being further examined says: —

I am not positive there were five switches, I am not sure as to the number, there were some I know. I know there were switches on the hook I saw them the night before, ~~Monday~~ the night things were taken. I know the quality of the hair, worth eight to ten dollars a switch, if there were any there worth less I don't know it. I saw there was about fifty dollars lost, My partner told me the switches were stolen. There was a table there. There are lots of switches around of different switches some of less some of higher value, some ten or there dollars a switch & some fifteen. There were particular dark switches there, that we sell for ten dollars apiece about eighteen hours before they were stolen they were hanging there. I can tell the value in merely passing by. I don't know how many switches there were there altogether. The value of the switches that were stolen is not less than twenty five dollars perhaps more but I can't swear to it. I haven't made any examination of my stock. Eighteen hours before the alleged larceny, I looked at the switches. There was a space in the switches, from which at least four switches were removed between Monday afternoon last & the next morning at about eight o'clock. There was a butt tape there. The pattern was there. From the way they were arranged, the space that I found, enables to swear that at least four switches, the least value of the four switches, was fifteen dollars.
