The People vs. James Callopy { Court of General Sessions, Part I
 Before Judge Gildersleeve. Oct. 24, 1887
 Indictment for larceny and receiving stolen goods.
 James H. White sworn and examined, testified:
 I am Superintendent of the Manhattan Brass Works.
 They are manufacturers of sheet brass, tubing and wire. It is a Corporation; the factory is on First Avenue between Twenty seventh and Twenty eighth Sts. I know Callopy, he was employed by us as an engineer between four and five years.
 [An ingot of brass shown to the witness] We use ingots of this kind; we buy a hundred thousand pounds a month of various brands, that amongst others. Did you miss any ingots about the 23rd of September? Not about that time, we had been missing copper for about - The engineer's duties require him to be there at irregular hours, night as well as day. I remember the 23rd of September. Was he there on duty that day? He was there one part of the day that day. What time did he leave? About two o'clock. He asked to be away the afternoon; he said he had some business to attend to; he was excused for the afternoon; I next saw him after he was arrested. Cross Examined. He has not asked to be excused from his work, once in three months only. I cannot swear to the 0241

identity of an ingot of copper; we did not mark it. I can only say it is the same brand as we use. I suppose other people use the same brand, it is sold in open market in very large quantities. A single ingot is valued at $3.25; they vary a trifle; they weigh about twenty pounds. Charles Heidelberg, sworn. I am a detective attached to the Central Office. I arrested him at 11 o'clock. I saw him go into a junk shop with a package under his arm done up in brown paper. I think two ingots would make a package as large as the one I saw. A man named Roberts, a private detective, was with me at the time; he is in Court now. He (the prisoner) remained in the junk shop about two or three minutes, and as soon as he came out we went in and asked Mr. McGinn what that man left there. Have you got McGinn here? No sir, he was not subpeoned. We found the package which the prisoner had under his arm; we cut it open with a knife in three. Where was that package? Left in a corner by a lot of rags. What did that package contain? Two ingots of copper similar to these now shown. I saw the identical paper package under his arm and the man identified it. How long did you remain in that vicinity? He remained there from about three o'clock until 1/4 to ten at night. Then we went to Fallopp's house; we sent out for him and told him that he was wanted at the Manhattan Brass Co's, there was something the matter with the boiler. After he came down stairs I told him what ~~was~~ ^{we} wanted him for; and he cast up to us that we were trying to blackmail him, something of that kind; he did not have copper, he knew nothing about copper, and was not near a junk shop nor nothing else of the kind. I took him to Police Headquarters and locked him up; he denied all knowledge of it up to that time. I went over the next day and also arrested Mr. McGinn and brought him over to identify him and the copper. The prisoner denied all knowledge of it until we showed him the copper; then he said he found the copper in the street and took it to his home about two or three weeks before that, and finding no owner for it he thought he would sell it to a junk shop. It is about three miles from his house to the junk shop. He denied all knowledge of the copper until it was shown to him in Inspector Byrnes' room; then he said he found it in Thirtieth St. I had no further conversation with him. Cross Examined. I did not have a warrant to arrest the prisoner; he made no resistance to going with me. I did not arrest him when he was going into the junk shop, for the reason that we did not know what the bundle contained; we wanted to be sure. Now are you prepared to swear that the bundle that he carried into the store was the bundle containing the copper? Because the bundle was never out of our sight from the time we saw it under his arm until it got to the junkman's hands; we followed him close up. We wanted to get the receiver in buying it, it was lying on the floor; he showed it to us immediately we got in there; he said a man left it there and would call. The receiver was not discharged at the Court, but he was discharged by the grand jury. Mr. White told me they had missed copper of that kind.

0242

James H. White recalled said that the engineer had access to the place where the copper was kept. John McGrath sworn and examined for the defence. I live 527 First Avenue, am a grocer, know the defendant two or three years, and his reputation for honesty is good as far as I have seen. Richard Cuff, sworn. I know the prisoner about three years. I always thought he was a good honest man.

The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of petty larceny.

GAMBLING.

Mayor Grace Has Led Under the Existence of the Pool Rooms.

Mayor Grace yesterday sent the following communication to the Police Commissioners in regard to the gambling houses where pools on horse races are sold:

To the Police Commissioners of the City of New York:

GENTLEMEN: I hereby transmit for your attention the complaint of Mr. A. V. Briesen, bearing date Sept. 8, a copy of which you will find inclosed. Gambling upon the event of horse races and other occurrences of the day through the selling of "pools" has grown within the immediate past to an alarming extent, and the evil influences are working the greatest harm to the community. I have recently given the matter my personal attention, and careful observation has demonstrated to me that Barclay street, between Broadway and Church street, of which Mr. A. V. Briesen complains, has become the haunt of gamblers. The sidewalks in front of the different pool rooms are almost continually lined with men and youths who are interested in the result of the pools, and to my personal knowledge, acquired after careful inspection, Mr. A. V. Briesen's complaint, so far as it refers to the condition of Barclay street is an entirely just one.

It is impossible for me to understand how the officers of your force doing duty at this point should fail to be aware of the facts, or how, being aware of them, they should fail to suppress the evil, the insidiousness and shamefulness of which cannot be exaggerated. In order, however, that there may be no mistake, and that you may be enabled to call the attention of your subordinates explicitly and with definiteness to the places complained of, I name those which are so notorious as almost to have become institutions in our city. They are: Hackett & Co. at No. 13 Barclay street; Tattersall's, at No. 10 Barclay street; Lovell's, at Barclay street; Lacey's, at No. 1 Barclay street; Lovell's, at No. 10 West Twenty-eighth street, and Hackett & Co. at No. 15 West Twenty-eighth street.

Before and about these in Barclay street, on a day when a race is being run at Coney Island, Saratoga or Monmouth Park, gamblers assemble in hordes (while they wait for the legitimate business of the day). The existence of these places, however, is a much more widespread mischief in that they are most powerful corrupters of young men and even boys, and these places are, nevertheless, permitted in open daylight, and under the very eye of the law, which denounces them, to entice these youths to their ruin. The law is explicit in its condemnation of gambling houses, and it is the duty of your Department to abate all such establishments. The attention of your subordinates should be forthwith called to the places I have named, and every possible measure taken by you for the strict and immediate enforcement of the statutes. Such crying, notorious and constant breaches of the law can surely be punished and prevented if the desire exist on the part of the officers of the law, and these places must be abated.

W. R. GRACE, Mayor.

OFFICE OF A. V. BRIESEN, No. 220 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, Sept. 8, 1881.

Hon. W. R. Grace, Mayor:

Sir: I beg to call your attention to the condition of Barclay street, near Broadway. Once a respectable thoroughfare, leading to one of the principal ferries and railroads, it is, thanks to the protection which the police afford the pool rooms, rapidly degenerating to one of the vilest spots of the city. Ladies on their way to and from the Hoboken Ferry avoid the street because of the hundreds of gamblers, loafers and drunkards who crowd the sidewalks opposite the pool rooms. The police know that these pool rooms are not by law permitted to exist, but they fail to obey the law. The stores in Barclay street, near Broadway, are no longer patronized by respectable people.
