is a wholesale grocer, doing business at

the trouble between him and defendant, and in one conversation defendant had with complainant, the complainant stated to defendant that he was bound to make trouble for the defendant, break up the defendant's home, and ruin his family.
That defendant saw the complainant, right after the alleged assault, and examined his face carefully, and noticed that the complainant had near the left eye what appeared to be a bruise or abrasion of the skin. Defendant solemnly swears, that it was not a cut, as might be made by a razor or sharp instrument.
The defendant took more interest in no-

lying this, from the fact that complaint was then and for about seven months prior therein in the matter of defendant.

The defendant discharged the complainant after his trouble with the defendant and before the trial, because he discovered the complainant had lied to him several times about other matters and was satisfied that he was also lying in respect to the occurrence in question. From what defendant knows of complainant, he would not believe him under oath.

Defendant would have cheerfully sworn to these facts before the Court, but did not know of the trial until after the trial had taken place.

That the said Izzillo wrote the defendant several letters, in which he used all sorts of threats toward the defendant among other things, threatening that he would send the defendant to State Prison.

Dear Sir

Permit me to remind you of the case of Angelo Cavalcini who was convicted of assault and the sentence on whom you kindly adjourned -- that counsel might present the necessary evidence before you, on a request that a new trial be granted --

I am convinced of this man's innocence, and believe he was the victim of a bad conspiracy -- I earnestly hope that your Honor will feel justified in granting him
a new trial

0719

When we have no doubt but that we can clearly show that the assault committed was done in self defence -
I am very interested in
him. Feeling that he is innocent.

To the Hon Judge Berwing - Mr Angelo Cavallero has been in my employ steadily for the last 11 years & I can truthfully say, a more quiet unassuming & faithful mechanic I would not wish to have - I have always found him strictly sober & unusually attentive to his duties to a degree & I would undisputably pick him out as the last man to be guilty of the offence charged against him - It gives me sincere pleasure to be able to say of him what I have always found him to be a truly model man - He is one of the very few that I would care to write so strong a personal recommendation -

Very Respectfully Yours

Assistant District Attorney Bedford for the People.
Robert H. Racey, Esq., for the Defense.

ANTONINO MARMIONE, the Complainant, testified that he lived at Englewood, New Jersey.
He was in the City of New York on February 3d, 1889, and he met the defendant at eight o'clock on that evening.
At that time, he the, complainant, was living in the City of New York. The defendant was his cousin. The defendant came into his, the complainant's, house at 49 Bayard Street. He, the complainant, had had some difficulty with the defendant's father, and the defendant came to his house to try to arrange the difficulty.

His, the complainant's, son-in-law was there at the time and was about to leave, saying that his wife was ill. As his, the complainant's, son-in-law was leaving, the defendant invited him, the complainant, and the son-in-law to have a glass of beer. After drinking the beer the prisoner turned to him, the complainant, and said, "Are you going to tear up my father's letters or not?" He, the complainant, answered that the defendant's father was his, the complainant's, uncle, and that he did not intend to cause him any annoyance by the use of the letters that he had in his possession, but that if he did not act properly he would seek justice. As soon as he, the complainant, finished the defendant took out a razor and cut him on the side of the left eye and ran away. He, the complainant, pursued him and called for the police, and the defendant was arrested. He, the complainant, gave the defendant no other provocation than his refusal to destroy the letters. He, the complainant, had always been on friendly terms with the defendant.

