Tried, SEPTEMBER 8TH, 1893.

Indicted for GRAND LARCENY, in the FIRST DEGREE.

Indictment filed AUGUST 14TH, 1893.

APPEARANCES:

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY GUNNING S. BEDFORD,

For THE PEOPLE.

MESSRS. BLAKE & SULLIVAN,

For THE DEFENCE.

FRANK KASTEN, THE COMPLAINANT, being duly sworn, testified that he was a house and sign painter, by trade. He lived at 67 Market street, and had a store at that number. About a quarter to 10, on the evening of July 31, 1893, he was standing in the doorway of his store. He had a watch and chain and locket on at that time, the value of which was $40.00. The defendant Sullivan came along and made a jump and grabbed his watch and pushed him. He ran after Sullivan, and while he was running after Sullivan Cosgrove hit him in the neck and he fell down. He was about to grab Sullivan when somebody hit him. He was not sure that Cosgrove was the man who knocked him down. He turned around, just before he was knocked down, and he saw Cosgrove standing there. After getting up again he went into his house, and sent his wife for a police officer.

In cross-examination the complainant testified that he was a married man. No. 67 Market street was about four doors from the corner of Hamilton street -- between Hamilton and Cherry streets. He did not know whether or not the day in question was the day of the Ahearn Association's picnic. A number of people came around the corner before Sullivan robbed him. He understood that the people belonged to a ch wder party. He had never seen Sullivan before the night in question, nor had he ever seen Cosgrove before that night. He had not drank anything that night. Sullivan came from the direction of Hamilton street. He had a large light in his store. There was a gas lamp about twelve feet away from his store. Cosgrove was the man who struck him the blow. He next saw Sullivan and Cosgrove in the custody of the officer. He had given the officer a description of the man who knocked him down. He could see the people who were passing his store that night as plainly as he could by daylight.

HENRY HERRLICH, being duly sworn, testified that he was attached to the Seventh police precinct. The complainant described to him the people who robbed him and knocked him down. He tried to find the people but did not succeed. Officer Curry arrested the defendants.

The complainant was in the station house when the defendant Sullivan was brought in. Officer Curry said to the complainant, "Are you positive that is the man who robbed you?" The complainant said, "Yes, that is the man who took my watch and chain." Sullivan said, "No; I was on the Ahearn excursion, and I didn't get off until late; it was 9 o'clock when we got off, and I didn't have anything to do with it." The officer asked, "What has become of Cosgrove?" Sullivan said he didn't know anything about Cosgrove. Cosgrove was taken to the station house, later on, and he, the witness, asked the complainant, "Are you positive that this is the man that knocked you down?" The complainant said, "Yes. Cosgrove said, 'I wasn't there.'" The descriptions that the complainant gave him corresponded with those of Cosgrove and Sullivan, and that was the reason Cosgrove and Sullivan were arrested.

FOR THE DEFENCE, ANNIE COSGROVE, being duly sworn, testified that she lived at 53 Monroe street, with her mother. The defendant Cosgrove was her brother. He was a truck driver. She remembered the 31st day of July, 1893, the day of the picnic of the Ahearns. She was on that picnic. Her sister, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. McGuire's two children, Miss O'Brien, and her brother, the defendant, were also on that excursion. The barges landed at the foot of Clinton street, about half-past 9. She got off the barges with Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. McGuire's children, Miss O'Brien and her brother. The defendant was the only brother she had. The party went through Cherry street to Rutgers, and through Rutgers to Water street, and through Water street to the corner of Pike, where her other sister, Mrs. Mahoney, lived. They then went to her mother's house. It was about 11 o'clock when she, Miss O'Brien and the defendant, Cosgrove, reached her mother's house, because the store downstairs was closed, and it usually closed at 11 o'clock.

In cross-examination the witness testified that she knew the time the barge got in, because she had a watch and she looked at it. They stayed at Mrs. Mahoney's house about an hour or an hour and a half. Her brother did not leave the room while they were in Mrs. Mahoney's house. The defendant came off the barge with her, and she did not lose sight of him from that time till 11 o'clock.

