Question. Give any explanation you may think proper of the circumstances appearing in the testimony against you, and state any facts which you think will tend to your exculpation?

Answer. On Saturday morning May 26th 1883, I was aroused from my sleep by my mother who told me that there was somebody in the house from my store, who wished to see me. I went out but found Patrick O'Neill who wished me to take a walk with him. At first I refused but finally he persuaded me to go and I went with him and the prisoner Reardon who was with him. We walked as far as 11th Street and 2nd Ave. and the others then suggested that we take a ride. We rode to Harlem. After we got out, Reardon took the watch in question out of his pocket and asked me to pawn it for him; he said he needed clothes and wished to pawn it. I went in for him and was arrested by the detective before it was pawned. I knew Reardon slightly, having seen him frequently about the streets in my neighborhood. O'Neill I have known for about nine months. I never saw the watch until after we left the car in Harlem. I was not with Reardon on O'Neill on Friday night and never saw Mr. Mulgrew the owner of the watch until today. I had no idea that the watch was stolen. After I was discharged on bail on Sunday last, I hunted Reardon up & told him I was free. (as the detective had directed me to do) and asked him how he had obtained the watch. He then admitted that he had stolen it from a man with a big moustache in Tompkins Square. I then assisted the detective in finding and arresting him.

In this case the facts are as follows:
The Defendants had in their possession the money belonging to the Complainants and have never denied the fact. The fund was placed in Savings Banks in the name of the Defendants and was kept intact in that form - Sometime prior to the beginning of the Criminal proceedings, and when the Defendants could not have supposed that any such proceedings would ever be had, they prepared a Petition to the District Court asking that a Commission might be appointed to inquire into the Mental Condition of Complainants, and in their Petition they set out the fact that they had this money of Complainants and that they believed she was incapable of taking care of it, & for that reason, among others, they asked for the Commission. This shows that there could have been no criminal intent in taking the money. They consulted Mr. H. B. Davis a reputable Lawyer, with reference to their Petition. The money is now in the hands of Judge Howland as trustee for Complainants. Under these circumstances it is apparent that no ac-cusing can or ought to be had & I therefore advise that the indictment be dismissed.

City and County of New York, ss:

Bridget Reilly, being duly sworn, says: that she lives at 205 West Tenth street in the city of New York. That prior to the 21st day of August ¹⁸⁸³, she lived at No. 341 West 41st street in the City of New York, where she had resided for some six or seven years.

That on the 16th day of August 1883 she met with an accident at her residence in 41st street by falling down stairs and injuring her head, and was ill for several days.

That on or about the 21st day of August 1883, Mrs Margaret Nash and her daughter Bridget Nash, who lived at No. 172 North Fourth street, Williamsburgh came and took ^{deponent} her to their home, where she remained until the 20th of September 1883, when she was removed by the said Mrs Nash and her daughter to the proper asylum for insane at Flatbush, Long Island, where she remained four weeks, where she was committed by the said Mrs Nash as a pauper, and was obliged to live in a style to which she has never been accustomed; that she was removed from the said asylum by her friend, Mrs Catharine Patchett who resides at No. 205 West Tenth street in the City of New York.

That the physicians of the asylum during her stay there, especially Dr. Shaw, x told her that nothing was the matter with her any more than her old age, she being an~~d~~ old lady over seventy years of age, and that he would discharge her at any time if any respectable relative was to come and take her and give her a home; and he also told her that he had written to Mrs Nash to come and take her away, as there was no reason for detaining her there, as she was perfectly well and of sound mind.

That Mrs Nash told deponent that she was paying a large sum of money to keep her there, and that it was very burdensome and very expensive, whereas, ^{she informed Doctor Shaw} ^(Mrs Nash) that she was unable to pay anything, and actually did pay nothing for her support and maintenance and care in said asylum.

That deponent's nephew, John D. Reilly or O'Reilly as he spells it, is a nephew of this deponent who works corner of Great Jones ^{Street} and Lafayette Place in the City of New York. That he called on deponent once in the asylum, and informed deponent that it was a very nice place, and that she had better make up her mind to be contented there. That deponent asked him to send his cousin Mrs Patchett ^{to see her}, and he stated to her that

Mrs Patchett was sick, and that it was better ^{that deponent was in an asylum} that she should not know, and that the knowledge of it should not be spread abroad.

That at the time of her accident deponent had deposited in the following savings banks, viz.: The Greenwich Savings Bank, The Bank for Savings in Bleeker Street, the Bowery Savings Bank, and the Emigrants Industrial Savings Bank sums amounting in an aggregate to over $4,300. exclusive of interest, all of which was her own money and ^{the} accumulations of her life-time during the past fifty years; working out by the day.

That formerly she lived in the family of Mr David Dudley Field and others, among whom was Major MacLean, Secretary in the Cabinet of President Jackson, and in this family she lived in Washington and Baltimore twenty-eight years.

