CROSS EXAMINATION:

Q Was the first thing you heard your servant's cry of thief?

A Yes, sir.

Q Where were you when you heard that call ?

A I was in my restaurant. She called out, and I, at the same moment, saw this defendant jump downstairs. I did not see any other man at all.

A N N A S E L E C K E R, a witness for the People, sworn, testified:

I am the servant of the last witness. I have lived with him for one month. On the 11th. of February I was in that house. I saw this defendant at the bar in that house on that day. He began talking to me, but as I do not understand the language, I could not understand him. I saw him in my bed-room. I had not locked the door on that day at all. I went upstairs to get some of my clothing, and I tried to open the door, and it was already open. This defendant stood right inside the door of my room. I shouted out "thieves" and this man ran downstairs, and I ran after him. There were different articles of wearing apparel in my room. When I shouted, the proprietor ran after this man, and he was arrested.

CROSS-EXAMINATION:

Q How long were you and this man in that room together ?

A Not long. As soon as I saw him he picked something up and started to run. I could not say what he said to me.

Q Was there another man there ?

A Yes, sir. But I could not distinguish his face.

Q Was the other man in your room at all ?

A He was not in my room. The other man was outside in the hall. I am certain that I saw this prisoner in my room.

J O H N I S S I N G, a witness for the People, sworn, testified:

I am a police officer attached to the Fourteenth Precinct . I arrested this defendant on the 11th. of February last. As I was standing right between Third and Fourth Streets on Second Avenue I saw a man running across the street. I found out afterwards that he was Mr. Gerstel, and he was running after this defendant. I ran after , and I caught him. I asked him what he was doing in the complainant's house, and he said he was looking for furnished rooms. I brought him to the Station House and on him I found a screw-driver and a pair of scissors.

CROSS EXAMINATION:

I did not see any other man running. I arrested this defendant about half a block away from the complainant's restaurant. I have been a policeman for three years and a half. The prisoner told me he was looking for furnished rooms.

D E F E N C E:

E D W A R D M A R R I S, the defendant, sworn, testified:

I have been three months in New York. I came from Chicago. I am a compositor by occupation. I recollect the 9th. of February. On that day I went into this house looking for a furnished room. I saw there was a restaurant on the ground floor, and I thought there might be rooms upstairs. I went over and walked into a room, first knocking at the door. I just had my foot inside of the threshold of the room when this woman came along and screamed. When I heard her scream I ran downstairs and out. Then a man in his shirt sleeves ran after me, and I was stopped and arrested by a policeman. When the policeman arrested me he asked me what I was doing in that house, and I told him I was looking for furnished rooms, and that the people had chased me out. I did not intend to run away from them, but I got very much excited when the woman screamed, and the man ran after me.

CROSS EXAMINATION:

Q You ran because you were frightened ?

5

A Yes, sir. The woman screaming frightened me very much.

Q Why did you continue running after you had reached the street ?

A I tripped and fell over this man as I passed him, and that made me run much further than I intended. I came here from Chicago three months ago, and have been looking for work ever since. I went into this house in search of rooms as I intended to get work the next day.

The Jury returned a verdict of guilty of burglary in the third degree.

Part I

Feb 10 1890. After examining the only witness for the people, within case, John W. Bude, I am of the opinion that no conviction for any offense ever he had against either of the defendants. He says he can swear to nothing except that when he left his room as described, in the courtroom the gas was turned off. I therefore recommend that the defendants be released on their own recognizances.

-vs-

MICHAEL HERLIHY

Indictment filed February, 1890.

Indicted for burglary in the third degree.

Before
Hon. James Fitz-Gerald, and a Jury.

Tried February 27th, 1890.

APPEARANCES:

Assistant District Attorney Jerome for the People;
Mr. Stewart, for the defense.

AUGUST HEIMEN, the complainant, testified that he kept a liquor at 49 South Street in the City of New York. He closed the saloon at about a quarter past nine o'clock on the night of February 5th, 1890. The saloon was on the first floor of the building. He locked the doors and fastened the windows. On the following morning he went to his store. He had stock, wines, liquors and cigars, valued at about $200 in the saloon. When he returned to the saloon on the following morning, he found that the lower panel of the front door had been broken in.

Under cross examination, the witness testified that the upper panel of the door was of glass,-- ordinary plate glass -- about four feet square. He, the witness, kept a light burning in his saloon all night. The lower panel of the door was fastened with a bolt.

