<sup>v.</sup>
Patrick O'Flynn

Gerald Leck, 791 Seventh Avenue, stableman in the employ of the Seventh Avenue and Broadway Co. On the 10th of December, 1888, at about eleven o'clock A.M. I met the defendant herein in the stable of said company, in 7th Avenue between 50th and 51st Street. He teased me about my pants and I said: You are too mean! He replied that he would break my face. Hereafter he said: Meet me to-night at half past five, and we will have a fight. He said how I went to 50th Street, between Broadway and 7th Avenue to meet the defendant for the said fight. He was there, and as soon as I came near <sup>him</sup> and before any blows had been struck the defendant stabbed me with some sharp instrument in the stomach. Thereupon I knocked him down, but did not beat him any further. The pain caused by the stab prevented me from doing any more fighting. The defendant got on his feet again, rushed at me and stabbed me in the left breast and in the back. He ran away. And I was afterward brought in an ambulance to the Roosevelt Hospital, where I was confined for eleven days. I am not yet perfectly cured; I still feel pain in my left side. I did not see the instrument with which I was stabbed by the defendant.

Patrick McCue, 324 West 49th Street, stableman in the employ of the Broadway Surface R. R. Co., was present and saw the fight between the complainant and the defendant. It passed off as complainant has above described it.

John Gibney, 128 West 50th Street

stableman in the employ of the Broadway Surface R. R. Co. On the 10th of December, 1888, in the afternoon the defendant asked me whether I had heard about the fight between him and the complainant. He stated that if the complainant would bother him any more, he would fire him.

James Keenan, 791 Fourth Avenue, stableman in the employ of the Broadway Surface R. R. Co. On the 10th of December, 1888. I heard the remark of the defendant to the witness Gibney as above stated.

Frank J. Morris, patrolman, 22<sup>d</sup> precinct. I arrested the defendant herein. He admitted to me that he stabbed the complainant with a pocket knife, but claimed that he did it in self defense.