Under Cross Examination, the complainant testified that he had been in the United States about a year. He had been living in Englewood, New Jersey, about five months. He was a civil engineer by profession, and had had pupils. He had also been employed as a book-keeper in a grocery. Before the trouble with the defendant he had earned thirty-five dollars a month. He earned money as a book-keeper in a grocery and also gave lessons in Italian and French. The defendant had never given him any money. The defendant had at one time made him a present of two boxes of macaroni through his, the defendant's, father. He had not been supported by the defendant and his father, and the defendant did not own the furniture in his, the complainant's, home. The defendant called at his house at about five o'clock in the afternoon. He had asked the defendant, by means of a postal card, to call, as he wanted to have a talk with him over the difficulty with his, the defendant's, father. He told the defendant that his, the defendant's, father had brought him over to the United States under a promise to help him, and if he did not keep his agreement he would have to seek justice. The defendant's father had promised that if he came to America he would be come in a very short time a very rich man. Upon the strength of this promise he, the complainant, had left his business in Italy and come to the United States. He wanted the defendant's father to help him as he had promised. He had employed a lawyer to prosecute his claim against the defendant's father. His lawyer had told him that there was a case against the defendant's father, but that it might not result in anything. The defendant remained in his house up to about half past six or seven in the evening. They went to a saloon at the corner of Worth and Baxter Streets to get the beer. His, the complainant's, son-in-law, Guiseppe Insillo, was present at the time of the cutting.

G U I S E P P E I N S I L L O, testified that he was the son-in-law of the complainant. He corroborated the complainant.

Under Cross Examination, he testified that when the defendant was searched at the station house the razor was produced, but he could not swear that it was taken from the person of the defendant. He was a brother-in-law of the defendant, his first wife being the defendant's sister. The defendant was not supporting a child of his by his first wife. His child had been virtually adopted by the defendant at the time of his first wife's death, and he had tried to get the child back, but could not. He had not had any trouble about the child with the defendant, but he would like to recover it.

O F F I C E R J O H N P. S H E A testified that he was attached to the Sixth Precinct. He arrested the defendant on the 14th of February--Sunday afternoon--on the corner of Walker and Centre Streets, between half past five and six o'clock in the evening. He saw the defendant's face cut. His clothing was also stained with blood. There were three or four cuts on the complainant's face around the left eye. The defendant had no marks upon him when he was arrested. The defendant said that he had hit the complainant with a stone and had not used a razor. He, the witness, did not find a razor upon the person of the defendant, but a man brought a razor to the station house and said that he found it in White Street.

For the Defense S A L V A D O R L A G R A S S E testified that he was a piano maker and was at present superintendent of Hardman, Peck & Co., piano manufacturers. He had known the defendant about twelve years. The defendant had been working for Hrdman, Peck & Co. for about eleven years. The firm employed about two hundred and fifty men of different nationalities. He had taught the defendant his trade as a boy. The defendant's character was excellent. He, the witness, had received a postal card, that he supposed to be from the complainant, reflecting upon the character of the defendant's father. He tore the postal card up. He had never seen the complainant write.

ANGELO CAVALLIERO, the defendant, testified that he lived at the time of the affray at 561 West 50th Street. He was a married man. He had no children of his own, but he had adopted Insillo's little girl, his, the defendant's, niece. He had seen the complainant about once a week since his arrival in the United States. He had given him money for food and other necessities. He had also given him furniture. The complainant had not worked regularly. He knew that the complainant had made some trouble with his, the defendant's father, by making a claim against him. He the defendant, had received a postal card requesting him to call on the day of the affray. The defendant asked for money as soon as he arrived. He, the defendant, gave him two dollars. Afterwards he, the defendant, the complainant and Insillo, left the house and went to a neighboring saloon to have a glass of beer. Then the complainant asked him for three dollars more. He, the defendant, told the complainant that he could not afford to give it to him. Then both the complainant and Insillo began to call him bad names and told him that he belonged to a bad family and commenced to assault him. He, the defendant, tried to run away and they kept beating him, and he picked up a stone and struck the complainant on the face with the stone. Then he kept on running until he was arrested. He did not have a razor with him that night, and never had carried a razor. He did not shave himself and had no use for a razor. He, the defendant, was arraigned in the police court and was discharged by the Police Justice.