Officer Christian Mercle, testified that he arrested the defendant at the bar on the night of February 5th, 1890 -- or rather, at about half past one o'clock in the morning. His, the witness's attention was attracted by a cracking noise, as if wood was being broke. He, the witness, turned around and saw the defendant at the corner where the complainant's saloon was, leaning up against the door of the complainant's saloon. As he, the witness, advanced towards the defendant, the defendant moved away. He, the witness, followed the defendant for about a block and a half. When he, the witness, got up to where the defendant was, the defendant said, "what's the matter with you officer?" He, the witness, replied, "nothing. Just come to the station house with me." After the prisoner was locked up in the station house, the witness went back to the complainant's saloon and examined the complainant's door. There were marks upon the lower panel of the door that looked as though they had been made with an iron instrument, with the intention of forcing the panel open. There was a hole broken in the middle of the panel. The other marks were at the top of the panel. The defendant appeared to be able to understand all that was said to him, and he answered the questions put to him by the Sergeant at the desk intelligently. He told the Sergeant that he lived at 37 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, but, in the police court, he said that he lived at 40th Street and 2nd Avenue. In the police station, the defendant accused him, the officer, of being drunk. The defendant was undoubtedly under the influence of liquor.

Under cross examination, the witness testified that the defendant was not very drunk, but he was unquestionably under the influence of liquor.

For the defense Michael Herlihy, the defendant testified that he crossed the Pavonia Ferry late on the night of February 5th, and was drinking with some friends in Jersey City. He went to Jersey City about three o'clock in the afternoon and returned from Jersey City late in the evening. He did not take the Chambers Street Ferry as he ought to have done but took the Cortlandt Street Ferry. When he reached Washington Street, being somewhat intoxicated, he thought of some friends living in Washington Street near the Battery. He walked down several blocks and then he noticed that the liquor saloons were closed, and he realized that it was too late to make a call. Then he determined to go over to Water Street, to sleep in a lodging house there, as it was too late to go home, his home being in 40th Street. As he was going along South Street, his attention was attracted by footsteps behind him. He turned and saw the officer coming quickly towards him. He, the defendant, slackened his pace, and straightened himself up, fearing that he would be arrested for drunkenness. The officer said, "where are you going?" He, the defendant, replied, "I am going home, officer." The officer then asked him where he lived, and he answered that he lived in 40th Street near Second Avenue. He, the officer, then asked, "what were you doing at that door down there? And what did you do with that piece of pipe?" He, the defendant, said, "so help me God, I don't know what you mean, officer." Then the officer arrested him and took him to the station house.

Under cross examination the defendant testified that it was not true that he was staggering along South St., drunk, and seeing the light in the complainant's saloon, and finding it closed, he tried to break in to get more drink. He, the defendant, was a carpenter by trade, and had worked last for a man named Ryan at 10th avenue and 125th Street. He had worked, since Christmas, in Brooklyn, for a man named

(5)

Rawson. He, the defendant, lived at the time of his arrest at 40th Street and 2nd Avenue. On account of the lateness of the hour, he thought he would go to Devines lodging house in Water Street, where he had lodged about three months before. He, the defendant, did not know where the complainant's saloon was. He saw no one else, at the time of his arrest, in the neighborhood of the complainant's saloon, besides the officer and himself.

My dear Col.

There was a young man formerly from here, arrested recently in your City & is now I am informed in the Tombs. His name is John S. Needall, but on arrest he gave the name of R. J. Hewitt. The charge is for taking a gold watch from one Robt. Lumsay, who boarded at the same house kept by a Mrs. Allison at No. 114 West 11th St. on Jan'y 27/90.

Needall is a bright young man just past twenty years of age. His father has been a client of mine and a personal and political friend for years. His parents and brothers & sisters are all reputable and respected citizens. The young man himself was all right and promised well until about a year ago, when he commenced going with a girl here, considerably older than he, out of good family. From that time he commenced a series of petty thefts from his sister, a Mrs. Hoag.

Finding it impossible to stop this without harsh measures, his father procured his indictment on a charge of Grand Larceny; on that charge he was admitted to bail.

He then went to N.Y. resulting finally as detailed above.

His family feel that, should he be sent to prison that all chance of reformation would be gone, and desire that he may be returned here for arraignment on the indictment where he could plead guilty & be sent to the Reformatory.

In view of the high standing of every other member of the family, and believing that it is the better way to dispose of him, I ask that that course may be taken.
