Tried New York June, 22nd. 1888.

(Indictment Filed June, 1888)

(Indicted for assault in the first degree)

APPEARANCES: Assistant District Attorney Foster, for the people: Mr. Blake for the defense.

LOUIS MILLER. The complainant, testified, that he lived at 1895 Second Ave., and that he was a bartender by trade, at the corner of Second Ave., and 98th, Street. On the evening of June 1st, he was in the saloon at that place. He was standing in front of the bar, talking to a party, and three men entered. They interfered with the people that were drinking at the time. His brother was behind the bar at the time. The complainant's brother told the men not to interfere with the other party. They did not pay any attention to his brother and his brother told them that their company was no longer wanted in the saloon. They did not go out. He, the complainant, asked the men if they hadn't heard what the boss said to them. They did not make any move to go out, but suddenly they ran towards the bar and two of them grabbed some bottles there and one of them ran towards the lunch counter and caught up the lunch bowl there. This man was known as Leonard. When the complainant took hold of Leonard to put him out the other two men struck him, the complainant. The other two men were the defendant Delmore and a man named Carter. The defendant struck him, the complainant, with a stoneware bottle, on the head. Almost at the same time Carter struck him also upon the head. He had been under the care of a physician ever since. He hadn't struck the defendant or Carter at that time and was not near them; he hadn't spoken to the defendant. When he asked the men if they hadn't heard what his brother said, he, Charles Leonard, and Carter. He didn't know at first that Delmore had anything to do with these two men, and therefore he didn't address him.

Under CROSS EXAMINATION: His brother was the proprietor of the saloon. The affray occurred at a quarter before 11 o'clock at night. When the three men first entered Carter and Leonard interfered with a party of men from down town who were drinking in the place. These men were friends of the proprietor and the complainant. The defendant did not say anything to the men from down town. When Leonard grabbed the lunch bowl and the complainant attempted to put him out, Carter struck the complainant upon the forehead with a stoneware bottle and the defendant grabbed another stoneware bottle and hit him on the head with it. He didn't tell the police officer after the arrest of the defendant that the defendant had endeavored to commit that assault upon him. Two broken stoneware bottles were found upon the floor in front of the bar. He made a charge of assault against the three men on the same night. He didn't know them by name ,but described them at the police station.He was knocked down and was senseless for a moment or two.While he was having his head dressed, after the affray,an officer brought in the defendant and he identified him as one of his assailants . Leonard afterwards picked up the bottle ,but he didn't get a chance to hit him with it.

CHARLES F.MILLER testified that he lived at 74 Pearl street.He was the owner of the saloon in question in which the assault occurred.He was in the saloon at about 11 o'clock on the night of June 1st.Some men belonging to the Metropolitan Van Co had dropped in to see him and were having a pleasant time in front of the bar,and Leonard and Carter and Delmore came in. After having had a drink they sat at the bar listening to the songs that the other party were singing.They were treated once or twice by the other party.Then they began to interfere with the Metropolitan Van Company people . Carter and Leonard were the ones that interfered.

Up to that time Delmore had taken nothing. Just then more customers came in and the witness had to go around the bar and wait upon them. His brother asked the defendant and his friends whether they didn't understand what the witness had said to them. Then Leonard said that there was not a man in the house that could put him out. Then his brother told him to go out and Leonard said that he would not go out and no man in the house could put him out. At the same time he ran to the lunch counter and grabbed the lunch bowl. Then his brother went behind the bar and got a club and Carter the Delmore attacked him with the bottles. When his brother came from behind the bar with the club, he struck at Leonard, who had the lunch bowl in his hand. The defendant followed his brother when his brother walked towards Leonard with the club in his hand, and gave him two blows with a bottle upon his head. Then the bottle flew out of the defendant's hand and the witness caught hold of the bottle and kept it.

Under CROSS EXAMINATION: He could not say how many times his brother struck Leonard with the club, and he could not say how many times his brother struck Carter either, because the blows all around were going so fast. He struck them or struck at them a good many times. He had no doubt that his brother struck at least one of them. He was struck at with the bottles before he got the club. He was assaulted by Leonard with the bowl before he went behind the bar for the club. The bowl fell upon the floor and was broken. He did not know whether Leonard threw it at his brother, or not. Then he went for a club, and the defendant and Carter grabbed for the bottles on the bar. Somebody struck at his brother with his fist before he went for the club.