MARY O'BRIEN, being duly sworn, testified that she lived at 324 East 54th street, with her mother and father. She remembered the day of the Ahearn picnic, because she went on it. It was on a Monday, but she did not remember the date. She knew the defendant Cosgrove, and had known him ever since childhood. She saw Cosgrove on the excursion. Cosgrove's two sisters were there. The barges landed at the foot of Market street, between half-past 8 and 9 o'clock, she could not tell the exact time. After getting off the barges they went to the defendant's sister's house. This sister was Mrs. Mahoney, who was not on the excursion. They remained at Mrs. Mahoney's house about half an hour. The defendant did not leave the house while they were there. She, the witness, the defendant Cosgrove, and the defendant's sister, Annie, left Mrs. Mahoney's house together.

They then went to the defendant's house. She did not know the exact time they got to the defendant's house, but she thought it was about half-past 10 because she arrived at her home at 11 o'clock. The defendant Cosgrove had been in her sight from the time the barge landed until she left him, at his own home.

THOMAS J. HORAN, being duly sworn, testified that he lived at 24 Rose street. He was a messenger, employed by the American District Telegraph Company. He was nineteen years of age. He knew the defendant Sullivan, and had known him about ten years. He remembered the day of the Ahearn picnic. He was on that picnic. He saw the defendant Sullivan on the picnic. He didn't know what date the picnic was on, but he knew it was on a Monday. He got off the barge at the foot of Clinton street, accompanied by the defendant Sullivan and a girl. The barges landed about 9 o'clock. They left the girl in Hamilton street, and then went down to Sullivan's house, arriving there about half-past 9. He stayed at Sullivan's house until after 10 o'clock. A man of the name of Eugene Woods was with Sullivan when he left him.

In cross-examination the witness testified that he had no watch. He looked at the clock when he got to Sullivan's house, and it was just half-past 9. The clock was going at the time. Sullivan lived at 344 Water street.

HANNAH WOODS, being duly sworn, testified that she lived at 344 Water street. The defendant Sullivan was her nephew. She remembered the occasion of the Ahearn picnic. The defendant left the house, in the morning, on the day in question, to go to that picnic; she did not know where he went. He returned to the house about 10 o'clock, it might be a little before or after, accompanied by the witness Horan. The defendant worked with his father, who kept a fruit stand.

In cross-examination the witness testified that she had gone to the complainant and told him, "if he thought Sullivan did it, if he was sure Sullivan did it" that she would rather pay him double the value of the watch and chain than see her nephew prosecuted.

THOMAS COSGROVE, ONE OF THE DEFENDANTS, being duly sworn, testified, in his own behalf, that he lived at 53 Monroe street, with his mother and sister. His father was dead. He had been working for nearly four years, and supported his mother and sister. He worked for Thomas F. Bonney, and had worked for him for three years. He had never been arrested in his life before this. He remembered the day of the Ahearn excursion. The boat got into New York about 10 o'clock, landing at the foot of Clinton street. He did not have a watch on that day. When he left the boat he was in the company of his married sister, Mrs. McGuire, his sister Annie, and Miss O'Brien. They went to Mrs. Mahoney's house, at the corner of Water and Pike streets. They stayed there about an hour or so. When he left that house he was accompanied by his sister Annie and Miss O'Brien. It was nearly 11 o'clock when they got to his home. He stayed home, and went to bed. He was arrested the next night. He never struck the complainant in his life. He never saw the complainant until the night of his arrest.

DANIEL SULLIVAN, ONE OF THE DEFENDANTS, being duly sworn, testified, in his own behalf, that he was eighteen years of age. He worked with his father, at a fruit stand. His father was in court. He had been working for his father about four years, since he left school. The fruit stand was on West street, near Washington Market. He remembered the day of the Ahearn excursion. He was on that excursion. The boat landed about half-past 9 o'clock, at the foot of Clinton street. Thomas Horan and several other boys were with him on that excursion. He got off the boat with Horan. Horan remained in his company until about five minutes past 10 o'clock. After Horan left him he went right up stairs and went to bed. He did not take the complainant's watch. He worked every day, and was an honest boy.

In cross-examination the defendant testified that this was not the first time he had been arrested.

in re-direct examination the defendant testified that he had been arrested once on suspicion of taking a keg of beer, but there was no evidence against him and Justice Hogan discharged him in the Police Court. He had also been arrested for disorderly conduct, and had been sentenced to one month.