Under Cross Examination, he testified that the complainant and Insillo struck him in the face four or five times with their clenched fists, but there were no marks upon his face when he was arrested. He struck the complainant only once in the face with the stone. He could not account for the four or five deep cuts on the complainant's face except by the blow of the stone and by the defendant falling down while pursuing him. The difficulty occurred on the corner of Centre and Worth Streets, and he picked up the stone there. As soon as he gave the complainant the blow he ran away and threw away the stone.

P E T E R P E N N E L L I testified that he lived at 234 East Fifth Street, and that he was an instrument maker at 194 William Street. He had been engaged there in business about twenty years. He knew the complainant and the defendant, and also the defendant's father. He had conversed with the complainant, and the complainant had offered to withdraw the prosecution for two hundred dollars.

The Complainant, being recalled by Mr. Bedford, denied this and said that Mr. Pennelli had offered him two hundred dollars to abandon the prosecution.

G I O V A N N I C A V A L L I E R O, the father of the defendant, testified that the complainant was his nephew. Ever since the complainant came to the United States the complainant had annoyed him and had claimed that he, the witness, must give him money whenever he asked for it. He, the witness, kept a grocery and had kept it for about seven years. The complainant had made threats against him, the witness, and his family.

Under Cross Examination, the witness testified that he had given the complainant money until the complainant had threatened to send him to jail if he did not give him more, and then he stopped giving him money.

His, the complainant's, son-in-law was there at the time and was about to leave, saying that his wife was ill. As his, the complainant's, son-in-law was leaving, the defendant invited him, the complainant, and the son-in-law to have a glass of beer. After drinking the beer the prisoner turned to him, the complainant, and said, "Are you going to tear up my father's letters or not?" He, the complainant, pursued him and called for the police, and the defendant was arrested. He, the complainant, gave the defendant no other provocation than his refusal to destroy the letters. Dear Sir:-

I have been requested by Mr. Antonino Maimone to inform you of the result of his case against Mr. Angelo Cavaliere, decided in the Toombs Police Court before Judge Welde on the 4th inst. The charge was a criminal one, and I am informed that Judge Welde after hearing the testimony in the case, discharged the prisoner. Mr. Maimone says that his witnesses were not examined and therefore his rights were not ascertained by the Court. I am further requested to ask you to present the case to the District Attorney of the City of New York for consideration and advice, and after having obtained the District Attorney's attention thereto, I shall be willing to do all I can in obtaining the facts.

City and County of New York, Ss:

Thomas Weaver, being duly sworn, says as follows, to wit:

I am the defendant in this action. My right name is Thomas Weaver. I gave the name of Chase when arrested, in order to spare my family the disgrace attached to the publication of my name as that of a criminal.

I am 21 years of age. I was born in Chicago. At the age of fifteen years I commenced to work for F. E. Blackeman, of Chicago, in the tobacco business, and worked for him three years. Then I worked at the Leland Hotel in Chicago, as a detective, for three months. I was then employed by Weisenger & Bote, of Louisville, Ky., as a salesman in the tobacco trade. After working for them for some time I was laid up for five months by illness, in consequence of an surgical operation for a fistula. I was then engaged by M. E. Sanford, of No. 36 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, to travel in Southern Illinois, for Church & Co., manufacturers of soda water apparatus, of Pearl Street, New York. I worked for them from April 19th to December 31st 1888. Then I worked with my brother, as advertising agent for The Casino, in Chicago, Col Snellback, proprietor. I was in that employment for about four months, when the concern failed, and I was thrown out of work. Since then I have been engaged in soliciting hotel advertisements. In the prosecution of this business I came to New York a short time ago. I was unsuccessful in business, and was unable to make a living. Under the pressure of want, I yielded to temptation, and committed the crime to which I pleaded guilty in this action. It is my first offence. I have never been convicted of any crime whatever, and I do not wish to lead a life of crime. I most earnestly desire to be sent to the Reformatory, and intend, when my term of imprisonment shall have expired, to lead an honest life, as I had always done up to the time when I committed this crime.

Subscribed and sworn to