That several bank-books for these deposits were in deponent's possession, in her trunk, which was with her friend Mrs Murphy, who lives on Seventh Avenue in the City of New York.

That without deponent's knowledge the said Mrs Margaret Nash and her daughter Bridget got possession of deponent's trunks containing her wearing apparel and bank-books and carried

Mrs Patchett was sick, and that it was better ^{that deponent was in an asylum} that she should not know [^], and that the knowledge of it should not be spread abroad.

That at the time of her accident deponent had deposited in the following savings banks, viz.: The Greenwich Savings Bank, The Bank for Savings in Bleeker Street, the Bowery Savings Bank, and the Emigrants Industrial Savings Bank sums amounting in an aggregate to over $4,300. exclusive of interest, all of which was her own money and ^{the} accumulations of her life-time during the past fifty years; working out by the day.

That formerly she lived in the family of Mr David Dudley Field and others, among whom was Major MacLean, Secretary in the Cabinet of President Jackson, and in this family she lived in Washington and Baltimore twenty-eight years.

That several bank-books for these deposits were in deponent's possession, in her trunk, which was with her friend Mrs Murphy, who lives on Seventh Avenue in the City of New York.

That without deponent's knowledge the said Mrs Margaret Nash and her daughter Bridget got possession of deponent's trunks containing her wearing apparel and bank-books and carried them to her home in Williamsburgh.

That deponent has since learned ^{that} while she was in a feeble state from her injury, and without knowledge of what they were doing, ^(Mrs. Nash and John Reilly) they procured Mrs Patchett in whom she had confidence to take this deponent with them on the 29th and 30th of August to the several banks to draw the money. They represented to Mrs Patchett that it was necessary that they should have it in order to avoid legal complications, and to properly support her.

That deponent in her weak state, the consequence of her injury knew nothing of what they were doing, and gave no consent that the money should be drawn to her knowledge. That when it was drawn she was with Mrs Patchett, and has been informed that the money was drawn and handed to Mrs Patchett, from whom John Reilly took it and carried it with Mrs Nash to Williamsburgh where deponent has since learned they divided the money and deposited it in several savings banks in the joint name of John O'Reilly and Margaret Nash.

That Mrs Nash has possession of deponent's two trunks, and all of her clothes (except what she has on her person) and deponent's bed.

That deponent has demanded the return of her trunks, and that they have refused to give them to her. And that she is now absolutely penniless, and without any wearing apparel, or any means of procuring any, and dependent upon charity.

That she has demanded the return of her money from the said John D. Reilly and Margaret Nash, and the said Reilly told deponent that as long as she lived she would never have her money again; and Mrs Nash denied to deponent that she had ever had it, but stated that she gave the bank-books to said John D. Reilly.

That the said moneys so taken from the bank by the said Reilly and Mrs Nash, was deponent's money, and that they have no shadow of claim to it.

That at the time deponent was taken to Williamsburgh by Mrs Nash as aforesaid, she had upon her person in her pocket-book $23. in cash; that said money was taken from her by Mrs Nash and has not been returned.

Bridget X Reilly.
Witness

James, subscribed and sworn to before me this

24th day of October, 1873

Honny & James,
Notary Public,
New York County.

City and County of New York ss:

Catharine Patchett being duly sworn, says: That she resides at 205 West Tenth Street in the City of New York.

That she has known Miss Bridget Reilly for eight or nine years, and that deponent is a cousin of John D. Reilly, the nephew of Miss Bridget Reilly, but is not a relative of Miss Bridget Reilly herself. That Miss Reilly has frequently visited deponent at her home, and they have always been friends. That deponent first heard of the accident to Miss Bridget Reilly on Sunday August 19, 1883, and went immediately to see her, and found her sitting up in her chair, and able to eat very well, and able to walk around the floor, but a little wandering from the effects of her accident, but knew deponent's little girl; deponent went to see her the next day, August 20th, and found her about the same, apparently physically well. And deponent sent for a physician to examine her, who reported to deponent that she was not badly sick, but suffering from the effects of her fall, and that she would be all right with a little care; that deponent tried to get her into St. Vincent's Hospital, but found that it was full.

