court to suspend sentence.

Permit me to add that it is a case in which I always applied to Judge Henry A. Moore for a suspension of sentence which was always promptly granted when I had the honor to hold the office of District Atty of Kings County.

Very Respectfully
Your oth Servant
