George P. Esselman, being duly sworn, says: that he is a citizen of the United States and resides at 1814 Fulton Street, Brooklyn; that he is, and for nine and a half years last past has been, the proprietor of a liquor saloon at said 1814 Fulton Street; and that on or about Aug 26, 1895, the late Board of Excise of said City issued to defendant a second class saloon license permitting him to carry on such business at said place from Aug. 16, 1895 to August 16, 1896; that on or about July 1st 1896, defendant took out a new license for said premises under the requirements of the present Liquor Tax Law and at that time took down the said license granted by the late Board of Excise from its frame on the wall; that defendant was ignorant of the fact that it was in any way necessary to preserve said license, so as to secure the rebate of the license fee thereon, and at about that time he destroyed it, and consequently is now unable to produce the said license or certificate thereof on the presentation of his claim for such rebate - That defendant is the sole owner & holder of said license last mentioned and is solely entitled to the entire rebate thereon, and that no person has any claim or lien thereon. That defendant makes this statement and affords it as an inducement to the City of Brooklyn to make payment to him of such rebate, turning that such payment, if made, will be in reliance upon the truth of the above representations -