Then deponent went for Miss Reilly's nephew, John D. Reilly, who said that he should take Miss Reilly to Mrs Nash in Williamsburgh, and that he didn't want her to be with strangers. That Mrs Nash came on Tuesday August 21st with her daughter, Bridget, and took her to Williamsburgh, and the following day Wednesday, August 22nd, Mrs Nash and her daughter, Bridget, came to deponent for Miss Reilly's trunks, and they wanted deponent to go with them and get the trunks and bank-books; the woman who had them wouldn't give them up except to a friend of Miss Reilly's; that they (Mrs Nash and John Reilly) received them and took them to Williamsburgh; that the following Friday, the 24th of August, deponent received a letter from Bridget Nash, stating that they had found Miss Reilly's bank-books in the trunk, and requested deponent to send John D. Reilly over there; that John D. Reilly called on deponent on Monday the 27th of August; that John D. Reilly came to deponent and requested her to go over to Mrs Nash's to see Miss Reilly and to spend the day with her, and to use her influence to get Miss Reilly's money for them, stating that they wanted it to take care of her, if she should remain sick, and to avoid all trouble in case she should die. That deponent went over on Tuesday the 28th of August, and Miss Reilly consented to draw the money from the bank to put in deponent's hands to take care of her, and give her the keys of her trunks which she supposed were still with Mrs Murphy. That Miss Reilly at that time was in a wandering state and flighty, and had only a partial knowledge of what she was doing, but had all confidence in deponent; that whatever she had asked her she would do. On the 29th of August John D. Reilly got deponent to go with him to Williamsburgh to dress Miss Reilly, as she would not do anything without deponent was present. He stated that he would see that it used for her support and care, during the remainder of her life, and in case she got well it would be given back to her. That deponent went with him to Williamsburgh and dressed Miss Reilly and took her with the said John D. Reilly and Mrs Nash to New York to the Greenwich Savings Bank. That deponent and Miss Reilly went into the bank, and Miss Reilly drew the money and handed it to deponent and said "Now Caroline take care of this for me." That then the whole party went to the Bleeker Street Bank and drew the money from the bank, and while deponent was assisting Miss Reilly to draw the money, the said Reilly and Mrs. Nash counted the money from the Greenwich Savings Bank; that Miss Reilly would not go back with the said Reilly and Mrs. Nash to Williamsburgh, and deponent had to go over with her. That in a room separate and apart from Miss Reilly, and in the presence of this deponent, they counted the money and divided it, and requested deponent to come the next day, and draw the balance of the money from the other banks. And the said Reilly came for deponent the next day, and deponent went with said Reilly the next day to Williamsburgh, took Miss Reilly, and with the said Reilly and Mrs. Nash went to the Bowery Savings Bank, where Miss Reilly with deponent, drew the said money from the said bank; then went to the Emigrants Industrial Savings Bank, and drew the money in the same way, and then went to lunch, and while they were sitting at lunch, deponent had the money in her lap, the said Reilly took it out of her lap, and requested deponent to occupy the attention of Miss Reilly in conversation, while he and Mrs Nash went to deposit the money in their joint names in the Emigrant's Industrial Savings Bank; and then he returned with Mrs Nash and stated, that the bank wouldnt take the deposit in their joint names, and they would be compelled to take it to Williamsburgh and deposit it there in the savings bank in their joint names.

That the said Reilly informed deponent in the morning while she was dressing Miss Reilly to come to New York, that he and Mrs Nash had deposited the money drawn on the previous day from the Greenwich and Bleecker Street Banks, in the joint names of himself, the said John D. Reilly and Mrs Margaret Nash in the Williamsburgh Savings Bank. That after they returned from the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, Miss Reilly wouldnt go from Williamsburgh unless deponent went with her and she accompanied her home, That Mrs Nash came to deponent as she was leaving and said, she could never forget the interest she had taken for them, and requested her to keep the money from Reilly until Saturday night when they could deposit it in the Williamsburgh Savings Bank; but Reilly having it in his possession refused to give it up.
Deponent called to see Miss Reilly

on Wednesday, the 5th of September, and found her about the same, only she recognized deponent and deponent's husband and little girl. She followed her into the street, requested her to take her home with her, as the Nash's did not treat her well,

That they subsequently learned from the said John D. Reilly that the Nash's intended placing her in the Flatbush Asylum, and he stated that he wanted to send her to the Westchester Asylum but she would not agree to it,

On or about the 4th of October, the said John D. Reilly came to deponent and told her that he had been to see Miss Reilly in the Asylum, and that he was afraid she was going to get well. That deponent stated to him that if she was well she was going to take her out. He said, you had better not take her out or have any thing to do with it.

Then on the 17th of October she went to the Flatbush Insane Asylum and saw Miss Reilly and found her perfectly well. That deponent saw Doctor Shaw who was the physician in charge, and he stated to her that Miss Reilly was perfectly well, and he had written to Mrs Nash after she had been there four day that she was perfectly well, and should be taken away. That deponent went on Thursday, the 18th of October with her husband, and took her from the asylum to her home. That deponent sent for John D. Reilly and remonstrated with him, upon his treatment of his aunt. That deponent called upon the Nashes on Saturday the 20th of October, and Mrs Nash denied having her money; and on the same Saturday, deponent and Miss Reilly called on John D. Reilly at his place of business, and demanded her money from him; and he stated to her that she never would see her money again, and that all that could come out of it was a breach of trust. That at the time the money was given to them by deponent, they stated that they would give papers to deponent for Miss Reilly to the effect that the money was hers and for what purpose they had taken it.

That subsequently and after her recovery and return to deponent's house, they laughed at her, and refused to do it.

I swear to before me this }
