defendant and said unknown man, came in company with each other, to said Simpson pawn office and said unknown man represented that there was a chain pledged with said Simpson belonging to said unknown man and that he had lost the ticket and that the number of the ticket was 38031. That said Holden believing said representations to be true caused the said unknown man to make affidavit of said statements which affidavit was sworn to by said unknown man before a Notary Public and the defendant here affixed his signature thereto as a witness. That said Holden upon the receipt of the amount of said loan and interest and the making of said affidavit ~~delivered~~ with ~~defendants~~ ^{defendants} name affixed, delivered said property to said unknown man who left said place in company with the defendant.

Deponent subsequently discovered said transaction and suspected the defendant and accused the defendant of said larceny and he acknowledged to deponent in the presence of Pasquale Celillo (now here) that he knew where said chain was and said, if deponent would give him five dollars he defendant would return said chain. ~~Deponent threatened the defendant with arrest and the defendant took deponent to No. 3 Mulberry.~~ That the defendant received said five dollars and took deponent to No. 3 Mulberry Street and deponent waited on the street and the defendant shortly after returned and gave deponent said chain.

Wherefore deponent charges the defendant and said unknown man with acting in concert and obtaining possession of said property in the manner aforesaid with intent to deprive deponent of the use and benefit thereof.

Court of General Sessions.

The People

vs.

Pietro Cargallo

Report.

This case has been referred to me from Part II for the purpose of ascertaining whether the facts herein constitute a cause of action.

From the examination of patrolman Baker who made the arrest and who by direction of the Sergeant on duty in the Station House, where the defendant was searched, preferred the charge herein against the defendant, it appears that the alleged concealed weapon was in a coat, which the defendant had on his arm, when he was arrested, and that ^{the defendant} at the time ~~the time~~ was in his own house. It also appears that the defendant wanted to leave the said coat at home, when he was ordered to follow the said officer to the Station House. The party ~~at~~ whose instance the defendant was arrested has preferred a charge of simple assault against him. It is alleged that he made love to defendant's wife, and ^{that} in consequence ~~got into a~~ thereof several blows were interchanged between the parties.

The People have no evidence that the defendant intended to use the said dagger against another, as the fact that he did not want to take it into the street, and did so only at the request of the police officer rebuts the presumption mentioned in § 411 Penal Code, making the mere possession of a weapon named in § 410 prima facie evidence of the intent to use the same.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the proof in possession of the People do not constitute a cause of action against the defendant, and that

Edward Grosse
Deputy Prosecitor

George P. Baker, patrolman, 4th precinct. On the 23^d of September, 1889, while being on duty, Salvatore Chaffitelli complained to me that he had been cut ^{in his face} by the defendant in 54 James Street. I went to the said premises, and there the defendant told me that the complainant had made love to his wife and, when he had remonstrated against such conduct, ^{complainant} he had struck him first. He denied having ~~not~~ used a knife against him. I arrested him. He put a coat on, but before leaving the house, he said that he wanted to exchange the said coat for another, as there was a knife in the first one. I told him to keep the said coat on, as we could take the knife out afterwards. On searching the defendant ^{at the Irving House} I found a dagger in the said coat. Thereupon the Sergeant on duty directed me to prefer a charge against the defendant for carrying concealed weapons. The said complainant, who does not speak English, denied thereafter that he had been assaulted by the defendant with a knife. The defendant had the said coat in which the knife was found, on his arm, when I arrested him. I have known the defendant for the last three years as a quiet, inoffensive man.