OFFICER JOHN COTTRELL, testified that he belonged to the 27th Precinct Police at the time of the assault; he was now attached to the Police Central Office. The saloon where the assault was committed was in the Twelfth Ward. At about a quarter before twelve o'clock on the night of June 1st, he saw the complainant, Miller, in the 88th. Street Police station. The ambulance surgeon was dressing his wounds. He was cut on the side of the head and forehead and was bleeding. The witness went to the corner of Second Avenue and 98th Street to arrest Delmore, and took him to the saloon in question. Charles Miller, the proprietor, identified him as one of the men who had assaulted his brother. The complainant also identified him subsequently. On the way to the station house he asked the defendant what trouble he had had in the saloon and the defendant said that he hadn't been in the saloon that night. Some yards further on the way to the station house, he said to the defendant that it was a pretty serious case, and the defendant said "I was not going to let them hy-ckers do my friends."

Under Cross-Examination. The defendant made some resistance when he first attempted to arrest him. He had been about fourteen years on the police force, and was attached to the 12th. Precinct at that time- a Ward detective, and he had not been able to arrest the other defendants- they had left the neighborhood.

-----0000-----

For the Defense.

JOHN MCMAHON testified that he lived at 1893 Second Avenue, next door to the saloon in which the affray occurred. He had visited the saloon, but not frequently. He knew the complainant and his brother. He was present in the saloon when the affray occurred on the night of the 1st of June. He and another man that worked on the docks with him were in the saloon. The man's name that was with him was Michael Connell. The defendant and his friends were at the other end of the bar. The first thing he heard was Carter saying "That fool over there done that". Carter's temper was good. Next he saw the complainant with a club in his hand, pushing the three men out of the summer doors. Then Carter hit the complainant. The defendant didn't touch the complainant at all. The complainant's brother got a pistol from behind the bar. He, the witness, said "There's no use of your getting into this trouble", and the proprietor said "It's none of your damn business". He heard the defendant say to a man that was with him, "I am going to get out of here. I don't want to be in any trouble with these people."

Under Cross Examination:

He didn't see the beginning of the affray. About a week after the affray he was in the saloon with the defendant's father. He asked for a glass of beer and the proprietor said he would not sell it to him. He didn't make any threats against the proprietor then. He was a longshoreman by occupation.

MARY DORGAN testified that she lived on the 1st of June at 1895 Second Avenue. Her rooms were over the saloon, and on the second floor. She was standing at the back door of the saloon listening to the singing. Carter had a whip in his hand and was snapping it, and the proprietor, Charles Miller, told him to put it down and not break the gas fixtures. He would not put it down and the proprietor took the whip out of his hand. They made up and then they had another quarrel about the whip and the proprietor struck him and told him if he didn't keep quiet he must go out. They made up again. Carter took the whip up a third time and snapped it over the globes on the gas fixtures, and the proprietor ordered them out. Then Leonard said that he could whip any man in the house. Then the complainant went to get the club and Carter caught up a bottle from the counter and struck the complainant on the head with it. Then the witness ran away from the door. She went out on the sidewalk and called a policeman.

Under cross-examination:

When she saw Carter strike the complainant, she and the women who were standing at the door with her listening to the singing closed the door. When she opened it two or three minutes later, she saw the defendant walking towards the end of the counter. She didn't see him strike the complainant. There were 12 or 13 men in the saloon at the time.

11

NELLIE WHALEN testified that she was the jan-itress at 1895 Second Avenue. She had known the defendant for about a year. His reputation was good.
The defendant was one of 11 children. He lived at home with his father and mother and was a hardworker.
She corroborated Mary Dorgan as to what she had seen occur in the saloon. She, the witness, had just put out the gas in the hall and stopped for a moment at the back door of the hall to hear the singing.

JAMES DELMORE, the defendant, testified that he lived with his parents, and had 11 brothers and sisters. He lived at 1893 Second Avenue, next door to the saloon. After taking care of his horse and having his supper, he went into the saloon about 9 o'clock.
He went in because he heard singing. Three or four men were singing, and a young man that stood at the bar asked him to join in the singing. While they were singing he saw the proprietor come from behind the bar and strike Carter. Then he saw there was going to be trouble and he walked out of the saloon. Then he went home with the young fellow that he met on the corner and had a game of cards. While he was playing cards he was arrested. He told the officer that he didn't know anything about the assault. He didn't see Miller, the complainant, struck with a bottle by anybody. He didn't strike Miller or anybody else with a bottle of anything else.

Under Cross Examination:

He didn't know that Carter had done anything before Miller, the proprietor, struck him. All the men at the bar were orderly and took their drinks quietly. He didn't go into the saloon with Carter and Leonard. He didn't drink with them. He knew them just by sight. He was never in their company. He was convicted of the crime of burglary in 1883 and was sentenced to States Prison for two years. He served his term.

In rebuttal.

CHARLES MILLER testified that he didn't strike Carter. His brother, the complainant, struck Carter.
