Report.

The defendant is indicted for having erected in the Bowery, on the 11th of June, 1887, an awning in violation of a city ordinance then in force. The city ordinance alleged to have been violated by the defendant was passed on the 10th of May, 1886, and it permitted the erection of awnings in the streets of the city of New York, except in Broadway, Fifth Avenue, Lexington Avenue and Madison Avenue. The Bowery was not excepted by the said ordinance until the 1st of June, 1887, when an amendment was passed by the Common Council, declaring the Bowery as one of the streets on which awnings are not permitted to be erected. It follows, therefore, that the erection of an awning in the Bowery on the 11th day of June, 1887, was not prohibited by any ordinance of the city of New York, and that the defendant above named has, therefore, not committed any crime.

For these reasons I recommend the dismissal of the indictment.
