 The People } Court of General Sessions. Part I
 Michael Rooney } Before Recorder Smyth, Feb. 11. 1884.
 Lurrey & George Kelly sworn. I live 88 East Broadway.
 I took aboard a steamer. The 20th of January.
 I left the house with the prisoner in the morning and was with him during the day; he took me several places to see the town as I was never in New York before; we had a glass of beer together. At Chatham Square I had occasion to change a ten dollar bill. I had seventy dollars in the pocket book and the drink came to 30 cents. I put the $69.70 in the pocket book and from there I went home to 98 East Broadway; the prisoner went with me and when we got in he wanted me to send out for drink and I told him, "no". He told me to take off my clothes to go to bed. I said, "no, I would lie on the lounge." He took off his clothes and went to bed. I laid in my clothes on the lounge; he locked the door and went to bed. Between nine and ten o'clock. I woke up some time through the night feeling some one unloosening my clothes. I looked up and saw the prisoner standing over me in his shirt sleeves. When he saw I woke up he turned the light down and went away. I laid two or three minutes and got up and the first thing I did was to put my hand in my pockets and my pocket book was gone and every cent I had. The pocket book was in my righthand trousers pocket. I wanted to make a noise and he asked me for God's sake not to make a noise at that time in the morning to disturb the house. I asked him what time it was? He said, three o'clock, and that it would be all right in the morning. I did keep quiet, and again in the morning I accused him of taking the money. He turned around and gave me a very impudent answer, he said "you must have lost it some place else" I knocked around all day. He was in a state of starvation, he had not a cent. The morning I went out with him first. He came back to his room at five o'clock on the day the money was taken and two others along with him; they were under the influence of liquor. I asked him where he got the money to enjoy himself and he told me I was an imposter, ordered me out and told me to go to such a place. I went to the police station about six o'clock and the detective came along with me.

to the house and he was not there. About ten o'clock I came back and saw him on the stoop. The detective said, "Do you know this man?" The prisoner said, "yes." He said, "Give him his money." He said, "I don't know nothing about his money at all." He said, "Go on and give the man his money and none of your nonsense." He says, "I have spent it all." The detective took him to the station house and upon searching him he got eight or nine dollars upon him. He turned round and said to me, "Take your money, don't convict me, but let me go. Cross Examined I don't know how many liquor shops I went into that day with the defendant - four or five. I drank beer and nothing else. I pawned my overcoat after the money was taken from me because I had none to get my breakfast. I was a stranger in New York. I did not complain that I was robbed on Sunday night in Chatham Square. I missed two dollars out of my outside pocket. Cornelius Leary sworn, "I am an officer and arrested the defendant. I asked the complainant if that was the man? He said, "yes." I took him to the station house. I said, "Do you know the complainant?" He said, "yes," and gave me a knudge. I said, "What did you do with his money?" He said, "It is all spent. When he was in the station house he said the money belonged to the complainant. "Give it to him, let me go out of here, I don't want to get in any trouble."

Michael Rooney, sworn and examined in his own defence. He gave a long statement of how the complainant and himself went into a number of saloons and drank whiskey and they both became very much intoxicated, and in that condition they reached the defendant's room. In the morning the complainant pawned his coat; he said he had not a cent and he wanted money for drink. The money that was found on me was my own which I had to pay my rent. I did not take the complainant's money.

Cross Examined. I am a carver. I was employed by Mr. Rogers Park Place about a year ago. I worked at Brighton Beach in the summer for Mr. Breslin, cashier at the long bar where the sandwiches are sold. I then worked for John Kelly.

Cornelius Leary recalled. When I arrested the prisoner he was not exactly drunk; he had been drinking; he apparently understood everything; he was not so drunk that I would arrest him for intoxication. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of grand larceny in the second degree with a recommendation to mercy.
