In this case the complainant declares that he cannot swear the property alleged to have been stolen was worth over twenty five dollars.

This reduces the offense to Petit Larceny, a misdemeanor punishable under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The complainant acknowledges having received satisfaction for his loss and he is anxious that no further proceedings should be taken.

I do not think the interests of justice require that any further action should be taken herein and recommend that the indictment be dismissed.

City and County of New York. ss:

~~Jacob Greenburg being duly sworn says that he is the~~ defendant in the above entitled action; that ~~he~~ Said Greenburg has lived in the City of New York for the term of twenty years, that he has always born a good reputation and good name; that on the 12th day of Oct he was arrested on the charge of larceny, and carried before the Captain of the Police of the Precinct; that thereupon from his person was taken the sum of $470.; the complainants were clothing merchants; they charged in connection with deponent, one Isaacs who was an employee or partner in their concern; the deponent was held to bail, and he gave such bail, but the money taken from deponent's person was sent to Police Headquarters and placed in the hands of the Property Clerk; thereupon an earnest and felonious offer was made to compromise this alleged felony; deponent was approached by members of the firm and asked to settle; he declined to do so, and demanded a trial. The first day the case was before the Grand Jury on the 24th day of Oct the complainants had arranged with the police officer not to be there; deponent retained counsel Ambrose H. Purdy, and he went to the District Attorney's office and insisted that the case should be placed before the Grand Jury; he was assured by the Chief Clerk that it would be done; on the 27th day of Oct the day fixed, the case on being presented to the Grand Jury was adjourned on the ground of the absence of the complainants, and it was alleged that he was sick, but on the other hand he was not sick but in his own store doing his business; it was a lie and a cheat. During all this time, friends of the complainants were trying in every possible way to blackmail and to induce deponent to pay them some money out of the money held by the Property Clerk offering to withdraw the complaint; they said they had already got $500. from Isaacs the co-defendant, and that they wanted money from deponent; deponent being innocent of any crime declined to give them any money whatever; they finally proposed to deponent that if he would give them a general release for his arrest that they would not go before the Grand Jury; deponent declined to accept that proposition; deponent states to the court and asks this court to consider the facts in this case and to direct the Grand Jury to either hear or dismiss this case at once; if that cannot be done, deponent asks that his bail under which he is now held be discharged, and deponent asks such other and further relief as to the court may seem just, and deponent especially calls the attention of the court to this attempted case of blackmail and of compromising of felonies; it is done constantly among this class of people, the Jews; the alleged crime was never committed by deponent, deponent bought a few goods in a clothing house, and paid full value for them from an authorized agent of that house, he was afterwards arrested on this trumped up charge which never would have been pressed, excepting for the fact that when deponent was searched in the Station House, on his person was found the sum of $470.; to the complainants that sum seemed to justify their perjured oath taken before the magistrate.

WHEREFORE by reason of the premises, deponent asks that his bail in this case be discharged, and for such other relief as to the court may seem just.
