The People
vs.
Francis Leon

Court of General Sessions. Part First Before Judge Cowing. Dec 18. 1883.
Indictment for Grand larceny in the second degree.
Benjamin C. Jones. sworn. I live 30 Henry
st. and resided there the 12th of last month; the defendant was my room mate. I had a trunk in that room and in it was a revolver and a good many other things.
I lost a suit of clothes and a revolver. The clothes cost me forty five dollars. I had them about three months and had not worn them much - once or twice a week; the revolver was worth seven or eight dollars; the trunk was forced open and these things taken from it. I did not see the clothes again, but I saw the revolver in a pawn shop.
I missed these things about the 13th of Nov. I saw the defendant every week for two or three weeks before that; it was two or three weeks before that when my things were stolen. I saw him every week during the time that he was not there; he left before the 1st of Nov. if I am not mistaken; the things were stolen about the 13th of Nov; he was in my room a week after that. I saw him the night he was going to leave.
He said he wanted me to pay his room rent another week and I refused and 05 18

he left. I told him about the loss of the things; he told me he suspected Mr. Salmon of stealing them; he is a young man who occupied a room in the same building. He had one key for our room; it was frequently in the defendant's possession; he had seen my revolver. Cross Examined. The defendant continued to room with me one week after I missed those things. I did not accuse him of taking them during that week. I accused him two or three weeks after when I found that pawn ticket. I suspected him at the time, but I had no evidence. The evidence I subsequently found was the sale of the pawn ticket to Mr. Rogers, which bore the name of Salmon. Salmon left the house before the revolver was stolen. I missed my clothes the very day Salmon left the house, but not my revolver; it was a week after that I missed it. Salmon was not a friend of mine. I don't know what was in his room. I had nothing in my room. I do not say that he could not get access to my room; it was locked at night. I was not there in the day time, I could not say whether he was working or not. When I accused Leon the first time of taking these things he said he knew where all my things were and would help me to get them back if I would not prosecute and wanted to know what I would give him to go and get these things back. I am quite positive as to that. Leon changed boarding houses and I did not know where to find him. I did not know where he was employed. He told me when I had him arrested that he got the pawn ticket representing the revolver from Salmon; he did not say that Salmon owed him money and that he took the revolver for it, but he did say that Salmon gave him the ticket representing the revolver as surety to keep him from telling me; he said he could lay his hand on my things that minute.

This Rogers, to whom the revolver was sold, is a clerk at the Glenmore lodging house. I knew Rogers and he knew me too.

Richard T. Rogers sworn. I was making beds at the Glenmore hotel. I bought a pawn ticket representing this revolver from Mr. Leon, the prisoner. On the 18th of Nov. I was making a bed and Leon approached me; he says, "Rogers, do you want to buy a ticket? I got stuck on one, it is all right. I am hungry and I have not got any money; give me 35 cents for it; it is in by the name of Salmon." I gave him 35 cents for it. The next morning I got the pawn ticket out - I paid $1.08 and got the pistol. I took the pistol then to 197 Grand St. and put it in for $1.50; I did not know it was stolen.

George Connor sworn. I am an officer and was searching round the lodging houses in West St. for him; the prisoner was brought to me by the officer on post. He said if he had time to get away he could tell the gentleman where his clothes was. I took him to Court next morning and Judge Murray asked him if he knew who took the clothes and he said, no. He said that he pawned the revolver himself.

Francis Leary, sworn and examined in his own behalf. I am seven months in the country I have never been arrested before. I came from London. I have worked at the International Publishing House and at McIntyre's 183 William St. I worked two weeks for him. I roomed with Jones at 30 Henry St. When he accused me of taking the revolver and clothes I insisted upon having an officer called. His clothes were hanging behind the door in a room to which everybody had access. I had nothing to do with taking them and knew nothing about it till Jones told me.

I obtained the revolver from a person who boarded in the house and who gave his name as Mark Salmon. I did not know it was Leon's. I pawned it in Salmon's name and he stood outside when I pawned it.

The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of petty larceny.
