Trial Brief.

The defendant is indicted for the larceny of six boxes containing silk ribbon of the value of $600, the property of Werner Hechner & Co. The said six boxes had been delivered by said firm on the 31st of May, 1888, to Henry H. Brockhauer, a driver for Bretts Express, to transport them to Peter ~~Stute~~ ^{Thurgott}, of No. 18 Rose Street. The six boxes disappeared from Brockhauer's wagon, while standing in front of 18 Rose Street and while Brockhauer was inside the said building. Trust Olden saw the defendant carry six boxes through an alley leading from Rose to Vandewater Street, at the time when they disappeared from said wagon. The boxes were of the size of the boxes that had disappeared.

0062

Testimony

Henry H. Brockbauer

559 West 46 Street

Driver for Pretts Express. Received the due boxes containing silk ribbons from Werner Stochler & Co. to be delivered to Peter Flute, at No. 18 Rose Street. The 12 boxes were tied up by ropes. While his wagon was standing in front of said house, and while he himself was in the said house, one of the parcels of six boxes disappeared from the wagon, because when he returned into the street, the parcel was gone. He at once drove over to the Oak Street Station House and stated the case to the sergeant at the desk, returned to 18 Rose Street and delivered the remaining parcel of six boxes to Peter Flute. From there he drove to Pretts Express, and with James Duran, a member of the firm he went to Police Headquarters.

0063

James Durney,

642 Tenth Ave.

Member of Brett's Express. When Brockhauer reported the loss of the said pipe boxes, I went to the ~~Oak Street~~ Police Headquarters and from there to Oak Street Station House to state the case. On the Monday following I went to No. 16 Bridge Arch and there ascertained, that Mr. Volderaner had seen the defendant carry the pipe boxes through an alley leading from Rose to Vandewater Street. He described the defendant to me, and when, a few moments afterwards, I came to Vandewater Street, I saw the defendant, answering the description given by Volderaner, in company of four men. I went to the Oak Street Station House, to get the detective, but he was not in. I then telephoned to the Central Office and received the reply that Detective Mc Carthy would be up right away. I met Mc Carthy, and upon his advice, I got Volderaner to come with me.

0064

While Mc Carthy was waiting at Chamber Street, Volderaner pointed the defendant out to me at Rose Street under the Bridge, where he was in company of 45 to 100 men and boys. I went up to him, and when I took him by the arm, he said: "I did not steal anything." I replied: Who said that you stole anything? Come and take a walk with me. I brought him to the Oak Street Station House. I did not understand what he said in our way.

Arrest Volderaner

48 Jefferson St., Brooklyn, I.D.
Machinist at 16 Bridge Arch.
On the 31st of May, 1888, I saw the defendant carry six boxes of the size of envelope boxes through an Alley leading from Rose to Vandewater Street. I am positive that it were six boxes.

Thomas J. Mc Carthy,

Detective Sergeant, Central Office
When the defendant was arrested, he derived any knowledge of these boxes.

0065

W. Trenkamp,

72 Bloomfield Street,
Hoboken, N.J.

Clerk in the employ of Werner Stoehner & Co. I have seen the goods consigned to Paeder & Pflueger when they were received from the factory, and also when they were packed in twelve boxes for shipment to Paeder & Pflueger. The value of the goods stolen is $614. I saw the twelve boxes delivered to the express man.
